ROOSEVELT ASKS CONTROL OF RAILROADS

Today

In the Water Now.
Gang Rule or Court Rule?
Omaha, Great City.
Hard Work Pays.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CHICAGO, May 4.

USING THE language of the old "midway," Uncle Sam may say:

"I'm in the water now."

The House has passed the "inflation bill," so called, and those that spend public money will be able to say, if they choose:

"What's a billion among friends—or ten billions?"

However, there are two kinds of inflation: common sense use of the nation's credit with the backing of its gigantic wealth, and foolish inflation, based on reckless spending and money printing. To the question: "What do you think of inflation?" the answer is the same as you would give to the question: "What do you think about drinking?" It all depends on how much you drink.

One thing is certain. Millions will conclude that the best thing to do with a dollar is to spend it. That will help business and employment. And American common sense can be trusted to use American credit wisely.

HAVING RID its mind of all worry about the coming exposition, which will open on time and in full glory, Chicago turns its attention seriously to racketeers and racketeer rule. Bootleg beer profits, with inferior beer sold at fifty dollars a barrel, constituted the backbone of Chicago's racketeer finance.

With beer of good quality sold legally at fifteen dollars a barrel, the mainstay of the racketeer disappears.

THEIR PLAN now, as proved by numerous bomb explosions, is to make "legitimate business" provide profits formerly derived from illegitimate beer.

The proposed racketeer invasion of business reaches from labor unions to milk dealers, ice and coal merchants, cleaners and dyers, and dozens of other lines.

THE BOLDNESS of the gang rulers, plainly bent on public intimidation, is extraordinary. Five bombs were exploded, all within a few minutes of each other, beginning at half past two, day before yesterday, in "The Loop," Chicago's business center.

Chicago proposes to show that it can not be so easily frightened, and its citizens, distrusting public officials that have allowed crime to continue on a bribery basis for so long, will take into their own hands the job of wiping out gang terrorism.

THEY WILL get suggestions rather violent, but effective, from the history of San Francisco and from London's line of action, when menaced by a gang of garroters.

London used the cat o' nine tails, in every case, within fifteen minutes of conviction, and garroting ceased suddenly.

San Francisco's vigilance committees used the rope, without bothering about court procedure, and criminals immediately decided that San Francisco was not a desirable residence.

Chicago must make its choice between rule by gangs and rule by the citizens and their courts.

CHEERFUL NEWS meets you at Omaha, on the way here, and signs of prosperity are all along the line through Nebraska.

L. B. Tobin, publisher of the Omaha Bee-News, proud of his city and state, tells you that Omaha, second largest live stock market in the world—Chicago first, of course—has annual receipts ranging as high as 8,750,000 head of cattle, sheep and hogs.

Over three-fifths of the stock is processed in Omaha packing houses, which means employment for Omaha.

IN ADDITION, Omaha is one of the country's principal grain centers, handling 26,000,000 bushels of wheat a year, and it is the largest butter manufacturing city in the world, and therefore the world's largest distributor of live-giving vitamins.

It is the fourth railroad center in the United States, with ten trunk lines, bringing traffic to Omaha over 73,250 miles of track.

And Omaha has money. Thirty-ninth in population among American cities, it stands nineteenth in annual bank clearings.

MOST IMPORTANT, prices and prosperity are rising. Prices of Nebraska farm products on the farm have increased from 28 to 212 per cent. Corn, from 8 cents, and less, to 28 cents; wheat, from 20 cents to 55 cents; eggs, from 7 to 11 cents a dozen; oats, from 5 to 15 cents a bushel; hogs, from $2.85 to $3.65 per hundred weight.

And the best of it is that farmers will get a large part of the increased values. They still hold on their farms, unsold, and now in active demand, farm products that have increased in value by more than fifty-one million dollars.

THERE IS money in circulation, and George Brandeis, able merchant of Omaha, knows it. With his young associate, Karl Louis, he presents interesting facts and figures, including the fact that he realizes the importance of first getting what the people want, then letting them know about it, in advertising. Says he:

"I have just ordered a solid eight-page advertisement for next Sunday, in the Omaha Bee-News, which prints your articles. Mr. Louis and I read them every day. That eight-page advertisement we shall follow up with full page advertisements. When you are

KIDNAP HUNT TURNS TO INDIANS

Abductors of Child Reported Seen in Beach Village

Mother's Plea to Kidnapers of Daughter

HARWICH, Mass., May 4.—(AP.)—A pathetic appeal to the kidnapers of their daughter, Margaret, was made today by Mr. and Mrs. Neil C. McMath.

The appeal, which was in her mother's handwriting, follows:

"If it is necessary to take the child in an automobile, it would be wise to have a supply of chewing gum, as she becomes car sick. Margaret likes meat, is fond of milk, vegetables and fruit. She does not like turnips or spinach.

"Her mother and her father both asked her to be a good girl and do just what she is told to do."

HARWICHPORT, Mass., May 4.—(AP.)—A report that a Negro had been seen with a white girl in his automobile in Mashpee, an Indian settlement about 20 miles from here, today caused a hurried ordering to that town of 20 state troopers engaged in tracking the kidnapers of 10-year-old Margaret McMath.

The troopers were dispatched to search the vicinity of Mashpee in a wireless message from the temporary state police headquarters established here to the score of police cruising cars which, earlier in the day, had been sent out to tour every bypath in the vicinity and make inquiries at every likely place.

'BREAK' EXPECTED

Meanwhile, William Lee, business associate of Neil C. McMath, who has acted as liaison for the father of the child, who was enticed from her school by a Negro in an automobile Tuesday, said that he expected to have an an-

'Devil Killing' Case Near Hands of Jury

LINDEN, Tex., May 4.—(AP.)—A jury may receive by evening the case of Paul Oakley, 20-year-old itinerant backwoods preacher charged with choking to death Bernice Clayton, 3-year-old invalid he asserts he was attempting to cure. Insanity was his defense. He did not testify. State's rebuttal begins today.

Ann Saved, Sees Shark Kill Man

HAVANA, Cuba, May 4.—(AP.)—Ann Harding, blonde star of film romance, was shaken and broken-hearted today by a scene of horror enacted before her eyes.

Clinging to a capsized sailboat with two companions yesterday, Miss Harding saw sharks kill an aged Cuban sailor who was swimming to shore for aid.

"The sharks ate him!"

That was the cry with which Marie Lombard, the actress' secretary greeted rescuers who finally saved her, the actress and Alexander Kirkland, another luminary of the films.

All three, who clung to the 20-foot craft for three hours, three miles off the Jaimanitas Yacht Club, are suffering from shock and exposure.

Miss Lombard told of the tragedy:

"We decided to go sailing yesterday afternoon.

"We got a small boat from the Jaimanitas Club, manned by a lovely old Cuban, Majin Alvarez Tuero. Three miles off Jaimanitas a sudden, strong wind capsized the boat. Miss Harding fell into the water.

"The sailor cried, 'Don't be afraid; stay in the boat.' We clung on. He pulled Miss Harding in. After five or 10 minutes

MALONE IN RACE FOR MAYOR

James F. Malone today announced himself as a candidate for Mayor.

Malone, former president of City Council and ex-secretary of property and supplies under Gov. Pinchot, said:

"I am a candidate for Mayor. I have decided to be a candidate in view of the fact that thousands of men and women have personally requested me to do so.

"At a meeting in Schenley High School Thursday evening, May 11, I will define my policies and program."

Malone, in the insurance business, was a candidate for Mayor four years ago, against Charles H. Kline.

Judge Richard W. Martin also ran and Kline placed first, Martin second and Malone third, all close together.

VOLPE HELD IN ALCOHOL RAID HERE

Herron Faces Test as Four Seize Control Of Slot Machines

2—Indications pointed to a completely reorganized slot machine racket, with four chiefs and a central source of supply.

3—Mayor John S. Herron has issued orders that slot machines operating openly throughout Pittsburgh must be curbed.

4—The Better Business Bureau has announced a drive against business, industrial, charity and merchandise racketeers.

Swooping down on rooms occupied by what they allege to be the largest alcohol ring in the tri-state district, city detectives arrested Louis Volpe, of 136 Middle avenue, Wilmerding, brother of the three slain Volpes, and five

NICOLA SUED BY WOMAN

Mrs. Katharine Murdoch Shepherd, of New York, said formerly to have been an interior decorator in the Schenley Apartments, today had filed suit in Federal Court against F. F. Nicola, for $5,300.

She sets forth that this sum is the balance of $6,000 which Nicola agreed on July 7, 1932, to pay her in lieu of his setting up a $300,000 trust fund for her and her five children.

Mrs. Shepherd avers that she received only $700 of the sum stipulated.

In addition to the $6,000 cash payment, Mrs. Shepherd in her suit says that Nicola, long an art connoisseur had agreed to turn over to her valuable art objects. These, she said, included two paintings by Monet, "Cathedral of Rouen" and "Pond Lilies," also a rug of the Lamm collection.

Nicola was said at his office in the Farmers Bank Building to be out of town. His brother, O. P. Nicola, termed the suit without basis. He and Mrs. Shepherd was a former employe of F. F. Nicola and that no other relationship between the two had existed.

TWO PLANES CRASH AT AIRPORT

Army Fliers Escape Injury in Double Crack-Up

Two of five United States Army planes en route from Mitchell Field, L. I., to Southern California, for war maneuvers, cracked up at the County Airport today, one narrowly missing a high tension wire.

No one was injured but both ships were badly damaged.

A new type observation plane "O-35" piloted by Lieut. Lindsay Bawsel, with Sergeant R. Petack aboard, was circling over a field near the airport preparatory to landing when the twin motors went dead because of lack of gas.

LANDS IN FIELD

Lieut. Bawsel tried a dead-stick landing, aiming for the top of a hill. Instead he landed on the ploughed hillside.

The plane struck the ground with such momentum it was carried over the brow of the hill, skimming inches under high powered wires, and came to a halt in an orchard after uprooting several trees. Both wings were broken.

A few minutes later, Col. John H. Howard, in command of the flight, with Sergt. Mason M. White aboard, landed his "O-39" Curtiss observation plane. As he taxied down the field a wheel broke, causing the ship to "ground loop." The undercarriage was ripped off and both wings damager.

OTHER PLANES SAFE

Of the other planes, two small ships landed at Rodgers Field for refuelling then proceeded to the County Airport to greet the others. The fifth ship landed safely at the County port.

This year is Col. Howard's thirteenth in army flying. Today's was his third minor mishap.

Church Poor Boxes Raided by Thieves

Beware of thieves, pickpockets and their ilk! Such were the warnings spread on signs posted in the Church of the Immaculate Conception in Edmond street, Bloomfield.

Early today robbers justified the warning. They broke a church window, climbed through and emptied the poor boxes of approximately $25.

ESCORT BOUND, GIRL ATTACKED

A pretty 19-year-old Wilkinsburg girl was attacked by an armed thug in a lonely section of Frick Woods early today after her escort had been menaced with a pistol and tied to a tree some distance away.

The victim made her way to a house in Forward avenue and called her brother. She was taken to Montefiore Hospital.

Her escort, Robert Heintzelman, 19, of 29 St. Clair drive, Mt. Lebanon, freed himself of his bonds and reported the holdup to Squirrel Hill police.

Legislators To Adjourn Tomorrow

HARRISBURG, May 4.—(AP.)—Harrassed by disagreements on all sides, the Legislature today suddenly reached a decision to adjourn at noon tomorrow.

The Senate dusted off an old House resolution and passed it with the new closing date. As the House approved it on January 9 the resolution called for adjournment April 13.

An impatient House is only too ready to approve it. For two days its members have been tearing up bills and packing their belongings in anticipation of the action.

P ROPOSES 3 GROUPS FOR U. S.

Federal Co-Ordinator To Rule; Control Holding Firms

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(A. P.)—President Roosevelt sent to Congress today his emergency proposal for appointment of "a federal co-ordinator" to guide railroads through a reorganization.

Congressional advocates of the legislation had it ready at the Capitol, and planned to expedite it through committee to the Senate and House for debate and passage.

The President also asked for immediate repeal of the recapture of profits clause in the Interstate Commerce Commission act and for federal regulation of railway holding companies.

He said he would submit later a "comprehensive plan for permanent legislation."

He outlined the duties of the co-ordinator "to encourage, promote or require action on the part of carriers, in order to avoid duplication of service, prevent waste, and encourage financial reorganizations."

Copies of the bill were not available at the Capitol, a final draft having just been sent to the printing office.

30,000 TO SEEK BEER PERMITS

Thirty thousand beer permits will be needed for Allegheny County, Alfred E. Anke, deputy county treasurer, today told the Commissioners. Two hundred applications were made at his office today, he said.

Asking permission to advertise for printing bids, in line with the state regulation bill effective June 1, Anke also asked a special permit office be established on the second floor of the Courthouse. Both requests were granted.

To Anke's statement he didn't think permit seekers should use the same office as other taxpayers, Chairman C. C. McGovern told him:

"This beer business is respectable now."

Gov. Pinchot in Harrisburg said he would sign the beer tax bill today.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt today accepted an invitation to open Chicago's Century of Progress Exposition on May 27.

MY OWN LIFE STORY + + By Evelyn Nesbit Thaw

INTRODUCTION

This first complete recital of my unique life will, I hope, bring home to every girl the lesson that nothing in this existence is worth while except the peace of a clean conscience, a faith in God and the contentment of a decent and orderly life.

HARRY KENDALL THAW

To me have come all the fruits of world-famous beauty, the adoration of men of vast wealth and immortal genius, the spotlights of stardom on the stage and on the screen, front-page fame the world around, jewels, adventure, fabulous thrills.

As I review my past, the only wholesome thing that I have left from it all is my son Russell.

My sins and mistakes have cost me penalties even beyond the proportions of the romantic and dramatic heights which seemed to me and to the world to be so glamorous. If I had my life to live over again, I would marry a poor decent boy and struggle side-by-side with him toward the only true rewards, the satisfaction of normal, conventional living, in self-respect.

I left Tarentum, Pa., a very young girl. I was considered very pretty and fairly intelligent. A few years later, in New York, I had developed into a young woman whom the artists and stage producers regarded as a great beauty. Men went mad over me; men who were handsome, who were rich, who were gifted. One poor little girl from a village seemed to be what all the important men in the metropolis desired.

Some of the memorable things that happened to me and because of me are known to everyone. But what happened within me is known only to myself. The years of regret, the realization that what I had lost was priceless and that almost all it had brought me was worthless, have been the cross that I alone have had to carry.

How bitterly I realize the truth of Kipling's immortal passage,

For the sins ye do by two and two,

EVELYN NESBIT IN 1903

When I think of some of my childhood playmates who today are happy wives and mothers, who have never scaled the alluring high peaks and who have never crashed into the deep, dark valleys, I know that they chose far more wisely than I did. How they must have envied me at times in my colorful and melodramatic years; and how wrong they were, and how I envy them now.

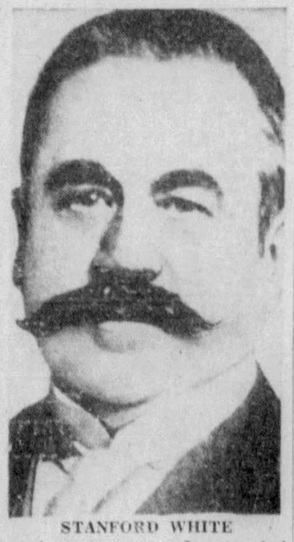
Nobody can set himself or herself against the rules of religion and society. There is no degree of charm or talent, or wealth or power, that can long maintain a battle against the commandments. No one can sin without paying.

I wish from the depth of my heart that I could impress this on all girls to whom flattery is sweet and for whom temptation quickens the pulse.

"You can't win."

CHAPTER I.

For nearly 27 years—since that June night in 1906 when Harry Thaw killed Stanford White—I have kept locked in my heart the secrets behind that murder.



STANFORD WHITE

As a wife, I defended my husband. On the witness stand I allowed my testimony to be shaped and molded to justify my husband as a noble invoker of the unwritten law. I told half-truths when I knew that to answer more fully would be to damn the man to whom I was legally married.

I concealed the truth for reasons which seemed good enough at the time. And in the subsequent years I concealed it for pressing financial reasons. I had nothing to gain by telling, a pittance from the Thaw family to retain by keeping silent.

Now I am under no restraint, moral or legal, to withhold

INFLATION BILL LIKELY TO BECOME LAW NEXT WEEK

CONFERENCES ON MEASURE OPENED

House, Senate Seek To Adjust Differences

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(AP.)—Doubt whether the huge farm relief-inflation bill can become law before next week was expressed today by Chairman Jones, of the House Agriculture Committee, as Senate and House conferees met for the first time to reconcile differences between the measures passed by the two houses.

The Senate inflation amendment, accepted by the House by more than a 3 to 1 majority, was not in dispute but over 80 amendments relating to the farm relief and mortgage sections of the measure remained to be settled.

Jones said:

"I think we shall be doing well if we can conclude the conference this week. I look for House action on the conference report early next week."

Jones said a majority of the Senate amendments were not of a major character, but that several were important. Secretary Wallace is opposed strongly to the Norris-Simpson amendment designed to assure the farmer the cost of production plus a reasonable profit.

Another amendment expected to cause difficulty was that which added sugar to the commodities covered in the bill. Also, cattle were stricken out by the Senate.

President Roosevelt called members of his cabinet into the White House last night and made plans to put the farm bill into operation as soon as final congressional approval is given.

Afterwards Secretary Wallace said that the precise steps to be taken under the broad grant of power would depend on how far the planting season is advanced. One of the methods his aides are now concentrating on is directed toward an expansion of the American market abroad, particularly in the Orient.

BRITAIN SEEKS STABLE DOLLAR

By HARRY K. REYNOLDS,
International News Service.

LONDON, May 4.—(INS.)—In an effort to prevent fluctuation of the depreciated American dollar, Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain will seek to increase the British exchange equalization fund by more than double, it was announced officially today.

Chamberlain's action, the announcement said, will raise the fund from 150,000,008 to 350,008,000 pounds sterling.

At current rates of exchange these sums would be $585,000,000 and $1,365,000,000, respectively.

According to the London Daily Herald, the amount of the increase will be raised by an issue of treasury bills.

The fund will be used to keep the pound down in relation to the franc and the dollar and also to acquire additional fresh gold for the Bank of England.

SENATE PROBE CALLS MORGAN

NEW YORK, May 4.—(INS.)—Subpenas were issued today for J. P. Morgan, Thomas W. Lamont, and 10 other partners in the house of Morgan.

They are summoned to appear before the Senate Banking Committee in Washington on May 23, the day of the next public hearing.

The subpenas, obtained by Ferdinand Pecora, special counsel to the banking committee, of which Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, of Florida, is chairman, calls for the appearance of the 12 partners as witnesses.

They will be questioned on the banking practices of the great house that, through its financial policy, is said to have controlled the destinies of empires.

stitute the main arteries of commerce in the United States.

"At this time, however, available traffic is not sufficient profitably to utilize existing railway facilities and the supplementary facilities provided by new forms of transportation.

"Our broad problem is so to co-ordinate all agencies of transportation as to maintain adequate service.

"I am not yet ready to submit to the Congress a comprehensive plan for permanent legislation.

"I do believe, however, that three emergency steps can and should be taken at this special session of the Congress.

RECAPTURE REPEAL

"First, I recommend the repeal of the recapture provisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission act.

"The commission has pointed out that existing provisions are unworkable and impracticable.

"Second, Railway holding companies should be placed definitely under the regulation and control of the Interstate Commerce Commission in like manner as the railways themselves.

"Third, as a temporary emergency measure, I suggest the creation of a federal co-ordinator of transportation who, working with groups of railroads, will be able to encourage, promote or require action on the part of carriers, in order to avoid duplication of service, prevent waste, and encourage financial reorganizations.

"Such a co-ordinator should also, in carrying out this policy, render useful service in maintaining railroad employment at a fair wage.

"The experience gained during the balance of this year will greatly assist the government and the carriers in preparation for a more permanent and a more comprehensive national transportation policy at the regular session of the Congress in 1934.

"(Signed)

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT,

"The White House,
"May 4, 1933."

POLICY OUTLINED

The administration's policy outlined in the bill states:

"In order to foster and protect interstate commerce in relation to railroad transportation by preventing and relieving obstructions and burdens thereon resulting from the present acute economic emergency, and in order to safeguard and maintain an adequate national system of transportation, there is hereby created the office of Federal Co-ordinator of Transportation, who shall be appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate, or be designated by the President from the membership of the commission.

"If so designated, the co-ordinator shall be relieved from other duties of commissioner during his term of service to such extent as the President may direct."

Headquarters of the co-ordinator are to be in Washington. He is authorized to "divide the lines of the carriers into three groups, to wit, an Eastern group, a Southern group, and a Western group, and may from time to time make such changes or sub-divisions in such groups as he may deem to be necessary or desirable.

New Jersey Granted First R. F. C. Loan

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(INS.)—New Jersey was granted its first relief loan by the R. F. C. today, amounting to $2,009,291, for use in 21 counties during May.

Other loans were: Tennessee, $508,050, for use in 92 counties, and Ohio, $15,000, for use in Sandusky County.

HOUSE SPEEDS STOCK REFORM

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(INS.)—A securities bill which would empower the Federal Trade Commission to bare the secrets of every big corporation offering bonds or stock for sale will be called up in the House tomorrow and passed by Sunday, under a program laid down by Democratic leaders today.

The measure, as placed before the House by the Interstate Commerce Committee which redrafted the administration bill, carries far more drastic provisions than had been expected.

With a picture of billions of dollars of losses in stocks and bonds in the boom years, the House Committee proposed heavy penalties for false advertising or misrepresentation, and a full disclosure of all of the facts in every security sale.

The publicity proposal was carried into provisions affecting sale of foreign government or private bonds in this country.

Cummings Launches 'Good Will' Campaign

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(AP.)—Attorney General Homer S. Cummings hopes to "breathe a new spirit" into the Department of Justice.

Saying that a strained attitude between many citizens and the government has resulted from oppressive laws, he declared last night at a banquet of the American Judiciary Society that he hoped to bring to the public the idea that the law is their friend and servant.

KLINE'S BIG CAR LINKED IN SUIT

The big automobile of former Mayor Charles H. Kline figured in a damage suit which went to a jury in Federal Court today.

An action was brought against the city by Mollie and Barnett Ginsberg of East Liverpool, O., as the result of an automobile crash at Bates and Semple streets last June 23 at which time it was alleged that Mrs. Ginsberg was seriously injured about the spine.

The former Mayor was not in the automobile at the time. The car was driven by Jess Ullom, chauffeur, who was on his way to the Kline home in Park Mansions, Oakland. Both sides charged negligence.

Assistant City Solicitor Harry Diamond represented the city and Rebecca L. Davis and Samuel T. Talenfield appeared for the plaintiffs.

BILL SHELVING ANTI-TRUST LAWS DRAWN

Provides for Control Of Industrial Production

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(AP.)—The draft of a revolutionary bill to mobilize and control industrial production through trade association action was virtually ready for submission to President Roosevelt today by a group of administration advisors.

The Chief Executive was informed of the general outlines of the proposed legislation and was expected to discuss it tonight in his address to the United States Chamber of Commerce.

It would let down the anti-trust laws to permit trade associations to work out production agreements with the approval of a governmental body to be created for the purpose.

Trade associations would be permitted to plan productions and arrange prices subject to approval by the governmental body, which might impose regulations regarding wages and working hours as conditions for approval of the agreements.

The plan is purely of emergency character and would be authorized for a three-year period in order, as one of its authors described it, to "get industry off dead center."

The whole plan still is subject to approval of the President, which may be contingent to some extent upon the reaction he receives from his discussion of it tonight.

Drafters of the proposed legislation believe it will be offered for enactment at the special session if the President approves.

It might be offered as separate legislation, or tied to a public works program, or submitted as an amendment or substitute for the Black 30-hour week bill now pending in the House.

WORLD PARLEY WON'T TAKE UP WAR DEBTS

MacDonald Reports on Results of Trip to Washington

LONDON, May 4.—(AP.)—War debts will not be discussed at the World Economic Conference here in June, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald told the House of Commons today.

He made the statement in reply to a question from the floor after he had made his report on his momentous mission to Washington, where he discussed with President Roosevelt methods of lifting the world from its economic distress.

MacDonald announced Britain's conditional acceptance of the tariff truce proposed by the United States.

There were three main points in the Prime Minister's account of his journey to Washington:

1—He revealed that his stipulation for "safeguards" for Great Britain in effecting the tariff truce had been considered "reasonable" by the United States.

2—He announced that the war debts had been "frankly examined in all their aspects," although no agreement was reached.

3—He informed the House that on the problem of disarmament he and President Roosevelt achieved "common views" which already have had effect at the disarmament negotiations now going forward at Geneva.

The Prime Minister, looking vigorous and healthy after his sea voyage from New York, was cheered by the members as he appeared in the House to render an account of his stewardship.

JUNG AND HALL MEET

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(AP.)—Italy's finance minister, Guido Jung, the Italian ambassador, Augusto Rosso, and Italian economic and financial experts continued their discussion of economic problems today at the State Department with Secretary Hull and departmental experts.

Breckenridge Long, newly-appointed ambassador to Italy, joined the conversations, which will review in detail subjects discussed in a general way at the White House yesterday with President Roosevelt.

JAP DELEGATES SAIL FOR U. S.

TOKIO, May 4.—(AP.)—Viscount Kukijiro Ishii left today for his conferences with President Roosevelt to defend Japan's role as a "primary defender of the peace of the Orient" and to urge American recognition of Manchukuo.

Also, if the American President offers an opening for such arguments, the 67-year-old statesman is prepared to defend the Japanese conquest of Manchuria and the establishment therein of the Manchukuo government.

Probably the first and most vital task he will have in Washington, Mr. Ishii said, will be to learn from President Roosevelt just how far and in what directions the idea of a consultative pact to implement the Kellogg-Briand peace treaty developed in the President's talks with Prime Minister MacDonald, of Great Britain, and Former Premier Herriot, of France.

MARLENE DIETRICH

ACTRESS TELLS FEAR FOR CHILD

LOS ANGELES, May 4.—(AP.)—Marlene Dietrich, German film actress whose advocacy of trousers for women set a style in feminine fashions, made her first appearance in the American court yesterday as a witness in a damage action and wore a skirted blue serge suit.

She had been summoned in the suit of Richard Rowley, one of five guards employed at her home, against O. W. Wilde for damages of $27,719 as a result of injuries which Rowley said he received when struck by a truck owned by Wilde last November. The witness testified:

"I have five guards, two for night and two for day and one to be with my child."

She employed the guards after she had received extortion letters threatening the kidnaping of her 8-year-old daughter, Maria. She said Rowley's services had been satisfactory.

'MYSTERY MAN' IDENTIFIED

Identified by a former employer and an associate from photographs, Pittsburgh's amnesia victim today was to be told he is Stanley A. Kenny, of Piedmont, W. Va.

R. J. Bauman, Wilkinsburg automobile dealer, informed city detectives Kenny formerly worked for him as a salesman. He said Kenny's father had been a prominent real estate dealer at Piedmont and his mother lives there.

Charles D. Allenan, of 7337 Mt. Vernon street, telephoned the same information to detectives.

The amnesia victim told police he remembered boarding an automobile in Cumberland and being driven here, when he lost his memory. He is in St. Francis Hospital.

HARRIMAN BANK INQUIRY LINKS 25 DIRECTORS

Juggling of Deposits Also Involves Two Federal Agencies

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Revelation that 25 directors of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company of New York manipulated the bank's stock with funds borrowed from their own institution today held the attention of a Senate Judiciary Sub-Committee.

At an executive meeting, the committee decided to dig deeper into the operations of this directors' pool, linked at least indirectly with the illegal transfer of $1,393,000 from depositors' accounts to a bond purchase account.

INDICTMENT LINK

This transfer formed one basis for a criminal indictment brought against Joseph W. Harriman, former president of the bank, soon after the Roosevelt administration came into power.

The subcommittee sought additional light on the strange failure of the comptroller's office and later the Department of Justice to prosecute Harriman during the eight months which elapsed between the discovery that funds had been misappropriated and the advent of the new administration.

Acting Comptroller of the Currency F. G. Awalt, satisfied the senators that his own record in this transaction was clear. A decision was reached, however, to summon former Comptroller of the Currency J. W. Pole, who resigned last September.

OFFICIALS TO BE CALLED

Officials of the New York Clearing House and directors of the bank who participated in the pool operations also were to be summoned.

Senators Neely (Dem.), of West Virginia, and Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana, savagely assailed the Harriman transactions as "crooked from start to finish" and accused the two government departments of criminal negligence in delaying prosecution.

Awalt revealed that he plans to bring suit against the New York Clearing House, for 100 per cent settlement of losses suffered by depositors in the Harriman bank. These losses, the subcommittee was told, may exceed $8,000,000. The Clearing House agreed to protect depositors of the bank.

GOLD HOARDING ACTION NEAR

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(AP.)—The government intends to move swiftly and surely against hoarders of large sums of gold.

Attorney General Cummings and Secretary Woodin have decided to act first against the most flagrant violator shown on the Treasury's records just as soon as the case can be prepared.

Experts now at work in the Treasury are to be joined at once by trained Department of Justice men who will go into the field also to prepare the first test case.

Cummings and Woodin studied the situation yesterday and then drafted a definite plan of action to be taken under President Roosevelt's proclamation which has been challenged by some, including Senator Borah, of Idaho, as unconstitutional. Woodin is expected to issue a statement soon.

The Justice Department intends to be absolutely sure of its first case before going into court against a major violator, so that a victory would force others to see the wisdom of returning their gold to the banks.

The general expectation is that the test suit will be taken to the Supreme Court.

PROBE OF R.F.C. LOANS VOTED

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(AP.)—The Senate granted broad power to its banking committee today to investigate loans by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Without debate, it approved a resolution offered by Chairman Fletcher on behalf of the committee, granting power to inquire into operations of the relief organization and loans made by it.

The resolution was drafted by Senator Fletcher on instructions from the committee to give it authority to inquire into charges of improper loans.

McKee Out, Al Smith May Run for Mayor

NEW YORK, May 4.—(AP.)—Joseph V. McKee's farewell to politics gave increased currency today to talk that Alfred E. Smith may run for Mayor this fall.

There was one report that the former Governor and the borough leaders of the Democratic party had reached an understanding expected to result in Smith's candidacy.

No confirmation came from any of the principals involved, but the report said that news to this effect had reached McKee and had influenced his decision to abandon politics and become president of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company.

Some political observers said that Edward J. Flynn, Bronx Democratic leader and friend of McKee, would not have been expected to support him against Smith, nor would McKee have wanted to oppose the former Governor.

The action of McKee, advocate of rigid economy, in resigning his $20,000 job as aldermanic president and "eliminating" himself from politics, was a shock to many foes of Tammany.

Many anti-Tammanyites had looked to him to wrest the mayoralty from the organization incumbent, John P. O'Brien.

Phila. Socialite Sued As Romance Wrecker

PHILADELPHIA, May 4.—(AP.)—The Evening Public Ledger in a copyrighted article today says that Mrs. Bessie Dobson Altemus Eastman has been sued for alienation of the affections of a husband from whom she was divorced 22 years ago.

Mrs. Eastman is the mother of Mrs. John Hay Whitney, of New York.

The article says the suit was brought by Miss Estelle F. Maxwell, who alleges that she has been engaged for years to Lemuel C. Altemus, but that their marriage was prevented by Mrs. Eastman and her son, James Dobson Altemus. The latter is also a defendant in the action.

Both Mrs. Eastman and her son denied they knew of the engagement, or urged postponement of the marriage.

Mrs. Eastman and Altemus were divorced in 1911, and in 1924 she was married to Maj. Medom A. Eastman, of the United States Marine Corps. She has been prominent in social, civic and political affairs in Philadelphia, serving as chairman of the Republican Women of Philadelphia County.

SICK BOY, IN HOSPITAL ON COURT ORDER, HAPPY WITH TOY

MOTHER ASKS TO BE NEAR CHILD

Lesic Pastor Lauds Action Taken by Judge Lencher

Little Billy Lesic played happily with a toy airplane in his Allegheny General Hospital bed today, not knowing that the law had taken him from his mother.

The 3-year-old child was taken to the hospital in a police car yesterday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Charles Welsh, after being pried from the arms of his hysterical mother in Juvenile Court.

Miss Mildred Hardy, nurse in charge of the semi-private room, where the boy will be treated for tuberculosis of the spine, said today:

"Billy seems to like it here—he doesn't complain at all. He looks happy and contented and enjoys playing with a toy airplane that we gave him."

MOTHER PROTESTS

Judge Benjamin Lencher ordered the hospital treatment, after listening to the protests of Mrs. Mary Lesic, the boy's mother. He told Mrs. Lesic:

"You've got to work with us. Whether you like it or not, Allegheny County is going to see that Billy gets the proper care. It is our duty to help him, and we must do our duty."

Mrs. Lesic, who lives at 248 Arlington street, Millvale, refused to listen to the wishes and entreaties of the court and is just as adamant in her beliefs today. At her home she shouted:

"There is nothing in this world that I love as much as my boy. They can't separate me from him. I'm going to make them let me go to the hospital so that I can be near to him."

PASTOR LAUDS ACTION

During the court hearing Mrs. Lesic kept repeating:

"I will not let him go unless they give a $25,000 bond that he will be cured. But I know that no one can help him but God."

When she said that Dr. H. M. Allison was taking care of the boy at home, Judge Lencher said:

"Did you know that he was convicted of practicing medicine without a license? Do you take his word against all those other well-known, reputable physicians."

Upon hearing that Billy has been given a new chance for life in the hospital, the Rev. Albert Zagar, the Lesics' pastor, said:

"I'm glad to hear of the court decision. The boy is better off in the hospital. It is better for the child and better for the mother."

CHILD IS BORN IN BLAZE AT HOSPITAL

Rescued With Mother, 224 Other Patients; Man, 84, Dies

SAYRE, Pa., May 4.—(AP.)—Birth, death and fear mingled in a flaming drama early today when fire ravaged Robert Packer Hospital.

A baby was born in the hospital at the height of the terror. Infant and mother were unhurt. An old man, suffering from a broken arm, was carried from the burning building, only to die of shock.

Two hundred and twenty-four other patients were rushed out on cots or carried down ladders. Of these 27 were infants, some less than 24 hours old.

INTERN SAVES MAN

After all the patients were believed safe, screams were heard inside the building. Risking his life, Dr. John Gillan, of Minneapolis, an intern, rushed into the smoke and carried out a male patient.

The baby, born amid the smoke and flames, was the child of a Mrs. Stewart. Both were said to be "doing nicely." Harvey Mayo, 87, was the man who died.

Dr. George F. Carling and a mechanic ran through dense smoke and tossed several ethylene tanks out an operating room window, preventing an explosion.

Ambulances hurried many of the patients to Waverly, three miles away, while others were put to bed in homes here.

CAUSE MYSTERY

The cause of the fire had not been determined today. Firemen from Waverly, Elmira, Athens, Sayre and Towanda got control of the flames after they had swept the men's surgical and medical wards, the old private pavilion, the old dispensary, operating rooms, and the women's medical ward.

The brick administration and clinic building, built five years ago at a cost of $500,000, was saved.

The lighting system of the entire plant was put out of order and the hospital was dark except for the blaze as patients were taken out.

Two Relate Story at Father's Trial for Abusing Dog

After Howard M. England, of McKeesport, was fined $15 and costs or 20 days in jail by Justice of the Peace John T. Small, in East McKeesport, for abusing a dog, an agent of the Humane Society made information against him and his wife for neglecting their two minor sons.

The hearing on the charge of abusing the dog was featured by frequent clashes between the justice, Attorney Fred Hitchens, of McKeesport, representing the Englands, and Chief Agent E. M. Smith, of the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society. During the confusion which swept the crowded courtroom, Mrs. England fainted, and her mother, Mrs. Charles Baker, became hysterical. Both required medical attention before the hearing could proceed.

Humane agents charged that before leaving East McKeesport, England had kicked his dog and left it in the roadway. Neighbors testified that they frequently had seen him kick the animal. England denied the charges.

The case was delayed, Attorney Hitchens explained to Justice Small, by another hearing in which the Englands figured before Alderman John H. Skinner, in McKeesport. At this hearing England's stepsons, Charles Baker, 17, and his brother, Hilary, 15, were arraigned on charges preferred by England, who said they were in the habit of using discourteous language to him and their mother.

The boys told Alderman Skinner that April 24 they were driven from home by the stepfather and mother after the older boy took half a loaf of bread from a cupboard. Charles, it was testified, slept in the woods 10 days. He was held for court, and his brother for Juvenile Court, both later being released on bonds of $300 each.

Charles was charged with surety of the peace and the brother with incorrigibility.

FIND GIRL SLAIN IN HIGHWAY

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 4.—(AP.)—Shot five times, the body of a young woman, an attractive, well-dressed brunette, was found lying in the middle of a lonely country road near here at 7 a. m. today by a farm hand en route to work.

The woman, about 25 years old, had been shot three times in the head, once in the neck and once in the shoulder. The body, lying face up on the road, bore no signs of a struggle, and police said there was scant clue to the slayer.

Philo Forshee, the farm hand who discovered the body, said his employer, Mrs. Effie Kingsley, reported hearing a disturbance on the highway early today.

It's News When Politician Quits—Of His Own Accord

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

When a man bites a hot dog that ain't news unless the mustard gets in his eye.

But when a prominent politician like Joseph McKee quits politics to go to work, that is an eight-column banner in the sky.

Joe was New York's acting Mayor for a few shakes of the lamb's tail. He was president of the Board of Alderman. He was going to run for Mayor this fall.

Uncle Joe Cannon said that few die and none resign. Throw those old proverbs around long enough and they will turn up ace-deuce.

And a word about that name on the glass door, Mr. McKee. Paint it yourself. Don't forget that fifty thousand people spelled it wrong at the last election.

in business, do not leave too much to the public imagination. Tell them about it."

That plan is recommended to other merchants, who wonder what is wrong with business.

IN CONNECTION with the proposed 30-hour week, 6-hour day, five days "work," Mr. Brandeis presents a theory which many young gentlemen will abhor. He says hard work does not hurt anybody.

He used to work in the Chicago Boston store for Charles Netcher, the owner, when Mr. Netcher slept every night on the hard counter, and sent out for his meals. Brandeis and Netcher used to arrange furniture, rugs, etc., on the sidewalk, in front of the store, before sunrise, to attract business.

Later, when Mr. Netcher married (his widow runs the store now) Brandeis took the job of sleeping in the store. Says Brandeis:

"But I was a sybarite, compared with Netcher, and I used to get blankets from the bedding department, sleep with them on the counter, and put them back in the morning."

THE LATE Benjamin Altman, one of the greatest American merchants, used to buy goods for his tiny "first store" on Sixth avenue, pay cash, and carry the merchandise home on his back.

All that will seem dull to many young Americans, whose motto is:

"Why should I kill myself?

But George Brandeis has not killed himself. At 55 he drives his automobile to his cattle ranch, 350 miles from Omaha, leaving home before daybreak, gets there in time for lunch, rides his horses all afternoon, and drives back at night.

And, like Netcher, Altman, Marshall Field, Gimbel, Wanamaker and thousands of other hard workers, he has made a big fortune and is HIS OWN BOSS. That is better than being bossed by someone else all your life, if only for six hours a day.

Orphans Flag Express In Storm; Save 500

PASSAIC, N. J., May 4.—(AP.)—A drama of orphans, a storm and an express train hurtling toward disaster had its sequel today when six lads modestly received congratulations on their quick thinking.

The six parentless boys glued their faces to a window of the Passaic asylum last night to watch an electric storm rage outside. Suddenly they noted the rain had washed away an embankment, leaving a section of railway track suspended flimsily over a 10-foot chasm.

They knew an express train would roar over those rails shortly. Dashing out, they ran down the tracks, waving raincoats and screaming.

The engineer saw them through the darkness. He stopped just in time to save the train, which carried 500 passengers.

The boys are Jacob Merlnizek, John Murdock, Douglas Fleming, Rudolph Borsche, Frank Mazzola and Michael Mazzola.

'Daniel' Suicide Fails As Bears Merely Sniff

MILWAUKEE, May 4.—(INS.)—Daniel in the lion's den had a modern counterpart today in William Eckhardt, 20, who leaped into the bear pit at Washington Park Zoo only to be sniffed and ignored.

His home life was unsympathetic, Eckhardt afterward told police, and he decided to throw himself in among the grizzlies, Polars and black bears.

Landing in the moat Eckhardt found all escape cut off by a 20-foot wall on the right and craggy slope on the left which the bears slide down.

There he awaited his martyrdom, but the bears merely came to the edge of the slope, sniffed and lumbered away without taking a nibble out of their visitor.

Zoo attendants lowered a ladder and forced Eckhardt to come out.

BOY RELEASED, MAD KIDNAPER HUNTED

A man, believed demented, who tied and gagged Benjamin Philo Baker, 10, and threw him into a shallow mine cave-in near his Patton township home late yesterday, was sought by county detectives today.

The assailant left a note in a barn on the Baker chicken farm off Monroeville road, demanding a $500,000 ransom. The amount led Detectives Joseph Bodner and Edward Frank to believe the man insane.

The boy, son of B. P. Baker, an electrical engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, was picking violets about 150 feet from the barn when a man, his face covered with a handkerchief in which eyeholes had been cut, seized him.

GAGGED, BOUND

Gagged, and his hands tied behind him, the boy was thrown into a shallow pit, caused by the cave-in of a coal mine. Fleeing, the assailant shouted:

"If you want to know more, look between the stacks of hay in your barn!"

Benjamin managed to work the gag from his mouth and screamed. His cries attracted his mother, feeding the chickens in the barn. She hurried and freed her son.

A search of the haystack revealed the note, crudely writen on cheap paper, demanding the cash.

It threatened the boy's life if the ransom were not paid.

PARENTS SEEK GIRL HERE

Parents of a Youngstown (O.) High School girl were in Pittsburgh today seeking trace of their daughter whom they believe was lured away or kidnaped.

The girl, Geraldine Daniels, 16, of 121 East Woodland avenue, Youngstown, disappeared after leaving for school, Tuesday morning. She failed to attend school and did not return home, according to the parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Daniels.

The Missing Persons Bureau was asked by the parents to aid in search for the girl. They told police she had never been away from home before, was wrapped up in her school work and had no boy friends.

The missing girl is described as 5 feet 5 inches tall, weight 130 pounds, dark brown hair, gray eyes, slight scar on forehead. She wore a red "jumper," red leather jacket and black and tan hat.

KANSAS CITY, May 4.—(AP.)—Another attempt to extort money through a threatening letter has been made upon Mrs. Nell Donnelly, wealthy garment manufacturer, who was kidnaped and held for ransom more than a year ago.

Mrs. Donnelly reported to police receipt of a demand that $10,000 in cash be sent in a package to the store of a rug dealer in Kansas City, Kan.

New Giant Blimp Visits Cleveland

CLEVELAND, May 4.—(INS.)—Making its second test flight, the Army's new blimp, the TC-13, largest non-rigid dirigible in the world, visited Cleveland today on a trip from its homedock at Akron.

TRIAL UPSETS LINDY'S PLANS

LOS ANGELES, May 4.—(INS.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today planned to cut short a visit in California in order to be in Washington by Tuesday, when Col. Lindbergh will testify in the trial of Gaston B. Means and Norman T. Whitaker, charged with a conspiracy to steal $35,000 from Mrs. Evalyn Walsh MacLean as an aftermath of the kidnaping and murder of the Lindbergh baby.

This announcement was made today by officials of the Transcontinental and Western Airlines.

KIDNAPED GIRL HUNT TURNS TO INDIANS

nouncement of importance to make "in a little while."

He added that, in the belief that organized gangsters from a large city might have been responsible for the abduction, the family had named Aaron Davis, a New York advertising man, as a contact for any negotiations that might be necessary in that city.

The McMath estate here again today remained barred to all save members of the household, who continued McMath's policy to maintain a safe open door to any emissaries the kidnapers might send to negotiate.

McMath has invited the kidnapers to negotiate with him, promising to meet any demand within his power for the safe return of his child and agreeing to deal secretly with them.

The town of Mashpee, where the search went on today, is populated almost entirely by the remnants of Cape Cod's last red men, now intermarried with various other races.

The settlement is well off the main thoroughfares, and few tourists see it without going out of their way.

RITES CELEBRATED

Although the natives of the town devote themselves largely to agriculture and basket weaving and maintain a town government, they also maintain some sort of tribal organization and practice some ancient tribal customs. The terrain is sandy and covered with brushwood, scrub oaks and stunted pines.

Other squadrons of Massachusetts state troopers scoured the back roads and out-of-the-way places of Cape Cod today.

They were under orders to visit every store, house and occupied camp along the sandy beaches and the scrub pine stretches of the cape. They were ordered to stop at road intersections to question nearby residents.

A crumpled, empty envelope on which the name and address of the girl's father was printed apparently was discarded as unimportant. A South Chatham road gang's story of a crying child in a dark colored car seemingly led to a dead end.

For a time, Daniel C. Needham, state commissioner of Public Safety, attached great importance to that dirty, crumpled envelope. He ordered it carefully examined for fingerprints and had photostatic copies of it sent to experts at the State House in Boston.

ENVELOPE CLUE FAILS

In it the commissioner believed he had the first tangible clue of the search that began just an hour behind the kidnaping of Margaret Tuesday afternoon. Then, suddenly early today state police turned their attention to other angles of the search.

The road gang's story met almost as sudden a death. They had reported hearing a crying child in a dark colored machine that turned into a South Chatham by-way. Police followed the course of the little-used wooded road pointed out to them by the road workers. It took them to a sandy beach on which were footprints of a child, a man and a woman. The footprints ended where beach and brush met.

Again investigators believed they had a clue, but in many places the sets of prints were widely separated and it seemed unlikely to police the kidnapers would have allowed the girl any such freedom.

COAST GUARD AIDS

Coast Guards continued to aid the searchers. Ashore, surfmen walked their beach patrols with a weather eye out for some sign of the little girl. Asea, patrol boats resumed their search for strange craft.

Department of Justice agents sought Leo Cellura, formerly a member of the Detroit "Purple Gang," in nearby Cape Cod communities. Cellura had been seen in Sagamore, nearby, about a month ago and federal agents had previously been here in search of him. State officers knew nothing of the Cellura angle. They knew the federal men sought him but they believed it was on old charges and not in connection with the McMath kidnaping.

EVANSTON, Ill., May 4.—(AP.)—A policeman's ball wouldn't be complete without a queen, so Police Chief William O. Freeman told his lads to be on the alert for a likely candidate.

Policeman William Cameron arrested Miss Frances McCoy, 20, on a charge of speeding. She consented to be queen at the ball last night, but notwithstanding this she will have to appear in court to answer the speeding charge.

Tired Sleuths Rest in Store, Owner Sues

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 4.—(AP.)—Two tired policemen went into C. A. Castor's grocery and leaned against a counter. Down came a cash register, an adding machine, a paper rack and six milk bottles. Castor sued the city for $38. He got $19.40.

GIRL'S MOTHER LIKE ANNE IN TRAGEDY

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

HARWICH, Mass., May 4.—Margaret Kales McMath took a leaf from Anne Lindbergh's book today, set her chin, and prepared to face the future stoically.

The mother of the gay little girl who was lured from her country school house the day before yesterday has not broken down, had hysterics, nor required a sedative during all those hours, International News Service learned today.

STEELS SELF

Afraid, in her heart, for the welfare of her first born, Mrs. McMath will not give in to desperation. She holds as a model of behavior in time of stress the gallant Anne Lindbergh, who a little more than a year ago went through the same strain so futilely. Like Anne, she steels herself against panic.

Said William Lee, spokesman for the family:

"She is remarkable. She has been crying, of course, but she has not gone to bed, and she has had no outbursts. Instead, she keeps her mind as much as possible on Francis, her other child."

Francis' mother wants him to go back to school and continue to lead a normal life, but she is afraid photographers will beseige him and so keeps him indoors.

VASSAR GRADUATE

Every now and then, when the telephone rings, Mrs. McMath leaps to answer, but she is not permitted to lift the receiver from the hook.

It was she who received the mysterious telephone call Tuesday, purporting to be from the telephone company, asking that her receiver be kept off the hook for 10 minutes. The memory of that call is a nightmare; the voice of the unknown is embossed in her memory.

Mrs. McMath, a woman in her late thirties, is tall, dark and good looking; her daughter is said to resemble her slightly.

She is a graduate of Vassar, and lived all her girlhood in Detroit, where her father, head of a structural steel company, is a friend and business associate of Henry Ford.

Be Good to Peggy, Father's Plea to Abductors

HARWICH, Mass., May 4.—(Universal)—Neil C. McMath, father of Margaret McMath, last night made this broadcast appeal to the kidnapers who have his child:

"Please be good to my daughter 'Peggy'.

"Secondly, you may get in touch with me in any way you see fit.

"Mrs. McMath and I pledge ourselves to deal faithfully and honestly with you without thought of prosecution or punishment.

"In other words, I guarantee immunity to all of you if you will speedily get in touch with me and deliver my daughter back to me unharmed."

AUSTRIA PUTS DOWN NAZI 'UPRISING'

By ALFRED TYRNAUER.
International News Service.

VIENNA, May 4.—A Nazi "putsch," alleged by the government to have enjoyed the backing of German Brown Shirts, was attempted in Austria today but was put down by stern repressive measures and the reported arrest of hundreds of participants.

In an official communique describing the plot, the government alleged the conspirators planned to oust the government of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss by force of arms, replace it with a Nazi regime and enforce an immediate military and political union between Austria and Germany.

FASCIST BLOC

Such a plot, if successful, would have gone far in hastening the widely-predicted Fascist Central European bloc, vastly extending the influence of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, of Germany.

It was indicated Austria is prepared to protest against alleged German Nazi implication in the plot, appealing to world powers for protection.

BERLIN, May 4. — (INS.) — Twenty-three persons were wounded, several seriously, in a gun fight at Vienna between Nazis and members of the Austrian Heimwehren, the newspaper Lokalanzeiger reported today.

The dispatch said police interfered and dispersed the rioters.

Nazi Regime Takes Over Industrial Control

BERLIN, May 4.—(INS.)—German industry was further entrenched under the Nazi regime today following appointment of two Reich commissioners charged with speeding Chancellor Hitler's economic rehabilitation program.

The appointments were made by Hitler and Minister of Economics Alfred Hugenburg, whose position in the cabinet is now precarious, after the Chancellor granted an audience to Dr. Gustav Krupp von Bohlen and von Holbach, head of the Krupp works at Essen and president of the Reich Industrialists' Association.

The two commissars will insure government control of German industry with the aim of spurring industrial exports. The two appointees are Otto Wagener, a Nazi former army officer, and Alfred Moellers, a Nationalist.

Tear Gas Bombs Show Public Weepy Time

Pedestrians wept as they passed the National Carloading Company's warehouse in Penn avenue, near Eleventh street, last night.

Tears rolled down the cheeks of firemen, too, when they reached the place.

Several tear gas bombs, packed in cases, exploded as the boxes were being moved on the company's platform. The fumes filled the yard and affected pedestrians in Penn avenue. Firemen were summoned. They donned gas masks and moved the packing cases into open air.

DEATH BAFFLES APE-MAN TEST

MOSCOW, May 4.—(AP.)—Ilya Ivanovitch Ivanov, 59, Soviet professor of experimental biology, has died without having obtained any positive results in his efforts to interbreed apes with the human species, it was learned here today.

The eminent scientist, who had sought by his racial experiment to establish the "missing link" in the origin of the human race, died of natural causes four months ago at Tashkentt.

Ivanov's colleagues in the Moscow Institute of Experimental biology, say that his attempt to produce the ape-man have been without success.

"It would have been a dead heat but Wesley had a cold and wasn't at his best."

BALL 'GUESTS' LOOT HOME

DENVER, Col., May 4.—(AP.)—All the peasant-garbed masqueraders who danced, 250 strong, at the Paul T. Mayo home here last Saturday did not come to contribute to the Katherine Mayo milk fund, which was the purpose of the ball.

Police had learned today that four or six of those who, disguised as Bavarian peasants, frolicked with the socially elite, made off with valuable cases, tables ornaments, a horse show trophy and an expensive bag containing valuable articles belonging to one of the legitimate guests.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 4.—(AP.)—Legislators yesterday voted themselves a 50 per cent advance on their 1934 salaries.

DEATH PLUNGE DENIED BY GIRL

WASHINTON, May 4.—(AP.)—Miss Varginia Morris, secretary to former Representative Bachman, of Wheeling, while he was in Congress, today wearily denied her death for the twentieth time in 24 hours.

Miss Morris now is secretary to Representative Kramer, of California.

PA. SWEATSHOP PROBE VOTED BY HOUSE

HARRISBURG, May 4.—The House today adopted the resolution of Representative Thomas J. Gallagher, of Pittsburgh, creating a commission to study child labor conditions in Pennsylvania, and calling on the Governor to include labor legislation in the call should he summon the Legislature in extra session.

Nine members would make up the commission, thre being Senators, three Representatives and three named by the Governor. A report is ordered at the next regular session.

Gallagher's resolution recited that children were being employed in Pennsylvania under "intolerable conditions" and were earning as little as $1 weekly.

Relief funds, it is alleged, are being used to "subsidize sweatshop conditions." With the passage of minimum wage legislation in New York, New Jersey and New Hampshire, Gallagher pointed out there was danger of an increase of sweatshops in Pennsylvania.

Await Girls' Charges Of Sweatshop Vice

By DOROTHY ROE
Universal Service.

NORTHAMPTON, Pa., May 4.—Three hundred child workers of Northampton joined the "baby strikers" of Allentown yesterday afternoon when they walked out of a shirt factory here in protest against starvation wages.

The children, ranging in ages from 14 to 16 years, marched away from their jobs after Allentown juvenile strikers picketed the plant for two hours, with cries of "Strike! Strike!"

The average wages of the children in the shop was from $3 to $4 a week. Some told of earning less than $1 a week, under the piece-work pay system by which Pennsylvania's new mushroom growth of sweatshops operate.

INQUIRY SESSION

In the meantime, Allentown's child strikers prepared to tell their stories of pitiable pay and illegal working hours to Gov. Pinchot's investigating committee, which opened a hearing today at the Allentown City Hall.

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the Governor, who has received a delegation of the child strikers at the Executive Mansion in Harrisburg, was among the spectators at today's investigation.

Miss Charlotte Carr, deputy secretary of the State Department of Labor and Industry and chairman of the Governor's sweatshop commission, will hold an additional hearing tonight, for girl workers only, at which a probe of reported immoral conditions in some of the factories will be investigated.

NEW RECRUITS JOIN

In preparation for their appearance before the commission, Allentown's child strikers held a mass meeting last night in St. Francis Hall, joined by the new recruits from Northampton.

Some 500 girls and boys, few over 16, cheered speakers of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, urging them to stand pat in their demands for bettert working conditions and higher wages.

The strike at one plant here was the second in that shop in the last few weeks.

The children walked out some six weeks ago after their employers had failed to pay them five weeks wages due.

TELL OF THREATS

They told of being threatened by a gun when they demanded their wages.

After legal complaints had been made against the owners, the back wages were paid and the children went back to work.

Owen Boyle, Allentown lawyer, who is representing several hundred child workers in their suits for back pay, said:

"The conditions which these children describe is almost unbelievable. They tell of being compelled to stay at work by the use of a hose. And as for their average wages of $3 and $4 a week—it takes that for me to feed my dog."

EXTRA SESSION OF ASSEMBLY PROBABLE

HARRISBURG, May 4.—(AP.)—The Legislature strove today to settle some of the disputes between the House, Senate and Governor before adjourning at noon tomorrow, the time agreed on by the Senate and sure of approval in the House.

Appropriations, unemployment relief, banking and public utility legislation, highway policies and state enonomies remained to be disposed of. The lawmakers agreed a special session wos unavoidable, but how soon it will be called will depend on the extent of the agreements arrived at before the hour for adjournment tomorrow.

TIME UNCERTAIN

Senators and Representatives differ widely on the time of the extra session. They believe it may come as early as next week or as late as next Januarp or April. They regard appropriations for state expenses and provisions of unemployment relief revenue as the deciding factors.

If an agreement is not reached on appropriations to run the government after June 1, an extra session immediately will be necessary.

Prior to adopting the adjournment resolution, the Senate forced into conference the Cordoni banking bills which increase the powers of the State Department of Banking and give additional safeguards to depositors and stockholders of banks. The Senate refusetd to accept House amendments which placed all private banks under state control and barred destrictel branch banking.

This was the legislative situation:

APPROPRIATIONS — Legislature and Governor deadlocked on bills providing $122,000,000 to run the state government after June 1 and $15,000,000 for state-aided hospitals, coleges and universities. A threatcned Pinchot veto would force a special session within a week or two if it materializes.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF—State's half of $90,000,000 program appropriated but $8,000,000 revelue not definitely provided and another $20,000,000 depending on voters' approval of a $25,000,000 bond issue next November.

HIGHWAYS—Pinchot's 53,000-mile rural road program killed and litle prospect of a compromise on the $17,891,000 Parkinson bill providing money for street and road work in cities, boroughs, towns and townships.

BANKING—Senate and House at odds over private bank regulation and restricted branch banking.

PUBLIC UTILITIES — Senate-House conferees working on McClure Senate bill which gives the Public Service Commission greater control over utility rates, securities, holding companies, reparations and appliance sales.

STATE ECONOMIES — House action awaited on Senate amendments to Turner bill, planned to save $6,000,000 by merging bureaus, reducing the number and salaries of deputies and eliminating duplicating agencies.

UTILITIES BILL IN CONFERENCE

HARRISBURG, May 4.—(AP.)—The Legislature yesterday sent to conference the McClure (Delaware) bill revising the Public Service Commission laws so that amendments suggested by Gov. Pinchot can be considered.

The House passed the measure, which proposes additional regulation of utility companies, and sent it to the Senate of concurrence. The Senate refused to accept the amendments. The House insisted and the measure goes to a conference committee.

The Governor, yesterday denied reports that he had threatened to veto the bill.

The Senate named Senators McClure, Ealy and Scott to represent it on the conference committee. Speaker Talbot named Representatives Turner, Perry and Craig as the House's committee members.

Governor Approves Beauty Parlor Code

HARRISBURG, May 4.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today signed the Steedle (House) bill providing for the regulation of beauty parlors and the examination and registration of beauty operators. The licensing power is given the Department of Public Instruction.

Laurel vs. Honeysuckle; Mrs. Pinchot to Decide

HARRISBURG, May 4.—(AP.)—Deep in mountain laurel and wild honeysuckle, the Governor of the Keystone State has turned to the woman of the house for an official flower.

Folks out beyond the Alleghenies want as the state flower the wild honeysuckle, which twines around memories of the old homestead and "stake and rider" fences along dusty roads.

The eastern deer and buckwheat country, over Stroudsburg way, having long celebrated the laurel, now offer to share that bloom with the Pennsylvania Germans mid-state as well as with the folks "out West."

Down through the winter of codes and unemployment relief and programs the Legislature heard now and then abut these flowers that bloom in the spring.

And since East is East and West is West even in Pennsylvania, and this is the only state without an official flower, the lawmakers approved both laurel and honeysuckle.

Other Legislatures had failed to pass bills naming state flowers.

This put the matter up to Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

The Governor asked Mrs. Pinchot's advice and Mrs. Pinchot says she hasn't made up her mind.

Road Survey Bill Reported to House

HARRISBURG, May 4.—(AP.)—The Gelder (Senate) bill proposing a commission to make a survey of all state roads, was reported for action in the House yesterday.

The Wasserman (House) bill requiring motorists to deposit a liability insurance policy or cash with the Department of Revenue as security for damages before motor vehicles are registered, also was reported.

Pinchot Signs Bill To Extradite Kamons

HARRISBURG, May 4.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot yesterday signed the Hutton (House) bill to permit the extradition of persons charged with murder who are serving less than life terms in state penitentiaries.

The measure was designed to allow extradition of Louis J. Kamons, now in the Western Penitentiary, to Cleveland, to stand trial in the death of 13 persons in an apartment house fire last June.

FAIL TO SOLVE 'BLACKHAND' MURDERS

The dread hand that has preyed on gardeners in the fashionable Sewickley district for four years remained hidden today as a Coroner's jury brought forth the usual verdict in the racket and black hand killings.

The jury found:

"Salvatore Curzio, 62, of Ferry street, Sewickley, died from shots from guns in the hands of a person or persons unknown."

Curzio was found shot to death in Hazel lane, Edgeworth, April 10. He was the fourth gardener to be killed in that vicinity in the last four years. Attempts to find the killers have been futile.

The jury recommended that the killers be apprehended and held for the grand jury on a charge of murder.

ARREST VOLPE IN RAID

Nathan Martin, brother of "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin, and Ralph Cerotti, 47, 603 Larimer avenue, were among the prisoners. They were held on suspicious person charges.

Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd, who headed the raiding squad, reported that today's sales records, seized along with adding machines, records and two revolvers, showed receipts totaling fi30,000. Boyd charged Volpe as heading the ring. The latter claimed he merely had visited the place and said another man was in charge of the rooms.

Detectives reported Hymie Martin drove a high-priced automobile with Illinois license plates from the scene shortly before the raid was staged.

The raid resulted in complaints filed by women residents of the neighborhood, Boyd said. Fear that gunplay mibht result from the gatherings and the weekly meetings on Thursdays, prompted the complaints, Boyd said. The women further claimed they were being subject to insults.

Detectives have had the rooms under surveillance a week, Boyd revealed. The surprise raid was withheld u ntil all the alleged leaders were present, h claimed. Cerotti, according to Boyd, is not a citizen.

Boyd said he believed the prisoners also headed the barber racket now prevailing in the city.

1933 MODELS

The machines are 1933 models, noiseless and streamlined, guaranteed to take the suckers' money with the least possible friction. They are painted attractively in yellow and red and are apparently all made on one design.

The old racket organization has been turned upside down again, according to well informed sources, and the business is now ruled by four chiefs. These leaders rule the slot machine activities in the district which includes Downtown and the hill, the North Side, the South Side and East Liberty.

These men are prominent politicians, it is declared.

Gone is the old organized power of the ward chairman who flourished under the Kline administration. Their influence has passed into other hands, it is believed.

Reports from all parts of the city show gambling devices prevalent in confectioneries, speakeasies, dance halls, barbecues and drug stores.

TEST FOR HERRON

The situation has reached a stage where it now represents a test of Mayor Herron's authority. His orders have gone out to curb the new machines. He has told Police Supt. Franklin D. McQuaide:

"There will be no racket overlords in Pittsburgh. If there are any new slot machines going out, I want some of them in the cellar right away."

The numbers racket was prominent in Morals Court testimony today, a policeman declaring pupils from four schools fed their pennies into numbers play operated in a confectionery in South Main street, West End.

2 HELD IN LOTTERY

Herman Dickson, 32, of 1545 Center avenue, alleged proprietor, and William Scott, 18, of 437 South Main street, a clerk, were held for court in $2,500 bail charged with operating a lottery.

Patrolman LeRoy Gibson said he raided the place last night after getting complaints from parents and purchasing a numbers ticket.

The Better Business Bureau through its manager, Reuel W. Elton, has called on individuals and firms to furnish information for a drive on the business racketeer.

Elton has declared that neither big business nor politics will persuade him to "pull his punches."

He pointed to millions of dollars taken annually here in fake charity schemes, false security flotations and confidence games.

What Are You Going To Do About It?

"Cape Cod fog," said yesterday's dispatches, "balk kidnap hunt on land and sea."

Nothing unusual in that. Merely a child, 10 years old, the daughter of well-to-do Americans, enticed from the school room, carried into captivity, and held for ransom by gangsters.

Just one more outrage in the daily life of a nation ridden by criminals and racketeers!

Nor was that one incident all. In Philadelphia, a bombing case. In Chicago, a bombing case. In New York, hi-jackers capture a truck load of legal beer. And so on—from city to city.

What are we going to do about it?

What are our public officials going to do about it?

What are YOU going to do about it, Mr. American citizen—YOU, whose lawful business may be the next one dynamited, or whose child the next one kidnaped?

HASSEL CLUES REVEALED

PHILADELPHIA, May 4.—(AP.)—Federal agents turned afield today in their search for clues to the slayers of Max Hassel, Reading beer baron, as well as for information concerning his alleged illicit activities and income tax liability.

Hassel's safety deposit boxes in Reading, several of which have been opened by court order, have produced no cash but contained information which led investigators to continue the quest for other boxes he may have leased under assumed names.

Hassel and an associate, Max Greenberg, of New York, were shot to death in an Elizabeth (N. J.) hotel. During their investigation, federal men found $214,000 in a safety deposit box Hassel had rented in Elizabeth.

Hassel's death started a federal inquiry into alleged racketeer control of breweries operating under government permit.

GANGSTER CHIEF SEIZED IN WAR

CHICAGO, May 4.—(INS.)—Gus Winkler, gunman and North Side gangster chief, was seized by police today as crime fighting forces waged bitter war against racketeering terrorists and bomb throwers on half a dozen fronts.

Winkler was questioned concerning any knowledge he might have of the seven bombings in the Chicago area since Monday and the new efforts of hoodlums to strengthen their grip on the labor unions.

New York Street Accidents Increase

NEW YORK.—(INS.)—Deaths in street accidents in New York showed a two per cent increase for March, 1933, over March, 1932.

Eighty-seven persons were killed in March of this year.

The "Good Old Days" Weren't Good Enough for Us!

At 19 one can't know everything. We're humble enough as a store not to pretend to. So it isn't surprising that when we went back to the files of our advertising in 1914 we learned plenty of things we didn't know. One was that today's regular prices everywhere are lower than the "good old days" of 1914. And like that wouldn't do for our Anniversary Sale, at all.

We've gone the "good old days" before the war one better! We've cracked today's markets an additional 10% to 25%. What does this mean to you? Just this: that you can buy exactly 2,027 items at Gimbels in May at prices that seem like we're giving them away. 2,027 convincing arguments that these, after all, are the "good old days" you've wished were back.

HYDE PARK

(A famous name!)

2 TROUSER SUITS

(Twice the wear!)

(Worth $25 and $30!)

18.50

We ran into the maker on the train to New York. "What's up" he asked. We told him we were after the most sensational clothing value ever offered at $18.50. We knew he wouldn't be interested. His clothes are $25 and $30. Until he sat straight up. "Listen," he said, "before you buy, see me!"

Next week we closed the deal that brought 1,000 famous Hyde Park suits to Pittsburgh. You know them. You've worn them. You've paid $25 and $30 for them. Beautiful all-wool fabrics: worsteds, tweeds, cheviots, twists and flannels—smart Spring chalk stripes, hound's tooth patterns, plaids and herringbones—all lined with silky celanese.

Regulars, shorts, stouts, longs and short stouts. Sizes 34 to 50.

Elephant Rack! Big hard-to-fit fellows, 46 to 50. There's a break for you! 18.50.

Lemon Rack! We had to take 'em, but you may like 'em. An added saving if you do! 13.50

See Us Prove Prices are Lower Than in 1914—When We Opened

The Crib We Sold in 1914 Is On Its Second Job!

Serving the second generation. And the salesperson who sold it to the young couple before the war is still on her first job (with Gimbels). She doesn't remember them because she's a little hazy as to just whom she sold back when the store opened. But we have it on good authority. The couple themselves were in Tuesday and told us!

Every day since our Anniversary Sale began we have had some such incident that brings out all over again how good things were that we sold when the store was opened. It wouldn't be fair to say the crib we're selling in this sale is better. But at 9.98 the couple themselves will testify the price is way, way lower than they paid in the "good old days" of 1914!

COUNTY SLEUTH GIVEN SECRET HEARING

Returning to their practice of conducting official business behind closed doors, the County Commissioners yesterday granted a private hearing to a county police officer called to explain why he made three informations against a motorist when, in the opinion of county officials, one information would have sufficed.

Controller Robert G. Woodside had called Commissioner C. M. Barr's attention to the three informations, which reached his office when the justice of the peace and constable requested payment for them. Payment was held up, in accordance with the county's policy against double fees.

When the policeman appeared for his quiz a representative of the controller's office, Barr and Commissioner C. C. McGovern were present. Barr discovered the officer was one of his own appointees, and he called him into a rear conference room.

The officer explained he believed he was doing his duty when he charged the motorist with passing an automobile at an intersection, passing an automobile when the left side of the road was not clear, and failure to possess an operator's license. The motorist was sent to jail for five days.

The Commissioners excused the officer without reprimand. Later they will discuss a definite policy on informations.

It was learned yesterday that at a closed meeting Saturday the Commissioners appointed Harry Kunde, of Wilkinsburg, as head of one of the county road maintenance divisions to replace Albert T. Lorch, Allison Park, who resigned several months ago. They also filled one of the five positions created in the bureau of elections for inspection of repair work on voting machines.

GOLFER TO WED DIVORCEE

DETROIT, May 4.—(AP.)—The engagement of Mrs. Dee Furey Mott, former wife of Charles S. Mott, vice president of General Motors Corp., and Lewis L. Bredin, former Michigan amateur golf champion and state commander-in-chief of the Crusaders, was announced here yesterday. The marriage will be the third for each.

Mrs. Mott was divorced from her first husband, W. Nicholson Furey, in May, 1926, and married Mott in March, 1929. They were divorced nine months later. She is the daughter of Mrs. P. C Peeble, of Toronto.

Bredin is a Yale graduate, and is president of a metal company in Detroit. He married Alice H. Herrick, of Stamwood, Conn., in 1917, was divorced in 1923, and married Mrs. Jospehine Jencks Hoggson, of New York, in 1928.

At the time of the Mott divorce it was indicated that a settlement of more than $2,000,000 was made for Mrs. Mott and a daughter by the former marriage.

TRELLIS WORK AIDS NEEDY

The residents of "Shantytown" have developed a new occupation that bids fair to become fairly profitable. Starting with the building of crates for the produce merchants in the vicinity these otherwise unemployed men have turned to making decorative garden trellis in different sizes and shapes. In fact, they will make them to order and up to date all that have been made have been readily sold just from display on the sidewalks in front of this unique community. Incidentally, Father Cox was re-elected Mayor of "Shantytown" last night for his third term.

In the meantime arrangements for the big food benefit show to be given at the Liberty Theater, East Liberty, Sunday for his unemployed and destitute families are well under way. It is to be an unusually big show and, considering the fact that his needs are more urgent than ever, Father Cox hopes that everyone who attends will show a liberal spirit in the donation of canned goods and standard package groceries to be presented at the door as "tickets."

Father Cox is still getting fine results in his drive for Sun-Telegraph subscriptions, the proceeds of which bring him a fine check every Saturday. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

Rogers Gives Radio Pay To Jobless

By AIRCASTER

Will Rogers, that drawlin' Oklahoma cowboy, will turn over the entire proceeds from his new KDKA broadcasts to the Red Cross and the Salvation Army to be used for unemployment relief, according to a wire received from the humorist yesterday by the two organizations. The text of the message follows:

"Here is how this rough and tumble broadcasting thing come about.

"The Gulf Oil Company kept wantin' me to litter up the microphone with some Oklahoma grammar. Now Amos 'n' Andy, Jack Pearl, Wynn, Vallee or Cantor have never had any cause to be jealous of me in their industry, but I did want to make a contribution to a couple of good causes that had done such fine work during our earthquake and I didn't have the dough to do it with, so Mrs. Rogers figgered it out, as she does most of the other things.

"She says, 'You got the wind to do it,' so she figgered out how I could do it with just talk—which I would be doin' for nothin' anyhow to anybody I could hem up and make listen to me.

"So I am to preach for seven Sundays and the Gulf Company is to take all the money and send half of it to the Red Cross and the other half to the Salvation Army, to be used for unemployment relief.

"I got nothin' to lose in the transaction but my voice and I never lost it yet. The only one I see can lose is the Gulf Company, that is if they don't sell enough gas to pay for the gas they bought from me.

"So soon as I get through they will mail your check. Don't thank me, thank the Gulf Company or better still thank the listeners. They will be the sufferers.

"Yours,
"WILL ROGERS."

Roxy Surprise

S. L. Rothafel, whom the customers know more familiarly as Roxy, was planning a big surprise for 12:15 p. m. Sunday.

He was plotting to sneak up on the audience and resume his old place as master of ceremonies for the Radio City presentation.

But it becomes the duty of a faithful reporter to tell the audience in advance of such things, though I am sorry to spoil Roxy's little surprise party.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

The McGrews of Crafton are chuckling about the Globetrotter's story of a would-be suicide who leaped off the Manchester Bridge into the Ohio River. The letter points out that the bridge is about 100 yards above the point. It does kind of look like that fellow was SOME jumper.

If, after housecleaning, you have discarded books and magazines to dispose of, Mrs. Herzog, of Castle Shannon, suggests that, you send them to the boys in the forest camps.

When Magistrate Thomas D. Jones delivered himself of that front-page blast against visiting orchestras he was speaking as a musician as well as a judge. Twenty years ago he played with the Pennsylvania State Band. Musicians say he is one of the best bass drummers in the business. He still plays with the Shrine Band. Can you imagine what he could do with that gavel if he wanted to let himself go?

Assistant District Attorney Meredith Reid, known to his courthouse intimates as Barney, was pacing nervously up and down the corridor. An important case was being considered; he was awaiting the decision. What! you never saw Barney nervous and pacing after any court battle? Well, this wasn't court. It was the Mercy Hospital. A lovely eight-pound daughter arrived. Congratulations.

IF INDIGESTION TORTURES YOU

"Having been a stomach sufferer for years, I decided to give ACIDINE a trial. Now all my old ailments have disappeared and my stomach is in fine shape." says Mr. H. T. Games of Merchantville, N. J. "You can use this letter in any manner you see fit. My only reason for writing you is that whenever I find a thing that is good, I feel it my duty to boost that article, and ACIDINE is good, believe me."

ACIDINE is the only known remedy which contains Japtase, that in laboratory tests digests 800 times its weight of certain heavy, starchy foods which cause trouble. It neutralizes burning acids, soothes irritated stomach linings, stops gassy headaches, sleepiessness and nervousness in acid conditions. ACIDINE also fortifies you against colds by reducing acidity.

Get ACIDINE today at your druggist. Watch how quick acid indigestion, burning stomach, belching, pain, heartburn, dizziness, fullness, short breath vanish. Eat, drink all you want. Maker refunds money if not delighted. For a free sample send your name and address to Acidine Sales Co., Dept. 85-D, 345 E. Illinois St., Chicago.

USE OF R. F. C. FUNDS HERE DEBATED

City and county authorities are giving consideration to the plan of Edgar J. Kaufmann, president of Kaufmann Department Stores, Inc., for the borrowing of Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds to build public improvements.

Mr. Kaufmann has urged that the authorities take action to get some of the R. F. C. funds to put men to work in the Pittsburgh district.

Following conferences with the County Commissioners, the Mayor and members of City Council yesterday, Mr. Kaufmann declined to comment on his plans, referring all questions to those with whom he had been in conference.

HERRON SEEKS SOLUTION

Mayor John S. Herron stated that the suggestions were aimed at solving the unemployment problem through the use of R. F. C. funds, that the meetings will continue and that he expects a definite program will be worked out for Council by Monday.

Commissioner Charles C. McGovern said last night that the County Commissioners are examining the legality of the plan proposed by Mr. Kaufmann for the formation of corporation to carry on improvements without reducing county borrowing power.

According to McGovern, such improvements must pay for themselves and must not be a burden on the taxpayers.

DELEGATE TO WASHINGTON

The Commissioners have determined to send someone to Washington to keep in touch with the possibilities for help which may arise there, McGovern said.

Although he would not say who will be the representative, it is reported that the responsibility will fall on James Rae, former president of the Pittsburgh Chamer of Commerce. It is also reported that Charles Haydock, Philadelphia engineer, is to draw the plans for a program representing approximately $20,500,000 in improvements.

Homestead Re-elects 107 of 130 Teachers

All but 23 of the 130 teachers employed in the Homestead schools were re-elected for next year, it was announced yesterday. At the same time it was announced that the school tax for next year will be 19 mills, one less than last year. The new budget provides an expenditure of $288,546, $97,000 less than last year.

Ambush Autoload Of Workers in Strike

TYNGSBORO, Mass., May 4.—(AP.)—An automobile carrying men described as substitute workers in strike-affected Lowell shoe factories was fired upon from ambush today and George A. Forrence, 22, of Hudson, N. H., was wounded.

SEEK RAILWAYS PACT RENEWAL

An ordinance extending for two years the present agreement between the city and the Pittsburgh Railways Company is to be introduced in Council, Monday.

Without the extension the agreement would expire February 1, 1934. It became effective in 1924.

Mayor John S. Herron, announced the extension plan yesterday after a conference in his office. It was attended by members of Council, Frank R. Phillips, president, and E. P. Griffith, counsel, of the Philadelphia Company; Charles A. Finley, of the Traction Conference Board, and W. A. Magee, counsel for the board.

'WALKING' PEAK NEARS RIVER

DURANGO, Col., May 4.—(INS.)—Carbon Mountain, Colorado's moving peak, was within 400 feet of the Anomas River today after a tremendous upheaval covering an era approximately that of 25 city blocks.

The side of the peak facing the river took the form of a sheer cliff, where formerly it was easy to ascend.

On the side away from the river a huge mass of rock poised ready to crash into a canon below.

NEW STUDIOS FOR 2 STATIONS

Construction of new studios for stations WJAS and KQV on the fourteenth floor of the Chamber of Commerce Building will begin immediately, according to an announcement today by Hugh J. Brennen, general manager of both stations. The combined studios will replace two separate units.

Facilities will include six large studios, two standby studios, two rehearsal rooms, a music library, rooms for program directors, continuity writers and offices.

Before plans were drawn for the new broadcasting rooms, a study was made of the outstanding studios of the country and the best technical advice was sought. Brennen, in making the announcement, said:

"We plan to have the finest studios between Philadelphia and Chicago. In these new rooms we will be able to handle every type of broadcast with ease and with the assurance that it will be of highest quality.

"Our primary reason for planning such a pretentious layout is that we desire to give local artists and talent the best broadcasting facilities obtainable."

PRIEST CAPTIVE IN CHURCH DISPUTE

PHILADELPHIA, May 4.—(AP)—A priest was held captive and a funeral party refused admission to a Roman Catholic Church today as the parishioners seized the structure, determined that it should not be closed.

Three priests obeyed their superiors' orders to leave last night, making their way from the rectory under a guard of 25 police, but one went back to get some belongings and was not allowed to depart again.

Fifteen hundred persons jammed the church, talking in hushed voices, mumbling their prayers, while overhead donged with a hollow thud the church bell, cracked by hours of incessant ringing.

Into the church wafted the constant hum of voices outside, voices which rose at times to a high pitch.

'MISUNDERSTANDING'

Officials of the archdiocese of Philadelphia explained that the vigil at the Church of Our Lady of Good Counsel, which started last night, was the result of a misunderstanding.

Its Italian communicants were protesting the transfer of their priests, members of the Augustinian order, to another part of the city. The secretary of Cardinal Dougherty said the transfer was made because the Italian population in South Philadelphia had shifted.

The Augustinian priests' father general in Rome had approved the move, he said.

The crowd, however, would have nothing to do with English-speaking priests, even barring the funeral party which came today.

Cheers rang out as the pallbearers backed from the church gates and sat the coffin on the sidewalk.

PRIEST IGNORED

The Rev. Simpliciano Gatt, an assistant rector, called from an upper window of the rectory where he was held prisoner, asking the crowd to permit the funeral to proceed. The undertaker made a similar plea.

Both were ignored.

Finally the funeral party moved on to another church. Police cleared the way, the processional band played a hymn as it turned a corner, and the militant parishioners cheered and applauded.

The parishioners had their own band, too. Refreshed by a few hours' sleep after playing all night, it struck up "Onward Christian Soldiers"—the favorite of the group—and followed it with the American and Italian national anthems.

Children at a nearby parochial school threatened to strike until their Augustinian priests were returned, but they resumed their classes after a 20-year-old girl had led in prayers.

Ouster Sought Over Vote Law Conviction

Quo warranto proceedings have been filed in Common Pleas Court by District Attorney Andrew T. Park against James W. Johnston, requiring him to prove his right to be a Ross Township commissioner. Hearing was set for May 15.

Washington County Forest Recruits Go

One hundred young men from Washington County left Pittsburgh over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad last night for Fort Howard, Md., to receive training before being sent to one of the national forest concentration camps. The contingent was the first to leave from Western Pennsylvania outside Allegheny County.

The United States Army recruiting staff which has been sitting in Pittsburgh went to Uniontown today to enlist men from that section. Tomorrow they will sit in Greensburg.

'Royal Scot' Stops May 20 on Way To Chicago

Pittsburghers will see a crack English express train when the Royal Scot stops here May 20, en route to the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago.

Brought to Canada by boat, the train will be open to public inspection here from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m., in Pennsylvania Station. It has eight cars, including first and third-class corridor brakes, first and third-class vestibule and corridor coaches, electric kitchen car and lounge car.

Special invitations will be extended to city officials and civic leaders and school children, it is expected, will be given an opportunity to inspect the train. The visit is the first exhibition of a complete British train in America. An engine and two coaches were exhibited at the World's Columbia Exposition, 40 years ago.

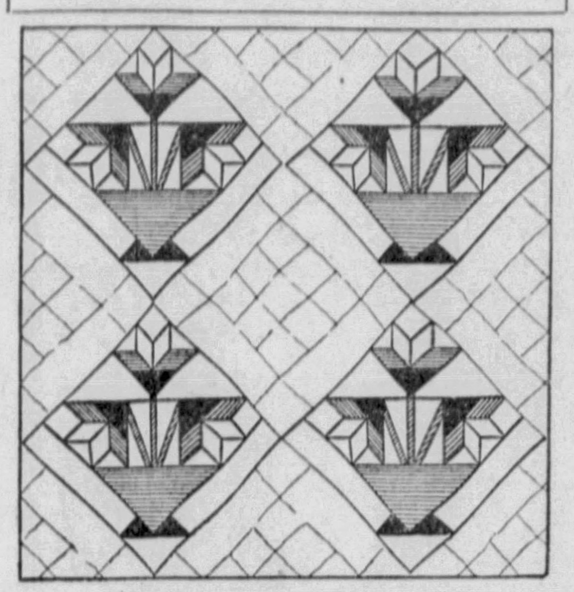
PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



Cactus Basket No. 426: By Laura Wheeler

Diamond patches make the flowers of this quaint quilt basket. The cactus basket varies from the usual patchwork block in giving a pictorial pattern, though carried out in patchwork, deviating in this only in the stems which are appliqued to the center oblong patch.

The pattern comes to you with complete simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for a pattern for this design to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Science Is Advancing in War On Dreaded Cancer

At a recent meeting of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, held at the New York Academy of Medicine, announcement was made of successful studies made in cancer. Though the cause of this disease has not been found, much is being learned that benefits the victim of this dreaded disease. Dr. James Ewing, one of the directors of cancer research, announced at this meeting that the results obtained from the experimental production of cancer in animals show that this disease may come from many different causes. Certain conditions lead to cancer and produce the various forms of the disease. This eminent authority stated that gratifying advancement in the knowledge and treatment of cancer has taken place in the past 25 years.

Dr. Copeland

No one will deny that the outlook for the cancer patient is greatly improved. But there are still too many victims of this disease who suffer untold agony because of ignorance, fear and hesitancy to accept the treatment offered by modern science.

Many sufferers from cancer turn to unreliable methods of treatment because they fear operation. It is unfortunate that fear of the knife still exists. All the authorities, all the leading specialists in cancer, agree that early recognition of this disease and its prompt and thorough removal by surgery, are at present our most reliable means of combatting this disease. Relief from the spread of the cancer cells is possible, too, by the use of the X-ray, radium and other methods of control.

I must warn you against the neglect of certain warning signs. Persistent indigestion, constant bleeding or discharge from any part of the body, vague and continued pain, loss of weight, and general poor health, are symptoms that must not be neglected. Cancer should be suspected if no more definite cause can be determined. In any event, neglect is dangerous.

Bear in mind that the greatest danger of cancer is lack of proper treatment.

Loved ones need you!

—you dare not fail them

"I am so glad you are yourself again"

IS YOUR appetite poor? If you tire easily what does it mean? . . . and how can you correct it? Do you lack resistance to infectious diseases—pimples and boils . . . what does this indicate?

These are symptoms which often harass rundown, anemic persons. It is in these complaints that S.S.S. is very useful.

Modern medical research stresses the need of building up, frequently, the blood's red-cells and their hemo-glo-bin (skin and tissue purifier) content. The reason of this is that hemo-glo-bin carries oxygen from the lungs to all parts of the body—even to the skin.

Don't take chances. Infectious diseases strike without warning. Loved ones need you! You dare not fail them. Keep up your strength and resistance thru the blood.

S.S.S. is a proven Tonic . . . by experience for over 100 years . . . by modern medical research.

HARRIS' 26th ANNIVERSARY

OPEN TILL 6:30 ALL THIS WEEK

IT OPENS TOMORROW!

Never in the Memory of our Oldest Customers Have the Values in Our Anniversary Sales Been as Startling as These!

In 1907 . . . .

when this store was founded, a Roosevelt used the Big Stick. In 1933, Twenty-sixth Anniversary of the founding, another Roosevelt is using the same Big Stick. Inflation, in some form or another, is DECREED by F. D. R. It means higher prices. In this Anniversary, therefore, you save twice—save far more than in other years. We bought BEFORE "inflation." On almost every item in this sale, prices have jumped tremendously since our purchases were made. Yet our sale prices are LOWER, for comparable quality, than at any time in the entire DEflationary period, lower in many cases than in 1907! Compare them with others ANYWHERE in Pittsburgh. At 9 o'clock tomorrow, we welcome you to huge excitement. Read this and marvel.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

The Wise Virgin

My voice, a whisper soft and low,
My eyes cast down upon the grass.
On quiet feet I come and go
As does become a modest lass.

My hair is sleek upon my brow,
My nose unpowdered as can be.
Such is the person I am now,
A meekly hesitating me.

Until the promise of that hour
When priest and bell have done their stuff,
I'll be a dewy country flower,
Is that, my lord, not long enough?

—Elspeth.

Ouch!

This one on Mike Romanoff, the pretender, comes from James Glaccum. He reports that Mike, before his confinement (in jail), went to a smart boot shop here and after dozens of minutes trying on shoes, Mike worked himself up into a lather because the clerk was bored with him.

"I presume," Romanoff presumed, "that you have no ideah who I happen to be?"

The clerk confessed that he hadn't the slightest idea.

"I am Romanoff," said Mike stiffly.

"You don't say!" exclaimed the clerk. "Not the guy who plays fiddle for Eddie Cantor?"

Nonsense

Mack Gordon, the songwriter of hits, has his insane moments. He can make up sentences of popular songs with names of places like this: Passaic Isn't So? . . . China, China Harvest Moon . . . Albany, Why Not Take Albany? . . . Akron Give You Anything But Love—Baybee! . . . Georgia Cream In My Coffee . . . Venice Sleepy Time Down South.

Lew Brown's with the name of Huey Long is my favorite, however. "Button Up Your Overcoat—Huey Long To Me!"

Gosh, Yes!

The other night Izzy Elinson was telling his girl about President's Day. He explained that it wasn't really a legal holiday, but more like a Mother's Day or a Father's Day.

"Gee," replied the future Mrs. Izzy, "what is Mr. Roosevelt going to do with all those ties everybody must have sent him?"

Hic Town Stuff

This column can't look at a saxophone without thinking what a swell brass rail they could have made instead.

Constructive Criticism

Among our most amusing blunders was the one that we raced into print with in 1925. We put Paris on the French waterfront. We recall trying to bluff our way out of it by saying that Shakespeare had put the seacoast of Bohemia on the map, so why couldn't we geograph a little?

The heartiest laugh-provoker, however, which must have comforted producers, managers and actors, was the dunce declaration of a former sports writer who became a dramatic critic for a brief while. In covering a play by Strindberg (who must have had a spasm in his tomb) the bewildered drama defender reported:

"There is a chance, however, to save the play. If Mr. Strindberg will hurry and rewrite the last act—the show might have a chance."

The next day the new critic discovered the author had died almost a century before, which was the best revenge any author might have against any critic.

Beachcomber Role for S. Tracy

By HARRISON CARROLL.

HOLLYWOOD, May 4.—The screen gangster is being driven abroad for his location. On May 25 production is expected to begin at Fox Hills on "Shanghai Madness," the story of an American beachcomber-racketeer who tangles with the law in the Paris of the Orient.

The roustabout hero will be Spencer Tracy, who gets star billing in this new picture. The Frederick Hazlitt Brennan story will be directed by John Blystone, who is now putting the finishing touches to Lilian Harvey's "My Lips Betray."

Tracy at present is ending his work in "The Power and the Glory," the picture for which Fox borrowed Colleen Moore from M-G-M.

Dancers to Gus Arnheim's music are laughing at the story of the celebrant of new beer's day who teetered out of the Beverly Wilshire gold room in an overloaded condition to get his hat and go home. He asked the head waiter where the checkroom was.

"Just around the corner," said the man.

"Lilssen, fellow," the beer-drinker said with dignity, "at a time like this, did I ask for a Republican campaign speech?"

Although the western film is reported in disrepute with the exhibitions, Universal carries on with hoof symphonies. They have signed Buck Jones to make a serial, "Gordon of Ghost City," screen version of Peter B. Kyne's story, "Oh, Promise Me." This is not the gangster play, "Oh, Promise Me," which Universal still has on the shelf.

Unable to wait until it comes to Hollywood, film folk have been sneaking advance peeps at the circus. Mary Pickford was interested in one of the elephant act girl-performers. Marlene Dietrich and Joseph Von Sternberg caught one of the shows. You should have seen her two guards cutting a way out through the crowds... Mae West took it big by coming in just as the grand parade entered.

Playwrights A-Plenty Here, Also Young Actors With Talent

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Leo A. Levy's prophetic comedy, "It Happened Tomorrow," which was to have opened on Broadway Tuesday evening, has been postponed to Friday because of a change in the cast. It will be in the Ritz Theater, one of New York's newer and classier playhouses. The many friends of this young Pittsburgh attorney, who is one of the directors of the Drama League, will watch with interest the news from the Rialto.

Mr. Seibel

The annual contest of the Drama League, which took place at the I. K. S. Theater last week, brought home to many people the fact that we have a number of very promising young playwrights in Pittsburgh. Five of the 16 plays presented were original scripts by local writer, and all were surprisingly good.

The play which won the first prize for the I. K. S. Players, a one-act farce of broad humor by George S. Kaufmann, was called "Prom Night," and was one of these original plays.

This George S. Kaufmann—who spells his name with two n's, while the other George S. Kaufman uses only one—is the son of William G. Kaufmann, once Pittsburgh's leading dramatic critic. William G. was also ambitious as a playwright, and I have seen the script of a border drama based on Cooper's "Leatherstocking" and intended for James K. Hackett.

Theatrical blood is a viscous fluid—some might say "vicious"—and can't be easily diluted or diverted.

FOUR MORE OF THEM

Of the four other plays by Pittsburgh writers, "Incidental Music," by Helen H. Mason, is a wise and witty bit of persiflage in the Noel Coward vein—and was just the thing for Frances Heckert, the smoothest and most finished actress of all four evenings. Maybe in years to come, who knows, Miss Mason will have become our Rachel Crothers and Miss Heckert our Lynn Fontanne!

Another Pittsburgh play, "A Visit to Lorenzo," by Beatrice Lewis, showed a fine historic sense and a poetic spirit, and Mortimer Drake had some good moments as Fra Girolamo Savonarola. Another Pittsburgh play, Ray Hurd's "Sing, You Sinner," acted an amusing anecdote of choirboys somewhat less than angelic, and gave Jack Sloan a chance to twinkle as a little star. Maybe we'll see him and Lenore Malakoff, who played Belinda in "The Slippers of Cinderella," acting together as Beatrice and Benedick when they grow up.

SOME OTHER STARS

The fifth Pittsburgh play, "Design," by George M. P. Baird, according to candid and cordial reports, was a pointed satire, giving Walter Framer and Hannah Golding special opportunities to distinguish themselves. Which brings up the merits of the actors. Among the best in the 16 casts were Madeline Skelly Foust, Lutie Tylor Moore, Winifred Johnson, Josephine Allen, Arthur Dimling, Joseph O'Brien, Mrs. Q. V. Hershey, Jack O'Toole, C. Hays Long, Sara Ochiltree and Albert N. Morris. There were others too hard to disentangle in restrospect; some casts had several excellent players. But 16 dramas leave you gasping for air. It was hard to decide which was the more encouraging—the abundance of good acting ability or the prolific inspiration of our new playwrights.

David Belasco once said it was unwise to praise amateur acting organizations, as it turned their heads until these play-acting actors think they can act. Maybe David would have discouraged his biblical namesake who thought he could hurl stones with his sling and brandish a sword. If so, Goliath might still be alive. Let's have plenty of Davids—Davids who will dredge the brooks for smooth stones rather than Davids who dredge the dictionary for discouraging phrases.

Jumper

Warner Revue May 21

Warner Brothers annual "Pittsburgh on Parade," musical production composed entirely of Pittsburgh talent, will be held for one night only this year, in the Stanley, Sunday night, May 21.

The production is under the direction of William Scott. Costumes, scenery and music are now being prepared at Warner Brothers production studios in New York.

Eliminations are now being held in each of Warner Brothers neighborhood theaters. The finals are to be held in a theater yet to be named.

"Pittsburgh on Parade," after playing one night in the Stanley, is to be renamed and it will tour every Warner Theater in the Pittsburgh territory, which comprises 70 houses. The second title will be "Warner Brothers' Juvenile Follies."

Garbo Finds Changed Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, May 4.—(AP.)—A not-so-silent Garbo is back in a land of celluloid that acclaimed her its queen not so long ago. But the old place has changed.

Queen of all she surveyed when she left eight months ago, Greta comes back to a town in which many things have been happening. Many of these events have had no effect upon her personally, because she was among the missing during all the excitement.

What she would have said had she, like other stars, been asked to contribute half her earnings to her studio, or exactly what form her famous silence would have taken, must remain one of the innumerable Garbo mysteries.

Pitt to Show Tech Play

Carnegie Tech Bacchanalians, student organization of the Schenley Park institution of learning, will give their second annual production, "Over the Coals," in the Pitt Theater, next Friday, May 12. "Over the Coals" is a musical production, termed a satirical revue.

The entire production is a student venture. The directors are Franklin M. Heller, Herman Liveright and William Beal, of the department of drama. Another drama student, William Bales, directs the dancing. John Dippold, Chauncey Kelly and George Youngling, music students, are in charge of the tunes.

All in a Day

The Way Things Happen.

CONSIDER THE CASE of Black and Black, vaudeville artists de luxe. If you're a vaudeville fan, you've probably seen them on various occasions—and, of course, under a different name. It wasn't a bad act, but it wasn't a riot either. Just one of those pleasant little things that you vaguely remember having seen before.

Black and Black were man and wife. It wasn't generally known around because Mr. Black always said it wouldn't do them any good professionally. What he really meant was that it wouldn't do him any good with the other ladies who might be on the bill.

Said wife was a cute little trick, with many dimples. Said husband was a tall gentleman, with many pimples. They had been married about six years and, while they had never received a bid for a command performance before the King and Queen of England, they managed to eat, sleep and save a little dough every now and then.

All of which was just about the size of the situation when they were booked into Loew's State Theater here in New York about a year and a half ago. They played three days, attended two parties and were enjoying the engagement. That is, Mr. Black was enjoying it until his wife raced into his dressing room one afternoon with the big news.

"Oh, Charles," she cried. "You'll never guess what has happened! You'll never, never, never guess!"

Mr. Black gave his wife one of those married-for-six-years looks.

"All right," he growled. "So I can't guess. What am I supposed to do about it?"

His wife walked over, kissed him and sat upon his lap. Mr. Brown grew nervous.

"It was only a week ago," he muttered, "that you bought a new dress and two hats. If you think we're made of money, you——"

She interrupted him with another kiss, which made Mr. Black more uneasy than ever.

"I don't want anything, darling," she cried happily. "It's just the news I've had that makes me so happy. And I'll bet you're going to be just as happy. Listen, dearest. I'm going to have a screen test."

"What's that?" queried her husband. "You—a screen test?"

His wife removed her coat and fluttered around the room.

"That's right," she went on. "You remember that party the other night at B——'s house? Well, there was a man there from the Paramount organization. Remember him? He's sort of cute, with a little black mustache and everything.

"Well, he sort of liked me right away. My appearance, I mean. He said he thought that I'd screen wonderfully and that he was willing for me to have the opportunity. I thought he was kidding, so I didn't say anything to you about it. But I went to see him today right after the first show, and he hadn't forgotten!

"Everything is arranged for next Friday morning. I have a little scene that I'm going to do—and you'll help me by playing straight, of course. Just imagine if it turns out well, darling. Me, a screen star! Isn't it just too wonderful?"

Mr. Black promptly applied the blanket treatment.

"Wonderful, nothing," he asserted harshly. "Do you think I'm a complete fool? You're not making any screen test. I don't think you'd get anywhere—but if a little guy with a mustache gets stuck on you, anything is liable to happen. And suppose you did get one of those phoney contracts on the Coast—well, what would happen to me?

"You don't think for one second, do you, that I'm gonna be one of those 'excess baggage' kind of husbands? If you do, your goofier than I thought. I just bought new stuff for this act, and that's the stuff we're gonna use for a long time. You're sticking with me.

"The sooner you get that test business idea out of your noodle, the better off we'll both be. And if that guy with the mustache turns up around here, not only will I let him know that you're my wife—but I'll pop him right on the beezer. Now forget it."

No use continuing along these lines. All I have to tell you is that Mrs. Black wept so copiously and so long that her husband finally grew nervous.

And when Friday morning rolled around, not only was she in the studio to make her test—but Mr. Black was there to play straight for her. She had simply applied the hysterical treatment. This treatment was invented by Eve and has been used by wives ever since . . .

Although Mr. Black was present, however, they tell me he was as nasty a straight man as ever tried to kill a partner's lines.

"I'm crazy to do this," he kept muttering as he struggled into the tuxedo he was to wear in the scene. "I'm absolutely crazy. Here I save for years and years to get us somewhere on the vaudeville stage—and now what happens? I wind up as a stoogie for my wife!"

Mrs. Black was duly sympathetic. She figured it was best to be so—at least until the test was completed.

"Don't be a silly boy, Charles," she cooed. "You're being no such thing. You're just being very wonderful to your little wife who loves you.

"Just think, honey. If this test goes well, we'll have all the things we've always dreamed about. We'll have our little home in Hollywood and we can have as many parties as we wish. Oh, it will be just too grand!"

Mr. Black grunted.

"If you don't stop that hooey," he said, "you'll have me goofy, too. You're not going any place in pictures, and I'm just agreeing to this test to show you what a dope you've been. Come on. Slap some more of that paint on your kisser and let's get it over with."

And that's how the test was made. Mrs. Black was very coy and very sweet and very clinging, but Mr. Black refused to play his scene as it had been written for him. He was sore about the whole thing and he made no effort to hide it.

When the test was completed and they left the studio, his wife was on the verge of tears.

"I know I was all right," she murmured. "I just know it. But you—you were terrible. You growled every line you had. How was I supposed to be at my best when, even while I was making love to you, you were growling at me?

"It's a shame, that's what it is. If nothing comes of this test, I can blame you for it. My one big chance, and you did your best to ruin it for me."

Mr. Black nodded.

"Fine," he observed calmly. "The quicker you get over this thing, the better. You and I were cut out to be a vaudeville team, and you've got no right to fool around anything else. Stick in your own territory; that's my motto. And from now on, let it be your's too."

That's all there is to the story. With the exception of the fact that the vaudeville team of Black and Black is a thing of the past. For Mr. Black is now a celebrated gangster hero on the screen, and his wife has retired from the stage.

That test did the trick.

Plays and Players -:- By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

All of the five dames in "Pigeons and People," the George M. Cohen comedy coming to the Nixon next week for all of the nights and the customary mats., are "leading women." Furthermore we have the word of Mr. Charles Washburn, who, besides being a pal of Quin Hall, is Mr. Cohan's avant courier, that they are beauts, chosen especially for their particular kind of charm. In the blonde category is Olive Reeves-Smith, whose pappy is the well known H. Reeves-Smith of the movies and stage. Contrasted with her is Lucille Sears, niece of Zelda Sears, the playwright, with tresses dark. Alna Alba, another blonde lassie, Janet Rathbun, who also is fair, and brown-haired Eleanor Audley complete the feminine "people," or would they be the "pigeons?" Seats for Mr. Cohan's new, new play are obtainable at the box office now.

JAPS PREPARE NEW DRIVE

PEIPING, May 4.—(INS.)—The Japanese forces in North China "are on the verge" of another drive to the South, a spokesman of the Japanese Legation told International News Service today.

He said the objectives of the drive would be Shih-hsia and Miyun, the bases of the Second and Forthy-fourth divisions of the Chinese Nationalist army, defending the roads to Peiping and Tientsin.

These troops, the spokesman declared, must be smashed by Japan. He added there would be no further announcement prior to launching the large scale attack, scheduled to take place just north of Peiping, where many American and British interests are situated.

COYNE 'CZAR,' SAYS SHOUP

Blaming Senator James J. Coyne for the defeat of legislation in which the Allied Boards of Trade of Allegheny County have been interested, C. V. Shoup, secretary of the organization, said today Senator Coyne "has set himself up as the absolute czar of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County."

He said:

"The only relief that can be secured is at the polls. It seems that the time has arrived for all those citizens of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County interested to take government out of the hands of Senator Coyne, the self-appointed dictator, and return it to the people from where it has been taken."

Wealthy Recluse's Strange Funeral In Second Day

LOS ANGELES, May 4.—(INS.)—The strange 3-day funeral of Miss Margaret Keith, 60, recluse millionaire who committed suicide, was in its second day today.

Complying with one of the bizarre requests of "the mysterious rich woman with the unseen face," a symphony orchestra of 20 pieces was playing soft music at the mortuary.

The musicians were not allowed to glimpse the body, however, as another request of Miss Keith had been that "I didn't care to be exhibit A in life, and I don't care to be gaped at when I'm dead."

MOTHER SAVES GIRL IN FIRE

Aroused from her sleep by a neighbor woman, Mrs. Herbert Hudnall today fled from her burning home, 7230 Raymond street, Swissvale, followed by two pet dogs that later dashed back into the structure and perished.

Two canaries and seven baby chicks also perished.

Mrs. Edith Gibson, 7232 Raymond street, carried her ill 2-year-old daughter, Winifred, from their home as she discovered the fire spreading between the two houses. She then aroused Mrs. Hudnall, whose house was burning. The one-story frame cottage occupied by the Hudnall family, was damaged 3,000, while the Gibson house was damaged 1,000.

Coyne Strategy Mars Registration Bill

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, May 4. — The bill for permanent registration in Pittsburgh has encountered such difficulties that even if it is passed Gov. Pinchot may be asked to veto it by those who were most active in forwarding the new system of putting voters on the list.

Mr. Shields

Senator Frank J. Harris sponsored the measure as it was introduced and as it passed the Senate. The bill ran into heavy weather in the House Committee on Elections, one of the most hard-boiled committees of the legislature. Amendments were put in, but Senator Harris thought they were all right.

So did Senator William D. Mansfield until he had an opportunity to read the bill in its amended form. He has changed his mind.

Alexander P. Lindsay, chairman of the Allegheny County section of the Pennsylvania Elections Association, has all the time been suspicious of the amendments, as have the members of the Pittsburgh Registration Commission. Common Pleas Court Judge Ralph Smith also has been skeptical about the bill.

As it now stands, little is left except the rounded outline of permanent registration and there are features in the measure which are totally unsatisfactory to those who have been boosting the project as a step forward in clean elections.

Coyne Maneuvers House Committee

It begins to appear that Senator James J. Coyne, who controls the House committee, has outslicked the reform element which was concerned about alterations in the manner of registration.

As a matter of fact, the House committee never did meet to insert the new amendments which have rendered the bill futile in the view of vote reformers. Representatives Joseph G. Steedle and George Metzger, a pair of Coyne followers, took charge of affairs and were given full authority by the House committee.

The bill as brought to the floor of the House yesterday was theirs and theirs alone.

While the bill has been under consideration by these two gentlemen, Harris has insisted that everything was all right. Mansfield, who says he got his information from Harris, was for it until the printed form of the amended measure emerged. Then he switched completely.

Lindsay arrived in Harrisburg yesterday with suspicion in his mind. He was justified, and he and Harris soon tangled on the subject. The cost of putting the scheme into effect is not important. It will involve an initial cost under any circumstances, but there is general agreement that this cost can be justified if there is promise of a sensible permanent registration bill.

Made Into Perfect Machine Measure

That is what Pittsburgh does not have up for final action in the House. The bill has been whipped about until it is a perfect machine measure. Senator Harris has been giving his thought to old age pensions, minimum wage legislation and other things, and while his back was turned the Coyne boys have slipped a few across.

Harris says he urged Lindsay and others to interest themselves earlier, but the Pittsburgh attorney and his associates contend they were relying on Harris' assurances that the bill was all right.

Further amendments have been prepared which Harris will offer when the bill comes from the House back to the Senate, where it originated. A conference committee will be named to consider the subjects in controversy.

It is unquestioned that these amendments will not be readily received, and it is better than an even bet that this Legislature will adjourn without any workable permanent registration bill for Pittsburgh.

The subject has split the independent and reform elements of the Republican party, it appears to an observer in Harrisburg. There is an appearance of bitter feeling, and an attempt to shift the blame.

The man on the side lines is entitled to the opinion that the bill has been kicked about until the closing hours of the session, kicked about to such an extent that its passage is doubtful if under any conditions, and if passed there is more than a probability that Gov. Pinchot will be asked to veto it.

Where the burden of blame is to be placed, among independents is something that independents will fight out among themselves. Senator Coyne appears to be well pleased.

3 MAUG 'CLUES' FAIL TO LAND FUGITIVE

Chase to Brentwood Made on Latest Tip In Fugitive Hunt

City and County detectives today were "mired" in their search for John Maug and Edward Turpack, convicts, who escaped from Western Penitentiary last week. Three different tips were run down and proved unfounded.

Two men answering the description of the fugitives were seen leaving the Dimple farm in Glass Run road, near Brentwood, early today. After investigating the report, county detectives discredited it.

City detectives today also expressed doubt that a man held in jail at Moundsville, W. Va., was Maug, after learning the prisoner there has a slight deformity on one of his fingers. Maug hasn't.

Armed with riot guns and tear gas, several city detectives and Chester Zygello, chief of police of Sharpsburg, surrounded a house in the Boulevard of the Allies near Gist street, early today.

Zygello, who was instrumental in rounding up the Maug mob, prior to their conviction in Criminal Court, told detectives Turpack had once lived in the boulevard. No trace of the fugitives was found.

URGE GOLF FEE COMPROMISE

Compromise in the county park golf fee controversy, was urged today by the Building Owners and Managers Association.

J. W. Bamford, chairman of the executive committee of the association, said that at a conference with the county commissioners tomorrow, he would urge them to rescind the recent boost in the fee from $10 to $20. Bamford recommends that $10 a year be charged for golfing in one park only and $20 for the right to play in both.

Bamford said:

"Unless the fee for one park is reduced the county will lose a lot of money. Unless the county can make enough to pay maintenance costs, our association will ask that golfing in the county parks be abolished."

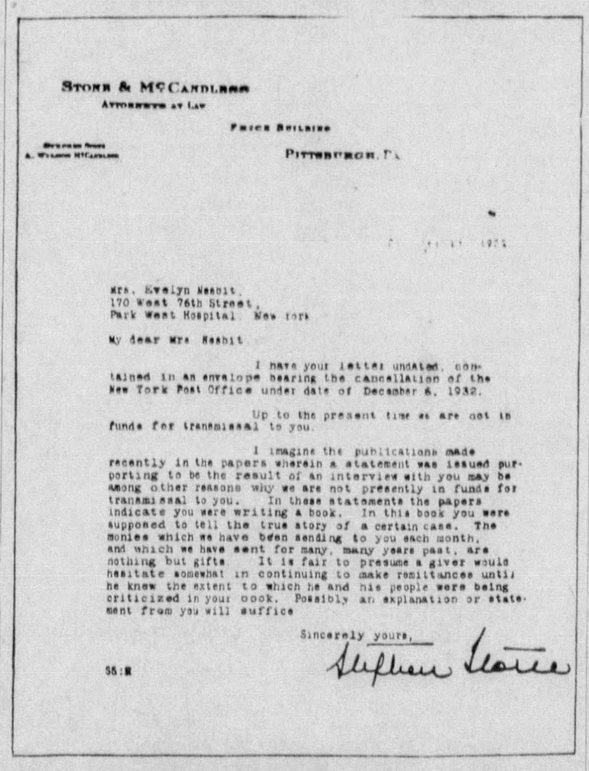
ANNEXATION UP TO BOARD

The Board of Public Education is being consulted by City Council as to the advisability of annexing Mifflin Township to the city.

Council yesterday heard an annexation plea from a group of the township's residents, represented by Carl F. Decker, but gave no indication of being interested.

The request was referred to the school board after Councilman Robert Garland pointed out the board's interest in it was as great as Council's.

A LETTER TO EVELYN



STONE & McCANDLESS
PRICE BUILDING
PITTSBURGH, PA.

Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit,
170 West 76th Street,
Park West Hospital, New York

My dear Mrs Nesbit

I have your letter undated, contained in an envelope bearing the cancellation of the New York Post Office under date of December 6, 1932.

Up to the present time we are not in funds for transmissal to you.

I imagine the publications made recently in the papers wherein a statement was issued purporting to be the result of an interview with you may be among other reasons why we are not presently in funds for transmissal to you. In these statements the papers indicate you were writing a book. In this book you were supposed to tell the true story of a certain case. The monies which we have been sending to you each month, and which we have sent for many, many years past, are nothing but gifts. It is fair to presume a giver would hesitate somewhat in continuing to make remittances until he knew the extent to which he and his people were being criticized in your book. Possibly an explanation or statement from you will suffice

Sincerely yours,
Stephen Stone

SS:R

HE LETTER WRITTEN BY ATTORNEY STONE OF PITTSBURGH

This is the letter Attorney Stephen Stone of Pittsburgh, counsel for Harry Thaw, wrote to Evelyn Nesbit, who interpreted it as a warning that Thaw "gifts" of money to her would stop if her story, starting in today's Sun-Telegraph, dealth too freely with certain incidents. The gifts have, as Evelyn thought, stopped.

the facts. And let me begin by saying that I never loved Harry Thaw; that Stanford White, one of the truly great geniuses of all history, was the love of my life, and that, although Harry Thaw was saved from the electric chair by what the jury was told was a "momentary aberration" caused when learned of my affair with Stanford White, Harry Thaw knew about Stanford White and me before Harry Thaw ever met me, Evelyn Nesbit!

Never has there been so cruel and unnecessary a killing. For several years Thaw had waited for the psychological moment.

In a small way the world now knows Thaw. The world never had a chance really to know Stanford White. But I knew him—knew him and Thaw, regardless of what the world thinks.

Two recollections, incredibly dissimilar, remain in my mind to stamp the two—the first time I was alone with the gentle, considerate White, then the appalling night in a castle Thaw had rented in the Austrian Tyrol.

I was in the chorus of "Floradora." On this night Stanford White sent a cab for me with a note instructing me to drive to the "Twenty-fourth street place."

I knew where he meant, of course. I had been there before when others were present.

No other guests were present when I arrived. We had supper, Stanford and I. I drank champagne. After supper Stanford White took me through the whole place, and for the first time I saw the famous "mirror room"—a small room, about 12 feet square. The walls and ceilings were covered with mirrors, the floor with imitation grass.

The lights were concealed so that only a soft glow permeated the room. At one side was a large moss-green velvet-covered couch which seemed unusually big in such a small room. I sat down on the couch sipping the wine and thrilled with the numberless reflections of myself in every direction.

He told me I belonged to him. Stanford White was always most considerate.

In bitter contrast was my experience two years later with Harry Thaw.

My mother and I had gone to Europe, madly pursued by Thaw. After weeks in Paris, during which I was trying to recuperate from an appendicitis operation, Harry promoted a quarrel between my mother and myself, sent her to London and asked me to "see Europe" with him.

We arrived at Meran, in the Austrian Tyrol. Instead of going to the best hotel, as usual, we drove to the foot of a mountain and stopped at a foot path. Smilingly, Thaw alighted and put out his arms and lifted me from the open carriage saying:

"Do you think you are strong enough to walk up this mountain path?"

Somewhat perplexed, I asked:

"How far is it? Where on earth are we going?"

Harry explained:

"I have rented a castle—the Schloss Katzenstein."

Slowly we made our way up the mountainside. A porter, Thaw said, would bring our luggage.

The castle was small but beautiful, romantic-looking. From the windows the view was magnificent, and when a violent storm arose the effect was thrilling. I could see great zigzags of lightning striking on the opposite mountain. The thunderbolts and reverberations were terrifying but thrilling. Once I saw an incredibly beautiful rainbow in the distance. Yet my experiences here were to be anything but beautiful.

I had a room to myself with a small bed set in a corner. One evening after dinner I retired rather early and fell into a sound sleep.

Suddenly I awakened. There stood Thaw.

"Keep quiet!" he hissed. "Keep quiet!"

Then there came the lash of a dog whip! It is really difficult to describe this experience. It was like nothing human. It was an incredible horror, a living nightmare.

"Don't move," he said. "Stay there. Don't you 'are leave."

In fear and trembling I lay there, afraid that if I attempted to call for help out the window he might come back and repeat the horror. But he disappeared.

A few minutes later he returned.

"I'm sorry," he said. "But I had to do it."

Tears streamed down my face.

"Why?" I sobbed. "Why, why have you done this awful thing to me?"

"Because you are so impudent," he said. "I had to punish you."

For one whole week I lay in bed suffering torment and weeping bitterly. My heart was broken. It was like a terrible nightmare. That such a thing could have happened to me! To me, the petted, spoiled darling of Broadway! It was unbelievable. All I could think of was escape, but Thaw watched me as a cat watches a mouse.

Harry Thaw loved to think of himself as a prince. He used to tell me, when I refused to marry him, that if this country were a monarchy he would be the "Prince of Pittsburgh." I suppose he would be, but God knows that wouldn't make it any easier for the "princess."

EVELYN BREAKS WITH THAWS

By GEORGE BUCHANAN FIFE.

(Copyright, 1933, Universal Service, Inc.)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 4.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, divorced wife of Harry K. Thaw, today revealed she has definitely broken with the rich Thaw family and since last Autumn has received no allowance from Thaw's attorneys.

The once famous beauty further declared she has completed her autobiography, the intimate story of her tragic life, regardless of the objections and displeasure of the Thaws. She explained:

"Most of what has been written about me has been from the viewpoint of someone else, what another has seen of me or in me, or merely imagined about me.

"At any rate now I will have had my say."

FAKE DRUG SALE ARREST NEAR

An East Liberty druggist accused by City Controller James P. Kerr of defrauding the city by faking prescriptions was to be arrested today, according to District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

Dr. Kerr said late yesterday Park had informed him of the imminent arrest.

Dr. Kerr said the druggist charged the city for medicine never supplied to patients and for extra doses not delivered. The alleged offenses were in connection with the city's purchase of medicine for needy persons.

Dr. Kerr said investigation had shown only one druggist involved.

CHURCH ELDERS VOTED OUT IN SHOWDOWN

Congregation Backs Pastor by Ballot, 276 to 86

The pastorate of the Third United Presbyterian Church, Northumberland and Shady avenues, was still held by Dr. William M. Woodfin today, following a victory over the forces that urged his resignation in a hectic meeting last night.

Dr. Woodfin formerly served as a special prohibition agent and aided in the cleanup of liquor resorts in the Homestead district.

One of the largest attendances in Squirrel Hill's fashionable church gave their pastor of nine years a rousing vote of confidence after they had listened to him speak for two hours on the activities of the church's elders.

The occasion was the church's ecclesiastical meeting which followed the congregational meeting, held last night after many postponements. The meeting ended in turmoil and with the technical resignation of the elders of the church.

The resignation of the elders was made automatic with the passing of a motion to institute a rotating system of elders to replace the present life membership system. The innovation will be instituted pending its indorsement by the Presbytery Board.

The tense audience, after listening with impatience to the regular congregational meeting, sat on the edge of the pews as Dr. Woodfin opened the meeting by placing a temporary moderator in his place and took the pulpit in his own defense.

SURPRISE TO OPPOSITION

His address surprised his opposition and brought to a head interchurch dissension that has been brewing in the church circles for many months.

Dr. Woodfin opened his address with a vindication of the institution's board of trustees and an indictment of the elders. He said:

"A little coterie is opposed to me. I appeal to the church to judge, and I intend to give the facts. It has been said that 75 per cent of the congregation would welcome my resignation. If that is true, it is up to me to resign. But I refuse to let one individual speak the mind of the church. I have no quarrel with the board of trustees. If there is a criticism from that body, let them speak now or forever hold their peace."

"As for the elders I want to say that I got along with the elders better than they get along with former pastors.

"There has been gossip and criticism by certain members for the nine years which I have been pastor of this church."

Dr. Woodfin charged there had been clandestine meetings of the elders, in which he was criticized. He charged he was "isolated" from the session of which he was the head, according to the customs of the church.

LONG, LONELY HOUR!

He declared the action of the elders had given him the longest and the loneliest hour in the ministry, and said the charges of the opposition was based on his $8,500 a year salary and the Sunday afternoon teas which were held at the homes of various members of the congregation.

He declared he asked the elders the purpose of the meetings and said he was informed the elders were his friends and that the criticism was constructive.

He said:

"Things have been placed in my mouth that I have not said. If the church does not want me as pastor I am ready to terminate my pastorate. But I will not sit in session with the elders until they agree to discontinue their clandestine meetings."

He declared that one of the elders had declared 75 per cent of the congregation did not want him as pastor.

He added:

"I would welcome a change to cure a condition which I cannot help."

He charged he was asked to resign and seek another pastorate before October 1. He said his resignation was asked on insufficient grounds and declared the church was in "good condition."

He said:

"I'll put it up to the congregation. I have no where to go. I would join the ranks of the unemployed before I would suffer as I have suffered."

He wound up his address by asking a vote of confidence of the congregation, and he got it on the motion of Mrs. J. H. Hill.

Mrs. Hill's motion was argued by Ira Gribben, an elder, who, to the charges against the pastor, added that Dr. Woodfin dominated church committees.

The vote of confidence was 276 to 86. There followed a motion by W. J. Charters to substitute the rotating system of elders to replace the present system. It was passed.

Prior to the motion, Dr. R. G. Devers, principal of Taylor Allderdice High School, from his seat announced his resignation as an elder of the church.

STUDENTS' FIGHT TO OUST WOMEN'S DEAN DEADLOCKED

STUDENTS MEET ALLEGHENY PRESIDENT

MEADVILLE, Pa., May 4.—The four-day-old feud between students at Allegheny College and the dean of women was at a standstill today following an informal conference between the student's committee and President William P. Tolley and another mass meeting of students last night.

The students' demands were laid before Dr. Tolley at yesterday's conference. They agreed to drop the demand for reinstatement of Miss Cora LeRoy, instructor of physical education, but repeated their determination to force the resignation of Miss Evelyn Miller, dean of women.

QUESTION OF POPULARITY

Dr. Tolley announced he would reserve his decision.

He said:

"It is just a question of popularity in the case of Dean Miller. The students have asked for her resignation. I have reserved decision."

Miss LeRoy's resignation had been requested by Dr. Tolley during Easter week. It was to have become effective at the end of the present term. Miss LeRoy blamed her removal on Elmer R. Porter, superintendent of buildings.

UPRISING STIRRED

Dr. Tolley ordered Superintendent Porter's resignation and told Miss LeRoy to relinquish her classes immediately. She refused and her return to the campus Monday was the signal for the student uprising following Dr. Tolley's chapel announcement of her removal.

Voicing their indignation in a noisy demonstration on the campus Monday night, the students, about 300 strong, staged a snake dance in the streets following which they met in Arter Hall. Dr. Tolley met with them.

Dr. Tolley soon arrived and with him were Meadville policemen and two state troopers. The Campus, student publication, reported the event thus:

"In a few minutes President and Mrs. Tolley appeared on the scene of the impromptu May day celebration. They were accompanied by a squadron of docile Meadville policemen who were in turn joined by two members of the State Police force, who, after a "guffaw" or two, departed.

"With some difficulty the young women were enjoined to retreat to their quarters and the crowd dispersed."

U. S. VOTE QUIZ NOT READY FOR JURY

Attorney Earl F. Reed, special prosecutor in the Congressional election frauds case, back today from a conference with the Attorney General in Washington, has indicated that more time is to be taken for study of the evidence.

The case involves alleged ballot frauds in the Felix-Muldowney fight in the Thirty-second Congressional district and the Erk-Brooks fight in the Thirtieth district.

The regular federal grand jury was discharged yesterday at the request of United States Attorney Louis E. Graham without getting any of the election evidence gathered by special agents of the Department of Justice.

Reed, questioned why grand jury action was postponed, today said:

"We did not think it advisable to submit the election matters to this grand jury at the present time."

Reed hinted that further preparation will be necessary in studying the evidence already gathered. He would not discuss the possibilities of summoning another panel.

Should a special grand jury be called for the inquiry it probably will run into the summer. Under Federal Court regulations 30 days must elapse between a call for a jury and its assembling date.

The report of the special agents reached the government attorneys only a few days before the recent grand jury convened.

6 Drowning Victims Wait Identification

Recovery of an unidentified Negro's body from the Ohio River today at the Neville Island-Woods Run Bridge set a record in the Allegheny County morgue for the number of unidentified river victims ever held at one time.

Besides today's victim, the bodies of four men and one woman await identification. Morgue Superintendent John P. Black said the woman was the best dressed victim ever recovered. A "B" embroidered in yellow silk on a white handkerchief was the only identifying mark.

OLD NOTE CLAIM JURY SPLITS

Shifted about county and state courts for several years, the case of Robert E. Austen against John A. and Charles Marzolf over a judgment note ran up against a jury disagreement today.

The case has been appealed twice to the State Supreme Court. The plaintiff, Austin, died last October and the executor of his estate, D. Edwin Austen, is seeking to collect $3,280 claimed due on the note.

The jury disagreed after deliberating all last night, and was discharged by Judge James H. Gray.

Veterans to Form Political Group

The United American Veterans' Association, a political organization wil hold a general organization meeting in the auditorium of Memorial Hall, Oakland, Sunday night. Veterans with honorable discharges or cards of any recognized war veterans' organization will be admitted.

The object of the United American Veterans' Association is to provide an organization for all ex-service men. By doing this, united action may be taken, leaders say.

PAROLE BOARD CUT SCORED AS POLITICS

A slash of $200,000 by the state legislature in the budget for the Department of Justice which would eliminate the State Board of Pardons and Parole Supervision was branded as false economy by H. E. Broecker, district supervisor of the board today.

He sees the reduction, he says, as another move by machine politicians to bring a hitherto independent section of the state government under political control.

Without the supervision of the parole board, Broecker points out, 2,400 paroled prisoners from Pennsylvania penal institutions would be free of all restraint.

At the present time, he asserts, the board is entirely free of political taint. Operating independently within the Department of Justice, its employes are all trained men, college graduate sociologists and psychologists, he said.

Through branch offices in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Wilkes-Barre, York, Erie and Bellefonte, the 20 field agents of the board keep in touch with the 2,400 men now on the records, attempting to rehabilitate them in society.

Supervision is continued as long as the men are wards of the state, that is, until their maximum sentences have expired.

Figures compiled by Lewis Kolaskoski, field agent of the board in Pittsburgh, show it would cost the state over $1,000,000 to hold all of these men in prison each year, while the present system of supervised parole costs only $100,000.

NURSES in hospitals discovered that Noxzema used as a foundation for powder and as a night cream quickly cleared and refined their complexions.

TODAY 6,000,000 WOMEN have turned from expensive beauty creams to Noxzema as the only really scientific preparation that brings skin beauty through skin health.

Six million women now using Noxzema instead of expensive creams

A LOVELY skin no longer costs a fortune. Now millions of American women have discovered that pennies can do the work of dollars—that an inexpensive scientific formula does more for the skin than $5 creams and facials! Even bad complexions show a big improvement after the very first treatment.

Everyone is talking about it! They say it is the only really scientific beauty preparation that works—NOXZEMA SKIN CREAM. That's why not only beauty experts but doctors as well recommend it enthusiastically.

Scientists say the secret of Noxzema's success is its penetrating medication that purges the pores thoroughly, leaving them medically clean, pure and healthy. Then Noxzema's bland, softening oils soothe the irritation. Finally its ice-like astringents reduce the enlarged pores to exquisite fineness.

If you want a lovelier, finer complexion—if you want to clear away pimples, large pores, blackheads, oiliness, roughness—use Noxzema for 15 days. Use it as a corrective foundation for powder and at night after removing make-up. You'll be thrilled with the wonderful improvement in your complexion.

A MILLIONAIRE Just for ONE NIGHT!

An $8-a-Week Bank Clerk Pays a Big Price for Buying a "Good Time" with Stolen Money

POORLY paid bank clerks who are continually handling more money than they may possibly earn in a lifetime are probably tried very often by temptation. Fortunately, most of them resist it. The weaker ones who steal, however, often find it a costly misstep.

Such a lesson was recently learned by one who stole $800 to experience the thrill of a rich man's pleasures. He spent the bank's money in thirty-six gilded and gaudy hours and is now paying a price he surely did not expect he'd have to pay when he yielded to temptation. Imprisoned? Worse than that, as explained in an article in The American Weekly next Sunday!

ILL MOTHER'S SON HUNTED

Because his mother, who is very ill, would like to see him before she dies, the Missing Persons' Bureau sought a son who has been absent from his St. Thomas, Ontario, Canada, home for 11 years.

Mr. Blough.

Charles Lloyd Blough, the missing man, is described as 35, five feet 10 inches tall, weighs 165 pounds, with reddish brown hair, fair complexion, and blue eyes.

When last heard of he was working for the Standard Oil Company at Whiting, Ind. He is an expert mechanic and the probability is that he is earning his living at this occupation.

Working merely on a "hunch," his father, M. L. Blough, and another son, are in Pittsburgh now in their search. Their investigations have covered much of the United States.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

WASHINGTON, May 4.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Seemed good to get in here today to see old friends. Mr. Vice President turned over his office to me to hold conferences in. He is the same Garner he was even before he was speaker. Had long chat with Speaker Rainey, saw Congress pass the inflation bill, the biggest bill ever to pass any legislature in the history of the world.

Will Rogers

Was invited right into the Treasury Department's office by Mr. Woodin, while the Federal Reserve Board was in session. He says, "Maybe you can give us a laugh. We can't get anybody to give us any money." They seemed cheerful, and they are the ones that have to dig it up.

Then over to Lew Douglas, the old Arizona cowpuncher, head of the budget, who says, "You are just in time. All I need to balance the books today is six billion." What a tough job that guy's got, but he is able to lunch with Senator Joe Robinson, of Arkansas, and Senator Connelly, of Texas. And not a one of all these men knew what inflation was.

Yours, WILL.

A 'LIVING PICTURE' IN A 'GARDEN MAGAZINE'

ELAINE MAYBERRY PEGGY GILSON MRS. EMIL VIEROW

A pretty picture from the flesh-and-blood 'magazine' produced by the garden study group of the Woman's Alliance of the fashionable First Unitarian church. Members and their children played the necessary roles. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

St. Paul Cathedral Scene Of Page-Murray Wedding

At 10:30 o'clock this morning, St. Paul's Cathedral was the scene of the marriage of Betty Page, daughter of the Frank T. Pages, of Aylesboro avenue, and Thomas Murray, son of Mrs. James P. Murray, of Wallingford street. The altar was decorated with stately Easter lilies and ferns.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a princess gown of heavy ivory satin, made with a full court train, and embroidered with seed pearls around the neckline, extending the length of the bodice and into the train. Her veil of ivory tulle cascaded from a cap of the tulle having tiny pleats around the front.

She carried a sheaf of calla lilies. Virginia Page was her sister's only attendant, and her gown was of hyacinth blue chiffon having a cape bordered by three ruffles, and her straw hat, of matching blue, featured a wreath of flowers matching her bouquet of spring flowers, pinks, roses, orchids and daisies.

The bride's mother chose grey sheer crepe for her gown, with a hyacinth blue hat and corsage of orchids. The bridegroom's mother wore a black and white costume with a black hat having white flowers, and her corsage was of gardenias.

John Murray was his brother's best man and ushers were three more brothers, James, Eugene and Ambrose Murray, and John Page, brother of the bride.

The reception is being held in the Pittsburgh Athletic Club. The bride's table is gay with spring flowers, roses, lilies of the valley, pinks, daisies, forsythia. And the smaller tables for the guests are similarly decked.

Mr. Murray and his bride sail Saturday afternoon for two weeks in Havana after which they will reside in the Aberdeen Apartments.

They gave ensemble and trio numbers, some to clever original words, and Mrs. Batz did a group of lovely solos appropriate to the season.

In the May Queen crowning, Mrs. McKelvie made an attractive queen and little Alice Lee Gardner was the dancing May fairy. In conclusion there was a dance around a May pole that had streamers in the gold and blue of the club.

The day served, too, as an introduction to the club of Freeman Hammond, who did several dramatic interpretations delightfully and artistically.

JACKETS AND COATS MATCH OR CONTRAST IN 1933 FASHIONS

JACKETS or coat ensemble, there's a time and a place for each, and they're both indispensable in this year's wardrobe. Jackets especially are having a big flutter and they're usually designed to complement the frock, which is just good, practical economy these days. Many a cool, blithe frock can go more places and do for more purposes this summer because of its jacket, which can be slipped on when a breeze blows up.

THE RED evening jacket of a soft, faille taffeta is a dream come true. A shirred banding encircles the neck and edges the opening of the jacket, while the big puff sleeves stand out crisply and end in a tight cuff just below the elbow. Worn with it is a gown of heavy sheer crepe, of exquisite simplicity. It has the very new pleats down the back.

Skeptical Girls' Criticism Of Men Opposed

Are modern men worth much?

"Five Skeptical Girls" didn't think they were. According to them, they'd met plenty, and there wasn't one that a really nice girl dare trust. So they wanted to know what was the matter with the males of 1933.

"Maybe you're what's the matter!" snorts Minnie Mouse, in anything but a meek, mousy manner. Want to listen to some spirited literature? Here's your chance!

To the Five Skeptical Girls—

I want to say right here and now that there is nothing wrong with the modern male!

People are always rising up to say that "Girls are what the men want them to be." Well, that works both ways—a man is what you want him to be—and he soon catches on to what you want him to be if you conduct yourself so he can see what you do really want him to be.

If you demand respect—not by words necessarily, but by what you are yourself—you will always get it. Of course, sometimes you do have to come right out and demand it—and when I say demand, that's just what I mean, and not a half-hearted objection to what he is doing.

I have no less than four very close men acquaintances who treat me with the utmost respect, because they knew, from the beginning of our friendship, that I expected and would stand for nothing else.

ADVISES SINCERITY

Cultivate an interesting personality. Develop a clean sense of humor. If you'll do that, you will find that any fellow who is worthy of your friendship—and why bother about the others?—will appreciate a girl who dares to be "different."

Give the boys a break, and don't cultivate that "blase manner" which, if you only knew it, helps to make the boy of today give you the "line" that you have to take with a grain of salt. Be friendly and sincere with a fellow and he'll have no desire to be otherwise with you.

You have to be something besides just a nice girl to interest men and make them want to treat you with respect. You have to be an interesting girl—a genuine one.

No; this is not a lecture. It's just something I have learned from experience. I used to have a lot of the absurd ideas that girls get, but something set me thinking and I decided that I was probably somewhat at fault, so I changed around a little.

PLENTY OF NICE ME!'

Be particular whom you go with, no matter what station of life he comes from. Ten to one you'll find the finer, truer friend among those who can't afford to take you to the Ritz, and he will be regular, and able to keep you amused by his talk.

You will find it an interesting experiment, at least, to be "different," and yet not let the boy know what you're keeping up your sleeve. It takes a clever woman to know how to pal with the man of today. But study human nature and you'll have the key to success.

Stop thinking that men are all haywire, and that you have to outsmart them. "Smart guys"—whether they're men or girls—usually have people just waiting to put something over on them. And there are still plenty of nice men.

So—Cheerio, and good luck!

MINNIE MOUSE.

That sounds like grand sense to me!

You get what you give—you find what you expect—in men, as in every other human adventure.

Fay King Notes That Age Emphasis Applies to Women Only

By FAY KING

Where women are concerned so much emphasis is put on age, while men are forever flattered into thinking they are young no matter how old they are.

Doddering old Don Juans are still called "mischievous boys" but whoever calls a flirtatous middle-aged woman a "foolish child?"

Romeos of the screen and stage outlast a dozen Juliets, who are given the gate at the first sign of fading youth.

If a young wife is only a few years older than her husband and doesn't look it, we are not permitted to forget the fact. His relatives and friends will tell us how she "mothers the dear boy."

Wives themselves frankly broadcast the fact to forfend gossip. But why should this be?

Contract Bridge

How to Play and How to Win

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Finding a Fit

A common fault with most Bridge players is that if their hand contains a certain number of honor-tricks, they rush heedlessly into games or Slams, regardless of whether or not they can find a fit with their partner's holding. This is perhaps the most dangerous trait of the aspiring Bridge player. Honor-tricks are valuable because they can be counted regardless of who the final Declarer may be and of whether the hand is played on the attack or on the defense. So far as the Declarer is concerned, their greatest value, compared with other playing-tricks, is that they are essential stoppers of adverse suits and re-entries to permit the run of long-established cards. The expert player realizes that it is axiomatic that even with a preponderance of the honor strength it is wise to go slowly until a fit with partner's hand has been ascertained.

Adherence to this rule permitted Messrs. Theodore A. Lightner and Michael T. Gottlieb to reach and make a Small Slam after a fit had been ascertained, but caused them to bid with extreme caution until they were assured that the hands did have a common meeting-ground. The hand, played in a practice match in preparation for matches in Europe this summer, was:

North, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

North: ♠ — ♡ A Q J 9 7 ◇ Q 8 6 ♣ A K Q J 2

Mr. Culbertson: ♠ Q 8 4 ♡ K 8 6 5 3 ◇ 10 7 ♣ 7 5 4

Mrs. Culbertson: ♠ J 10 6 3 2 ♡ 10 4 2 ◇ K J 9 ♣ 9 8

South: ♠ A K 9 7 5 ♡ — ◇ A 5 4 3 2 ♣ 10 6 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
		1 ♡	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣ (1)	Pass
2 ◇ (2)	Pass	3 ◇ (3)	Pass
3 NT (4)	Pass	5 ♣ (5)	Pass
6 ♣ (6)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—With this hand many players would make a Forcing Rebid. The hand contains two five-card suits, 4 honor-tricks and much Slam material, but South's response in spades has a tendency to discourage the expert Mr. Gottlieb rather than encourage him as to the possibilities of the hand. In any event, he prefers to go slowly and keep the bidding low until some sort of a fit has been ascertained.

2—South is equally cautious. Void of the suit first bid by his partner and lacking adequate support in the second suit, further information should be exchanged at the lower levels before determining the probabilities of game or Slam.

3—This discloses one point where the hands fit. North does have adequate support for the diamond suit as trump.

4—South is still cautious. The entire absence of hearts and the failure of North to support spades, the suit first bid by him, suggests to Mr. Lightner that notrump may be the safest declaration. The only suit which finds a common meeting place—namely, diamonds—is extremely weak.

5—Mr. Gottlieb, assured that he will find diamond tricks in his partner's hand, is now willing to contract for game. The Jump to five gives a hint of the general strength of the hand and the superior strength of the suit and indicates that North feels that five are certain.

6—If North holds a solid or near-solid trump suit, then South has the tricks to make a Small Slam probable.

The hand, of course, made six-odd, and is a very fine example of careful, constructive and accurate bidding.

Today's Question

South bids one heart, West doubles and North passes. What response should East make to West's Double, holding the following hand?

♠ K Q 6 ♡ 10 6 3 ◇ A 4 ♣ 9 8 7 4 3

Answer—Two clubs. The hand is not strong enough for a Jump response, as the five-card suit is a minor. In other words, if the spade and club holdings were reversed, a response of two spades should be made.

Washing the Hair

After washing the hair put the juice of a lemon in the last rinsing water; it removes all soap, stimulates the scalp and leaves the hair beautifully glossy.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Wedding Attire

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—If the groom is going to wear a full dress suit on his wedding day, should the best man wear a full dress suit or tuxedo? The bride is to wear a veil, and the ceremony will be performed in church.

2—Should the groom give a gift to the best man and the bridesmaid, or should he take them to the theater and to dinner?

3—If the groom "treats" with a theater party and then a dinner, when should this be done . . . before the wedding or after?

JUNE BRIDE.

1—The best man (and ushers, if there are to be any) wears the same type of clothes as the groom does. In this case, then, he would wear full dress.

2—Usually the groom gives a present to each of his attendants, and the bride gives a gift to each of her attendants. The groom does not give gifts to the bridal attendants.

This kind of gift has nothing to do with the entertainment, at dinner or the theater.

3—Usually this kind of party is given after the wedding.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

Ronald Makes Dash to Catch Owen's Car

I looked at Ronald apprehensively as Charles Owen took Marion from the arms of his helper. I knew that the jealously possessive air which Owen was showing so plainly was the worst thing that Ronald could witness if his composure and peace of mind were to be preserved for the arduous task before him. A shudder ran over him from head to foot, and I put my hand upon his arm.

"You must not let this man or his actions upset you, as you are doing. You must brace yourself to expect even worse things from him than he has yet shown. You must remember, as I have warned you before, that even a second's loss of self-control on your part might mean our failure to rescue Marion."

Another shudder rippled over his body, then he straightened himself and threw back his head resolutely.

"I could tear his heart out with my bare hands," he said between his teeth, "but I know what you mean, and I'm not going to let what he does get me again. It will probably kill me to hold myself in. I'll do it though, you'll see."

"Bravo!" I said softly. "I know you will. But look! Get ready for your sprint!"

PREPARES FOR SPRINT

Owen had placed Marion tenderly in the car while the other man stripped the saddle from the tethered horse. Then, as Owen climbed into the rear of the car and took Marion into his arms again, the other man climbed to the driving seat. Just as I warned Ronald to be ready, the man stooped to the ignition switch.

The next instant we heard the smooth purr of a powerful motor starting, and Ronald bent over in what I knew was the correct posture for the starting of a sprint, left foot forward, right foot slightly back.

I knew that the car must actually be in motion before Ronald would dare appear in the road, and though there really was no undue delay in the starting, it seemed an eternity before the car wheels began to move. But move they did finally, and then Ronald shot forward so quickly, so smoothly, that I could only think of that trite old simile, "an arrow from a bow."

AN EXCITING RACE

He was a "fifty-yard man," he had told me, and I knew with what incredible swiftness a man running in that event covers the ground; yet, when he was once upon the road, it seemed to me that the huge car in front was steadily increasing speed, as indeed it was, and that Ronald was lagging behind.

Would he make it? Would he be able to fling his body across that space and spring to a place upon the rear of that car? With body bent forward, with every muscle and nerve strained in aching sympathy with that gallant sprint, I found myself murmuring over and over again: "Dear God, let him do it!"

And then, when to my excited eyes it seemed that yards of space intervened between the big car and Ronald's speeding body, he seemed to gather himself into a crouch, and I saw his body leave the ground and hurl itself in a mighty leap at the rear of the retreating car.

IMMEDIATE DELIVERY

They might have called it: "MURDER ON THE MOUNTAINSIDE"

IN THE Allegheny Mountains last August, cars and gasolines were "taken for a ride" such as they had never known before. One after another they were lashed up the mountainside . . . pistons pumping furiously, tires creaking at every curve, bolts and bodies straining almost to the breaking-point. • Here was a test of tests . . . a mighty experiment on the part of the Nation's leading automobile and refining companies to find ways to bring you better engines and better fuels. ATLANTIC participated. For months since then, it has been carrying on the work . . . utilizing the amazing discoveries which were made. And it has succeeded in producing a NEW WHITE FLASH, so superior in every way that only by trying it can you learn the vast difference between it and yesterday's gasolines.

WE WANT your VERDICT

We want YOU to pass judgment on this new fuel. In your own car. On roads selected by yourself.

SATURDAY'S the day. Fill your tank to the brim with the NEW WHITE FLASH, and then go out and look for great things. You'll find them!

Look for unusual power. The NEW WHITE FLASH is believed to be the most powerful motor fuel ever offered at or near its price.

Look for sensational pick-up. Those who have already tried it say it has no equal in this respect.

Look for a smoother-running engine. The new formula means an even charge to every cylinder.

Look for new economy. More mileage. Quicker starting. Less use of the choke. These things mean many dollars saved, at a time when dollars count!

Be sure to try it, Saturday. We want your verdict. We think it will be: "Yes, the NEW WHITE FLASH is POWERFULLY BETTER."

Six Clubs After Quinn. | College Rowers Differ
Ruth Can Hit and Peg. | Yanks on British Team.
Urge Roughness Penalty. | Schmeling Alters Plans.

FAREWELLS TO SLAB VET OUT OF ORDER

THE TOUCHING FAREWELLS they are bidding to old Jack Quinn may be a trifle premature. The unconditional release given to the venerable spitballer by the Brooklyn club did not mean necessarily that Quinn was done at last as a major leaguer. It meant only that no other club in the big show had been willing to pay the waiver price for him. Claiming him through that channel would have cost any National League club $4,000, and any American League club $7,500, and the club so claiming him would have been required to assume his Brooklyn contract any pay him the salary therein provided.

Jack Quinn

In such cases, it's cheaper to wait until the player's 10 days notice of release have expired and he has become a free agent. Then you don't have to pay anything for him and can sign him at new salary terms, his previous contract being void. So some of the clubs that waived on Quinn, though unwilling to invest the waiver price in a man who is said to be past 50, may be willing to take him on later when it involves no outlay except his pay. And it is said that will be the development in the case of Quinn. Six clubs are reported to want him, Boston and Cincinnati in the National and four in the American, and they will make offers to him as soon as his 10 days are up, when it will be Jack's privilege to accept the best proposal or to go where he desires. The old boy, now in his thirty-first season as a professional, evidently is going to linger in the majors a while longer in spite of all those goodbyes.

OPPOSING PLAYERS MAY giggle at some of Babe Ruth's fielding efforts when he tries to pick up a ground ball, but he spreads the same old terror among the enemy forces when he's up there at the plate. The Bambino has averaged close to one home run in every three games so far, and he has been playing under the physical handicaps of a cold, a sore throat and a weakness in his legs.

Perhaps Ruth will increase his homer production when he has recovered from his ills, but if he only keeps up his present average it will mean about 50 four-basers for the season, and that might be called pretty fair. Even as a sick man, the Babe has demonstrated that there are two things he still can do. One is to hit homers and the other is to throw a ball farther and more accurately than the great majority of outfielders. New York critics insist he still can stand out there and hit an infielder on the foot with a long peg.

ANOTHER ONCE FAMOUS major league name that may be revived in professional baseball in a few years by a new generation is that of Veach. Old Bob former outfielder, who hit better than .300 nine times for Detroit, has two sons starring on college and scholastic diamonds in Tigertown.

One is Edward, 18, a pitcher for Cass Tech., and the other is Walter, 16, an outfielder for Northwestern High. Both are showing lots of promise and are expected to head for the professional ranks later. Bob himself is giving the youngsters some special coaching.

BASEBALL MIGHT WITH profit borrow something from the football rules and provide penalties for unnecessary roughness, in the opinion of Lou Gehrig. The way things stand now, the Yankee first baseman points out, a baserunner may go charging into a fielder, with spikes threatening bodily harm, but there is nothing in the rules to punish the offender. "It isn't even up to the umpire's judgment," Gehrig complains. "A runner may crash into a second baseman or shortstop to break up a double play, and that, too, is routine baseball. The first baseman is the one big and ever open target. Last July in the game that was marked by the Dickey-Reynolds incident, Buddy Myer came hurtling into me for no reason at all. Imagine a baserunner cutting a first baseman on the chest. I had two gashes on my right side and a wound on my right leg.

Lou Gehrig

"MY FIRST REACTION was to go after Myer and give him what he deserved, but it came to me that if a man of my size were to strike a little fellow like Myer I'd be ridiculed all over the circuit. So I gritted my teeth and kept my fists out of action. Now is it reasonable to expect a first baseman to take that sort of thing without striking back?

"And in one of those recent Washington games, Heinie Manush, who was out by six feet, came into first base with all spikes in the air, and but for quick action I would have been cut down. The umpire could see quite clearly that Manush's crash was unwarranted. But he could do nothing about it."

AGREEING WITH GEHRIG, and joining with him in advocating legislation that would fix penalties for unnecessary roughness, is Doc Painter, trainer of the Yankees. And he thinks the rulemakers should pay particular attention to protecting the first baseman and the catcher, though catchers generally are listed among the offenders because of blocking the plate.

On the subject of "unprovoked and unwarranted assault," the ground on which players are fined and suspended, Painter says that Bill Dickey's breast bone was almost an inch over to the right as a result of the Reynolds crash last year, following which Dickey was fined $1,000 and suspended for one month for punching Reynolds.

EARLY OBSERVATIONS IN the college rowing season have led Bob Dunbar to form the opinion that Princeton and Harvard represent two types of crews. The Tigers are regarded as the sprint, or short-race, outfit, rowing a high boat and able to obtain the proper smoothness for success in a short contest. The Crimson comes under the power ranking, good over a short distance, but really in its element in a four-mile struggle, where general endurance and strength decide the winner. Once in a while there comes a crew that is good at both distances. Navy, Yale and California have cleaned up everything in various Olympic years. Others have failed. Harvard won two sprints and a four-mile race two years ago. Last year it did not really click until the distance event with Yale.

A WRESTLING PUBLICITY notice in the East said that Sam Cordovano, assistant football coach at Columbia and also a grappler, "is an expert at the flying tackle, which he teaches to the Columbia linemen." Columbia comments that if he does, it's news to Lou Little and everybody else around the college, including Sam himself.

And it is added that it is also news to the officials who handled the Columbia team's games last fall. A commentator remarks that the flying tackle is illegal in every sport except wrestling, while in wrestling everything goes, even the champions.

SEVERAL AMERICANS WILL be among the topliners on the Oxford and Cambridge track and field team competing in this country in July. Pen Hallowell, ex-Harvard star, who was on the 1932 Olympic team, will run the mile or the half, and Oscar Sutermeister, also formerly of Harvard, will be in the pole vault.

Max Schmeling

Jack Lovelock, a New Zealand youngster who is rated one of the world's greatest milers, also will be included. He has done a mile outdoors around 4.12. The invading team, handled by Evan Hunter, will meet Harvard-Yale July 8, Cornell-Princeton July 15, and a Canadian group a few days later before starting for home.

IN STARTING BOXING today in his swanky training camp at Swannanoa Lake, N. J., Max Schmeling is departing from his original plans. At first he had intended not to do any boxing until the second week, and said that tennis and long walks would make up the early part of the program, as he wished to improve his wind and strengthen his legs in the expectation that he would have to go the full 15 rounds against Max Baer on June 8 at top speed. But Manager Joe Jacobs ordered a change in arrangements, deciding that it would be best for his charge to have five weeks with his sparring partners before tackling Baer. "Schmeling is in fine condition," Jacobs said. "He has nothing to worry about on that score. But he has been out of competition since last fall and must polish up his boxing and improve his judgment of distance."

NEW YORK, May 4.—George Gibson and his swashbucking Buccos are anxious for a sample of Dodgers sauce which Max Carey intends to dish up to his former buddies this afternoon in the Flatbush. The Pittsburgh scrappers are slated to spend the remaining days of the week in competition with Carey's team.

Rained out in Philadelphia yesterday, the Pirates boarded an early train for New York. They are quartered in the Alamac Hotel, which hostelry is located hard by the Seventy-second street subway stop, thus making it a simple matter for Gibby's host to make the long ride to Ebbets Field.

Heinie Meine was the slab assignment chosen for yesterday and Manager Gibson announced this morning the selection would stand. The Buccos rather expect to look at the lefthanded offerings of Bill Clarke, it being quite the fashion for the rival pilots to save their southpaws for the Bucs.

DIFFERENT STORY NOW

The "lefties" have been so successful against the Pirates of the past two years, the enemy managers apparently figure that the Pittsburghers are still bothered a lot by this species of pitcher. Maybe so, yet the early season performances would indicate the Freebooters can take better care of themselves this year.

The acquisition of Fred Lindstrom was one big stroke in favor of the Pirates. Lindstrom makes "cousins" out of the lefthanders, and Boss Gibson also seems to have acted wisely in assigning Catcher Hal Finney to duty when the foe starts a southpaw.

CAREY'S CLUB DANGEROUS

The Buccos, nevertheless, do not regard the Dodgers as any push-over's, not for a minute. The new Flatbush crew packs a punch and as the season progresses the Brooklyn combination may have some first-division traits.

Up to today, the Dodgers were able to win half of their 14 games. They have been picked by many experts to finish in the second division, but the same boys were chirping the same song one year ago and Carey crossed them up. Scoops is having his troubles, but if he is given a free rein he is apt to make a real team out of the Flatbush collection.

The postponed game of yesterday at Philadelphia will be played as part of a double-header at Baker Bowl, Saturday, July 1.

TO HONOR WAGNER

Today is to be Honus Wagner day in Brooklyn and preparations have been made for a rousing party in honor of the Flying Dutchman, returned to the National League as coach of the Pirates.

Honus will be tendered a reception at Borough Hall. Following a parade to the ball park, additional honors will be paid him. Following the game, Wagner will be the honor guest at a testimonial dinner at Coney Island. President Benswanger, Vice President Sam Watters, Manager Gibson and Capt. Pie Traynor will sit at the banquet table with Honus.

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: A SIGNAL WALKING RECORD—Townsend completed the task of walking 1,000 miles in 18 days (one-half backwards) in Manchester, England, on August 24, 1822. It was during the period inaugurated by Capt. Barclay's 1,000-mile walk in 1,000 hours. The competition then was very keen to better his record, a feat accomplished by Townsend in 432 hours, or less than half of Barclay's time. AN OUTLAW GRAVEYARD—Boothill Cemetery is a grim reminder of the days when the West was young and Tombstone was a wild and woolly mining town of the frontier. Mortality was high as a result of brawls, gun fights and other violent forms of exercise. The graves occupied by the picturesque frontier characters who died "with their boots on" are mere mounds of earth, bare of any tombstones, in this curious outlaw graveyard.

VINCE DUNDEE, GOOSBY TO BOX OPENER

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

The first move to get the local summer boxing situation down to a sensible basis, whereby the clubs can have some assurance that they will not go too deeply into the red, as was the case last year, has been taken with the announcement today that the Arena, North Side club, has merged with Greenlee Field for the outdoor season and will abandon its plan to operate indoors during the summer months.

Under the arrangement, the Arena will hold its last show on the night of Friday, May 26, and Greenlee Field will open on Thursday, June 1. Lew Raymond will swing over from the Arena to the Field as matchmaker, and he already has stepped in and closed with Max Waxman, manager of Vince Dundee, the uncrowned middleweight champion, for Dundee to box Frankie Goosby, undefeated local Negro star, in the main bout. This is a match that was sought for Motor Square Garden and the Arena, and it stacks up as a "natural," especially in its new locale, where the Negro admirers of Goosby will find it easy to attend.

OPENER AT MILLVALE

The outdoor season will get under way on Monday, May 22, at Hickey Park, Millvale, with Tommy Freeman and Ted Yarosz boxing the main bout.

There have been no late developments regarding the Meyers Bowl, in North Braddock, and it would not be surprising if it should not open with the other clubs. The Bowl, pioneer local outdoor arena, was closed down in mid-season last year, and recently was sold at auction. Several promoters were reported ready to take it over, but none has tried to close the deal.

With the Arena out of the way through the arrangement whereby it is cut in on Greenlee Field and the Bowl an uncertainty, the local field is reduced to two clubs, both easy of access from downtown Pittsburgh and operating on Monday and Thursday nights.

JULES BECK'S PLANS

The altered situation leaves Jules Beck, former Meyers Bowl and Greenlee Field matchmaker, still connected with the Garden in that capacity, out in the cold for the summer months unless he decides to run shows on his own hook or another club should spring up. He may dicker for the Bowl or even arrange to put in a few shows at Forbes Field, which will be available for matches if they are big enough.

Between Rounds

The card has been completed for the boxing show to be held in Motor Square Garden next Monday night headlined by Jackie Wilson, local Negro flash, and Eddie Shea, hard-hitting Chicago veteran. Nat Litin, of the Hill, and Andy Kosel, of Turtle Creek, have been paired for the six-round second bout. Lou Jallos, of Cleveland, and Louie Severo, of Meadville, are in the eight-round semi-final, and Joey Zelano and Young Panos in the opener.

Two brothers will be fighting in rings almost 3,000 miles apart next Monday night. They are Joey Zelano, in his bout with Panos at the Garden here, and his brother, Mickey, who boxes under the name of Mickey Lodging, tangling with Matt Calo in San Francisco. Joey formerly boxed under the name of Joey Dodge.

Both Pete De Grasse, of New York, and Jimmy Mack, of Philadelphia, are due in town today for their 10-round battles at the Arena tomorrow night, the former with Jimmy Thomas and the latter with Johnny Hinds.

The boxing show in which Tug Phillips stopped Jacquette Elverillo and Johnny Datto knocked out Babe Colma, breaking the latter's jaw, at Youngstown, Tuesday night, drew around $100, and there will be no more boxing shows in that city until the outdoor season.

Jack Wilson and Anson Green meet for the third time tonight in Johnstown, where Green recently beat Jack after the latter had won over him at the Arena here.

TOURNEY UNDER WAY TONIGHT

With women being admitted free the first night, the so-called Pennsylvania amateur championship boxing tournament gets under way in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion tonight, to continue through four nights. With West Virginia boxers listed among the entries, it is explained by the authorities that the tournament really is for the championship of the entire Allegheny Mountain and Middle Atlantic associations of the A. A. U., although championship tournaments in both of these districts already have been held. Therefore, the title "Pennsylvania championships" is just a name, to distinguish the event from other tournaments.

Anyway, whatever the name of the tournament, it has drawn an entry list of 103 boxers, and the usual spirited competition may be expected. Preliminaries tonight will be confined to the lighter classes, from flyweight to lightweight, inclusive. The other classes will have their first round of fighting tomorrow night, and the second round in all classes is listed for Saturday, with the semi-finals and finals following on Monday.

Three champions, all from Uniontown, where the tournament was held last year, will defend their titles. They are Jimmy Asto, Charley Crovatto and Buck Makarum. The show will get under way at 8:30 o'clock, daylight saving time, each night.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Why boxing matchmakers get gray:

(Telephone rings in matchmaker's office.)

Matchmaker: You want a fight? For that guy? Okay. How about Joe Palooka for him? Drop in and sign the contracts.

(An hour later; scene, matchmaker's office.)

Manager—Well, here I am. How about that fight?

Matchmaker—All right. Six rounds. Fifty bucks.

Manager—Help! Police!! Robber!!! Fifty bucks? Say, we ain't starvin' yet.

Matchmaker—Take it or leave it.

Manager—How about Joe Spivis at that price? That guy Palooka hits too hard.

Matchmaker—Say, who's makin' the matches around here? You're tellin' me who you want to fight. You take Palooka or nobody.

Matchmaker—Fifty-five.

Matchmaker—What class is that? Makin' up your own classes now? This guy Palooka is a welterweight and couldn't make 141 without cuttin' off a leg.

Manager—Well, he's tough. We ain't goin' to give him none the best of it.

Matchmaker—You don't want the best of it yourself?

Manager—Well, Spivis can make it. Why don't you give us Spivis?

Matchmaker—Tell you what I'll do. I'll give you Spivis for 25 bucks. And he's a bargain at that price. Just a workout. Ought to go out in a round or two.

Manager—We'll take 50.

Manager—Say, we wouldn't take our clothes off for 25 smackers.

Matchmaker—So long, then. And don't slam the door as you go out.

Manager—We don't need the money that bad.

Matchmaker—I'd hate to offer you an extra dime.

Manager—You wouldn't. Say, if I couldn't pay no more than you guys do I'd close up the club.

Matchmaker—Okay. See you later. I got a date with Jim Muggins. He wants the Palooka match for his bum.

Manager—Who — that guy? Now, listen, Billi, I was only kiddin'. How much did you say you'd give us for takin' Palooka?

Matchmaker—Fifty bucks.

Manager—I heard you the second time. You said 55.

Manager—All right. Fifty bucks, then. Where's them contracts?

Manager—There. Now, how about 25 in advance? We need some pocket money.

SPORTSMEN MEET

APOLLO, Pa., May 4.—Approximately 250 members of the Apollo Community Sportsmen's Association will meet tonight in Malta Hall here to make plans to ask the State Legislature to appropriate $25,000 to purify Crooked Creek. Members claim that mine drainage kills the fish which normally would inhabite the stream. A canal to divert the mine water probably would clear the creek, according to Jesse K. Hilty, secretary of the association. W. F. Pauly is president.

W. VA. GOLFERS BEAT PITT

West Virginia University's varsity golf team defeated the University of Pittsburgh niblick wielders, 4 to 2, at the South Hills Country Club yesterday. It was the second defeat of the season for the Panthers.

The Mountaineers showed plenty of class in turning in the victory. Claude McKee, young South Hills boy who was entrusted with the job of playing No. 1 for Pitt, caught a tartar in Jack Hobitzell, who went out in 37, came home 38, for a 75 to win, 7 and 6. Art Sekay, of Pitt, defeated Bobby Lowe, of West Virginia, 1 up; Decker, of Pitt, defeated Manning, of West Virginia, 5 and 4, while Hamilton, the Mountaineer boxing star, downed Ferrera, of Pitt, 1 up.

In the best ball matches, Hobitzell and Lowe defeated McKee and Sekay, 4 and 3, while Manning and Hamilton defeated Decker and Ferrera, 1 up, in a match that went 19 holes.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

CLEVELAND, May 4.—Even before the season started, like the American League pennant, like all Gaul, was divided into three parts. And the parts were New York, Philadelphia and Washington. Well, the correct answer to this is, "Oh, yeah?" Why, those Chicago and Cleveland clubs are tougher babies than the India rubber man's twins.

Nick Altrock

From Uncle Nick's preliminary survey of the situation I would say the battle for the A. L. flag won't be just along the eastern front. We will have to run gunboats into the Great Lakes and pop off the White Sox and the Indians.

Well, I see silver is going to be legal tender. That makes my head worth just $5,000 more. I broke this good news to Griff and he said:

MUDDERS GIVEN CONSIDERATION AS FAVORITES

LOUISVILLE, May 4.—(AP.)—A revision of betting odds, with the "mudders" receiving consideration as favorites, today was in prospect as the United States Weather Bureau, at Washington, predicted rain for the fifty-eighth renewal of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs Saturday.

Rain is forecast for tomorrow, as well as Saturday, which means that the going probably will be heavy, and that the mudders will have their inning.

Ladysman, favorite to win the Derby, was given his first introduction to the Churchill Downs track and paddock today.

Like all the Derby eligibles, save Mr. Khayyam, who was worked out over a mile, Ladysman took an early morning gallop. That exercise was started by the chestnut colt being ridden into the "chute" from which the Derby race will start. After jogging half a mile and galloping another half, Trainer Bud Stottler had Ladysman ridden into the paddock to get acquainted with the looks of things.

LADYSMAN APPEARS FIT

The colt, which arrived from Havre De Grace, Md., Tuesday, too late for a regular workout before Saturday, appeared to be fit and ready to race. He is expected to be entered with Pomponius, which accompanied him this morning. Pompoleon is to be held in reserve in case anything should prevent pomponius going.

Mr. Khayyam covered a mile in 1:40 flat. He was clocked at the half in :49 3-5 and the three-quarters in 1:16.

Head Play, Charley O., Trace Call, Dark Winter and many other eligibles were given long gallops during the morning, and all are due to be "breezed out" over about three-eighths of a mile tomorrow morning, and then rest until post time Saturday.

HEAD PLAY TESTED

Head Play galloped easily, with the bandage that had protected a slight cut below his hock removed. At the stable it was said the cut was made by a glancing blow from the heels of another thoroughbred in Tuesday's race which Head Play won, but that it missed by a fraction of an inch being similar to the cut that put Burning Blaze out a year ago.

Track Meet, Hurling On A. O. H. Program

A track and field meet for Pittsburgh district Parochial grade and high schools, and a demonstration of competitive hurling by two Irish hurling teams from Philadelphia are to be high spots of the sports program arranged for the annual outing of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, to be held at Kennywood Park, June 24.

John D. Holohan, graduate manager of athletics at Duquesne, today arranged for the hurling competition and track meet. Hurling, one of the most ancient of sports, still is extremely popular in Ireland.

STOCKTON, Ca.—(AP.)—Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg, of the College of the Pacific, leaves for his home in Chicago tonight after conducting six weeks of spring football practice here. He will return in the fall with two assistants, Paul Stagg and Laurie Apitz, to take charge of the team for the regular schedule of games.

The Young Ladies' Bowling League of St. George's Lyceum completed its season with a banquet at the Keystone A. C. Miss Anna Binder was high scorer for the season with a mark of 191 for one game and Miss Loretta Herold high scorer for three games with 419.

OSSINING, N. Y.—(AP.)—The Sing Sing Prison football squad has opened spring training with most of its 1932 stars in the lineup. The season will open about October 1. Alabama Pitts, James Scarna and Joe Hayes, three of the team's mainstays last year, turned out for practice.

TORONTO.—(AP.)—William (Torchy) Peden and Jules Audy maintained their one-lap lead over the field in the six-day bicycle race today, but hot on their trail was the favored pair of Alfred Letourner and Gerard Debaets. All the teams were closely bunched, with the last pair only seven laps behind the leaders.

CHICAGO.—(INS.)—Four special trains and hundreds of automobiles will bear Chicago's largest representation in four years to the Kentucky Derby at Louisville Saturday, the reservations disclosed today.

CHICAGO.—(INS.)—Two ex-collegiate wrestlers, Gus Sonnenberg and Jumpin' Joe Savoldi, clash tonight in a one-fall bout of more or less importance to the mat kingdom.

HARRISBURG, Pa.—(AP.)—I. L. Rothermel, of Troop E, is the best revolver shot of the state highway patrol, Rothermel, stationed at Bellefonte, won the title yesterday at an interTroop shoot by scoring 464 out of a possible 500, a new record for the matches. J. W. Heineman, Troop C, Franklin, was second with 461, and T. E. Jones, Troop B, Butler, third, with 455.

ITHACA, N. Y.—(INS.)—W. R. Patterson, of Buffalo, made a perfect 100 score to win the Class A honors in the Finger Lakes trap shooting tournament here. J. Breen, of Syracuse, and H. Kretchman, of Buffalo, each with 96, tied for Class B honors. A. Schutt, of Rochester, with 98, won the Class C.

'Member 'Way Back When?

HONUS LOBERT HONUS WAGNER

Two "Old Dutch" players, who got their start on the sandlots around Pittsburgh, went on to fame in the major leagues, and met again when the Phillies put on their Oldtimers' game to celebrate their fiftieth anniversary. Lobert, who hailed from Beltzhoover, starred at third base for the Phillies in his heyday, while the other Honus, a Carnegie product, became the greatest shortstop of all time. This is a Wide World News Photograph Service picture.

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD

Wherein Mike Donlin Clears Up Mystery Of 1905 Tiff With Honus

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

There's a ring to his name that makes thousands of baseball lovers happy when they hear it, but these occasions are far too infrequent, for its owner is far removed from the sport he loves. When an oldtimer speaks of "Mike Donlin" the effect is like sounding the chime of a baseball bell that reverberates down the years and rises like a swell into the present, where it synchronizes with names like "Wagner," "Stengel," "Altrock" and others which have lent their color and appeal to aid a sport in a time of stress.

Mike Donlin

The Doctors of Baseball, its real friends and the quacks, have done this and that, yet the specialists as well as the "shysters" have "booted" one of the most compelling figures of the golden age of the game, and an athlete who has come through difficulties that would have floored the average person.

HEALTH IMPROVED

In a way, Mike Donlin is happy in his Hollywood haunts. He is surrounded by friends and admirers and apparently he has beaten a serious malady which all but took his life, and which cut him from his 185 pounds of robust playing muscle to a pale phantom of 125 pounds. When I talked with Mike in Los Angeles recently he had passed the 150-pound mark, there was a trace of color in his cheek and the old fire which seems to have carried him through the crisis of years was rekindled to such an extent he was playing baseball again; in fact, Donlin played first base in a full nine-inning game on the very day he came to see Honus and Gibby and the other Buccaneers.

In a flash, Mike was discussing with Honus some high spots of a series at Exposition Park in 1905 wherein the Giants, under McGraw, clinched the pennant. That was the same year the great Mathewson pitched three shutouts against the Athletics in the world series. Exclaimed Mike, as he jostled Honus around:

"You old son-of-a-gun—do you remember what happened the first day of that series in Exposition Park?"

MIKE RILES HONUS

"That was one of the very few occasions when the Dutchman was ready to say it with fists. Honus never looked for trouble, and it took plenty to get him sore enough to fight.

"You see, we had to win three out of five games of the series to win the flag. So we decided to try to get the Pirates' mind off their work by taunting them. I was picked to get Honus' goat. Well, I was pretty fresh in those days, and I suppose I went too far. Whatever it was I said to Wagner before the contest, it threw him into a rage. He challenged me to go into the clubhouse. I had to use some diplomacy, so I told Wagner McGraw considered me such a valuable man he did not wish me to take any chances of getting hurt before the series. How was that for getting myself out of a trimming?"

DIAMOND CALLS HIM

Donlin admitted to me he would get back into baseball if anything promising developed. He is fond of his motion picture friends, but the call of the diamond is much stronger than the call of Hollywood, even though Donlin moves around with many of the big officials as well as the star performers of picture-land.

Mike intimidated he might now be a member of the Giants had McGraw remained in the saddle. It seems the astute John J. was putting out plans to get Donlin on the coaching lines. Mike would be a "natural" at the Polo Grounds, just as Wagner, Stengel and Altrock are in appropriate roles in Pittsburgh, Brooklyn and Washington.

Donlin is 56, but you feel you are in the presence of youth when he takes the floor. He exudes humor and aggressiveness and the graceful carriage that marked his diamond career remains with him. It was not my fortune to see Mike Donlin play baseball, but I often read of his deeds of daring. And he is an athlete who doesn't disillusion a hero-worshipper.

BRICKELL ASKS RELEASE

PHILADELPHIA, May 4.—(AP.)—Signing of a new outfielder, Albert H. Cohen, was announced by the Philadelphia Nationals at the same time it was learned Fred Brickell, reserve fly chaser, had turned in his uniform and asked that he be traded to some other club.

Brickell, obtained from the Pittsburgh Pirates in the same deal that brought Dick Bartell to the Phils, was understood to have demanded he be disposed of because he was weary of sitting on the bench while other players filled his post.

Panka Stopped In Chicago Bout

CHICAGO, May 4.—(AP.)—King Levinsky, the self-styled "Personality Kid" from Chicago's ghetto, today had racked up his first knockout victory in a long, long time.

Bearing out the contention that there is no god in matching the King with a slugger, Levinsky last night made short work of Charley Retzlaff, of Duluth, Minn., who rates as somewhat of a slugger, in the first round of a scheduled 10-round main bout at the Chicago Stadium.

A spectator dropped dead from the excitement of the quick finish.

Each of the five bouts on the card ended in knockouts. George Panka, Pittsburgh heavyweight, was stopped in the third round by Tony Cancella, of Florida.

LOEFFLER, GOLF PRO, QUITS SOUTH HILLS

By TOM BIRKS

Walter Loeffler, golf professional at the South Hills Country Club for the past 13 years, resigned his position today, according to an announcement by club officials.

Loeffler began his career as a golf teacher and greenskeeper at the Oakmont Country Club in 1918, taking the job as greenskeeper when his brother Emil joined the Army. He remained at Oakmont until the end of the war, when Emil returned and went to the Montour Heights Country Club as the professional.

When South Hills was constructed, in 1920, Loeffler was secured as the pro.

Although no definite word is to be had on the subject, it is believed that Loeffler stands a good chance of landing the position as professional and greenskeeper at the North County Park course.

Loeffler's name thus is added to those of Wayne Tobias, George Underwood, Andy Velican and Joe Ludes on the list of unemployed golf teachers.

DAYTON BOWS IN OPENER

With the inaugural tussle of the championship race out of the way, the remainder of the Mid-Atlantic League teams will swing into action today, Johnstown playing at Wheeling and Zanesville entertaining Huntington and Beckley appearing at Charleston.

President Elmer Daily, of the league, will attend the Johnstown-Wheeling encounter. The West Virginia city has planned a big affair, a half-holiday having been declared by the Wheeling merchants and a parade scheduled.

In the official league opener yesterday, Springfield defeated Dayton at Dayton, 10 to 5. About 1,000 fans braved the cold weather to witness the game.

Springfield piled up 16 safe hits in toppling Dayton, the attack being led by Bohl, Clark and Sitts, each of whom made three safe hits. The score by innings:

Wild Shot Heave Kills Cheer Leader

PINE BLUFF, Ark., May 4.—(AP.)—A six-pound shot that went awry when an athlete threw it during a track and field meet killed a high school cheer leader here.

J. R. Bolin threw the heavy ball 40 feet at the ring, but the shot slipped and struck Roy Lee Dunn, 17, on the head. Dunn died in a hospital last night.

OUIMET'S GOLF

By FRANCIS OUIMET

Former National Amateur and Open Golf Champion.

It seems to me that there is a growing tendency in this country of watering putting greens to the point wheer there is little skill required to hold a ball on the surfaces. Frequently I have played courses where greens have been so soft they would receive and hold any ball that had actually carried to them. It did not matter what club the player used, all he needed to do was to hit the green and his ball stayed there. This, of course, provided great scoring opportunities, but to my way of thinking there is no reason why the fellow who half-topped a mashie pitch should receive the same reward as did the one who played a fine stroke.

On any of the so-called championship layouts abroad such a condition does not exist, and if you are to reach a green in the required number of strokes you do so because you have been assisted by a water-soaked green. I watched many fine players this past winter in Florida, and the thought occurred to me that they were playing their iron shots to greens with confidence because they knew the ball would stop within a few feet of where it landed. I wondered what those same fellows would do on a course like St. Andrews, where the greens are firm and fast and where one time you pitch all the way to the green because the wind is in the right quarter and the very next time you are obliged to run the ball, knowing a pitch will go bounding over.

Francis Ouimet

IRON PLAY DISCOUNTED

At Five Farms, Baltimore, last summer, there was hardly a green but what a full shot would hold and I maintain this does not bring out the finer skill required in iron club play. To be sure, what is fair for one is fair for all, but there is a limit to soaking the greens, and I think it has been overdone. A spongy green is quite as much a thief of skill as either the ribbed or punched clubs proved themselves to be. Far better to reduce the amount of water poured upon them and make it obligatory for the player to hit the proper shot or suffer the consequences.

It is a known fact that low scores are made when putting greens are soft. No one objects to making a low score and I get as much pleasure in doing so as anybody else, but there is so much more satisfaction in making low scores when they are earned. Hagen, Sarazen, Jones, Evans, Sweetser and many other great golfers have mastered the art of hitting the ball skillfully and their skill is discounted enormously when they are asked to play on a test where putting greens are so soft that anything will get by and produce a satisfactory result.

PRAISES PINEHURST

One might ask, if soft greens assist in low scoring, why it is that at Pinehurst, where the surfaces are of sand with solid foundations, the scoring has been so low. That is simple enough to explain. Tommy Armour played about 20 rounds at Pinehurst the past winter and his average score on the No. 2 course was 67. It so happens that this course is one of the best trapped layouts I have seen, and believe me, the golfer who can score as did Armour must be a great player in every sense of the word. Tommy did his low scoring because of the length he got on his tee shots. A drive on those Pinehurst fairways will travel prodigious distances because of the peculiar growth which appears to be a vine but which seems to be lined with live rubber. Furthermore, the sand greens are so perfect that once the player gets the touch he can hole putts from any distance. Armour was driving so far he had little approaches to make, and he was holing putts from off the green as well as on.

The ideal condition of a course as I see it should be as follows: A firm fairway that will provide a reasonable bound to a well-hit drive and putting greens that also have a certain degree of firmness, so that nothing but the most skillfully-executed iron shot will hold once it lands. I fully realize it is difficult to have everything letter perfect insofar as these things are concerned, but it is worth trying. I have not played the Garden City Golf Club for a number of years, but, as I recall this fine course, it comes as close to being the ideal one in the matter of fairways and greens that I can think of at the moment. The ball on a drive will not roll forever and neither will it stop instantly, but the golfer gets good value nevertheless. The greens, too, demand a well-played iron if the ball is to remain on the putting surface.

DUKES BATTLE TECH NETTERS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Coach Grant Siverd ships his Duquesne varsity net squad to the Schenley Park area this afternoon for return contest with the racqueters of Carnegie Tech and Bethany Bisons invade Little Washington for tussle with W. & J. to comprise the day's district college court card.

Pitt, rained out of its home match with Duquesne on Tuesday, remains idle until tomorrow, when Bethany will visit the Stadium.

The local encounter looms as anybody's tussle. The teams fought to a deadlock on the Bluff asphalt last week, darkness having treminated the fray before the decisive doubles tilt could be run off. The Skibos have flashed three dangerous singles competitors to date in Capt. Rufus Hartig, Groves and Maczkov, but their lineup has sagged in the middle and wobbled in the doubles.

Meanwhile the Dukes, though they have thus far failed to scare up a consistent winner at the number one singles assignment or to flash a victor at the sixth man-to-man post, have shown strength at the intermediate positions and surprising effectiveness in the dual branch.

Meanwhile Interscholastic Conference aspirants continue their spirited trophy quest. Though hampered in their workouts by irregular weather, the secondary school performers are displaying plenty of high grade tennis. A full schedule is listed for both city and suburban division entrants today.

ENTRY RAISED FOR ANNUAL PITT MEET

TENNIS

Dukes vs. Carnegie Tech, Tech courts.
Bethany vs. Wash-Jeff at Washington, Pa.

BASEBALL

West Virginia vs. George Washington at Washington, D. C.
Fairmont vs. Salem at Salem.

By JESS CARVER

Just when all concerned were congratulating one another and themselves that they were going to have a nice, snappy track and field party out at Pitt's Stadium Saturday, with no messing around with 15 or 16 trials in the dashes and no running of heats in the quarter and half mile events, in poured a score of post entries, boosting the entry list for the twenty-sixth Pitt interscholastic track and field championships to the 60 mark in teams and above the 500 point for individuals.

All of which means that there will be semi-final heats in the sprints and hurdles and extra races in the middle distance events and the relays.

SIX CHAMPS BACK

Six of last year's winners are included in the list of entries. Flagler, of South Union, who copped the century dash; Thomas, of Oliver, winner of the 220; Thompson, of Sharon, the broad jump champ, who set a new meet and state record in '32, and Baur, also of Sharon, the 880-yard champion; Lewis, Rankin High's crack Negro high jumper, and Nelson, of Linsley Institute, Wheeling, a fine pole vaulter, will compete Saturday.

With such a hefty entry list, the school that replaces New Castle as meet champion may be able to slip into the title position without scoring many more points than New Castle recorded a year back. The 1932 winners carried off the laurels with only 14 points.

For the fourth year, O'Dile Pryor, Ford City's great Negro all-round athlete and star sprinter, co-holder of the meet record for the 100-yard dash of 9.9, is entered and will battle it out with Flagler.

Rain kicked the stuffings out of yesterday's intercollegiate sport card, only the Pitt and West Virginia golf match being run off. The Waynesburg and Wash-Jeff track meet was postponed until May 10 and the West Virginia-Quantico Marine baseball game at Quantico and the West Virginia and West Virginia Wesleyan tennis match, at Buckhannon, postponed to a later date.

ALUMNI BEATS DUKES

With Jesse Harper, director of athletics at Notre Dame, looking on, the Duquesne University alumni made it three in a row over the Dukes' varsity gridders in the annual practice game on the Bluff yesterday afternoon. The Oldtimers (with apologies to Messrs. Kelleher, Donnelli, Abele, Chacko, Kovalcheck and Silverstein) won the game, 16 to 9.

The varsity tallied first when DeLuca went over after the Regulars had driven down the field in impressive fashion. Steve Marin booted a field goal for the extra point. Taking the ball from the kickoff in the second period after the varsity had scored on a safety, Donnelli raced 95 yards for a touchdown and added the extra point with a placement goal.

In the fourth period, Buff kicked himself a field goal to put the Oldtimers ahead at 10 to 9 and to make matters certain, Big Ray Kemp, varsity tackle star in '29, '30 and '31, intercepted a pass and chased across for another score.

Director Harper stopped off in Pittsburgh yesterday on his way back to South Bend from an eastern trip. He visited with Coach Layden at Duquesne and went into conference with Buddy Overend, of Tech, and W. Don Harrison, of Pitt.

TO HONOR HARPSTER

The Carnegie Tech varsity football squad will put over a fast one Saturday on its coaches, Howard Harpster and Don Lovewell. At the instigation of Capt. Colin (Red) Stewart, star end, the Tartan gridders will tender Harp and Don a luncheon in the school cafeteria, at which time the boys will express their faith in the young mentor's teachings and assure them of full co-operation next fall.

Champions in the Tri-State Conference spring sports will be determined by two title affairs this spring, Jack Stoeber, Thiel College, secretary of the conference, announces.

While the tennis teams of Geneva, Grove City, Bethany play one another, the championship will be determined by a tournament to be held at Grove City College on June 2 and 3.

The annual Tri-State Conference championship track meet will again be held at Geneva College on Tuesday, May 30.

Local sandlot fans will get their first glimpse of the Homestead Grays this evening when Cum Posey takes his stars to the Salt Works grounds to meet the North Siders.

According to dope coming from the Bellaire, O., section, where the Grays were whipped into shape, the aggregation compares very favorably with any club that Posey ever has gathered together.

Leo Green is taking this opportunity to size up his material for the coming City League race. It must be admitted that the Grays can try out any pitching staff in this district.

The Scott Morgans and Parmelee will meet in the feature league game of the evening. These stellar outfits will clash at the Homewood playgrounds in a Greater Pittsburgh circuit fracas.

The sandlotters were able to get in some good licks last evening, despite the chilly weather and threat of rain.

STOCKS BRACE AS TRADING SLOWS UP

NEW YORK, May 4.—(AP.)—Financial markets were a little bit wobbly for a time in the earlier trading today, but developed a better tone after midday.

Trading was less active in shares. After some early selling, rails led the list a little higher. Wheat and cotton followed a somewhat similar course, with cotton regaining most of a setback of around 50 cents a bale. Rails and U. S. governments were firm in bonds. The dollar sagged slightly in foreign exchange dealings.

Rails were helped by advance estimates indicating that the weekly freight car loadings may show a clear advance over the previous year for the first time in a long time. Motors were helped by April production estimates, showing a small gain over the like month of last year, and indications that May output may be higher. On the whole, however, Wall street remained rather hesitant, pending further Washington developments, and indications as to how long the belated spring pickup in business may carry on. The administration's rail bill was awaited with interest, but its contents had been largely disclosed in advance.

The communications issues were bid up chiefly in response to reports of better business. Cable business has picked up considerably, coincident to increased speculative activity. Rumors of a merger between Western Union and Postal Telegraph, subsidiary of International Telephone, have been revived, but this would require an act of Congress, since the White Act now stands in the way.

Oils were inclined to recover from their rather sharp setback. Early first quarter earnings reports indicated that the industry has run into the red again, after the improvement last year. A number of petroleum quarters now hope for federal action to bring order out of the chaos in the industry.

WHEAT MAKES RAPID GAINS

CHICAGO, May 4.—Grains quickly advanced today after a wavering start that was associated with lower wheat quotations at Liverpool and rains in domestic winter crop territory southwest.

New speculative buying appeared in volume on price declines, but slackened on upturns. Opening unchanged to ⅝ off, wheat subsequently averaged higher. Corn started at ½ decline to ½ gain, and later steadied at around yesterday's finish.

Fresh purchase orders, however, were mostly for small lots, and were regarded in various quarters as being of an eleventh hour character. On some bulges, nevertheless, gains of about a cent a bushel were shown.

Some of the selling of wheat today appeared to be liquidation by eastern holders, but it was readily absorbed by commission houses. Enlarged receipts of wheat at leading domestic centers attracted considerable notice.

Corn prices developed strength independent of wheat. Oats followed corn. Provisions averaged higher with grains.

PROFITS TAKEN WHEN MONEY BILL PASSES

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, May 4.—As I suspected, the final announcement of the passage by the House of the Thomas inflation measure brought in some heavy profit-taking. Also a good deal of smart short selling appeared yesterday in such stocks as American Telephone.

This last, by the way, is interesting, since one of the latest bits of inspired talk around the street on Tuesday, was that now the utilities would be "taken in hand." The only "reason" given was that they were "behind the market." But it is hard to see utilities doing much in the face of weakness in Telephone.

It is quite according to Hoyle to have the market react when the "good news" come out. The "good news" on this trip has been the passage of a bill authorizing what many consider to be sort of fiat money, an injection of silver and a cut in the gold content of the dollar. The bill has now passed both Houses. The inflation bulls have what they figured on, so many sold out.

UP TO PRESIDENT

Now comes a period when everything will seem to depend upon what President Roosevelt decides to do with the unheard-of powers which Congress has given to him. If, in his forthcoming speeches, he sounds a note of caution and conservatism as to inflation, further reaction in the market would be likely.

It is well at this time to stop and consider for a moment the recent action and present position of the market.

The recent large advance mostly came in three tremendous days—April 19, 20 and 29. Despite the fact that one was a Saturday, over 15,600,000 shares were traded in those three sessions.

This is a terrific performance. It may be said fairly that it represents a panic—a sort of rich man's panic. It represents for the most part a flight from the paper dollar (which is the only kind of dollar people now have).

SELLING SIGNIFICANT

Now it may be that another "shot" of dollar depreciation may produce further effects. But at least it is well to reflect that all this still depends on one man's decision, a decision apparently not yet made.

Furthermore, we may reflect upon the enormous churning and milling around of the past three days—the millions and millions of shares bought without any net gain in the averages. One cannot escape the conclusion that millions of shares were sold!

And you may be sure that they were not sold by the little traders and dollar-hedgers who have rushed to buy on the rises.

Another thing to note is this. The bulls are taking anywhere from 150 to 200 in the Dow, Jones industrial average within a year. Taking the lowest figure, that would mean a further advance of 72 points, or over 90 per cent. It would mean, however, only six points per month, on average!

WARNS OF REACTIONS

But already we have had an advance of about 50 per cent, or 28 points. This is 14 points per month.

Does anyone think that this market can continue to rise at the recent rate of 14 points a month? If it should, one year from now the average would be 246.

So beware new era delusions of grandeur. Be prepared for the inevitable reactions. Even if the industrial average were headed for 150, it has been going up too fast.

I know that it can be said that the market has taken selling well. (It always does until it doesn't).

Unquestionably a considerable public following is developing. Strong sponsorship has been shown. There is potential dynamite in Washington news. Shorts are nervous. Sharp upswings may be generated from time to time.

But, in my opinion, the smartest traders are doing little, and that mostly in the way of occasional short sales "for a turn."

BOTTLE ORDER IS PLACED

The Glenshaw Glass Company has been awarded an order for 40 carloads of beer bottles for the Union Brewing Company of New Castle. Delivery will start on June 20. The order amounts to 1,440,000 bottles.

The American Brewers Supply Company has received an order for five carloads of choice malt for immediate shipment to the same brewery.

Bottling equipment has been ordered from the Liquid Carbonic Company. Union Brewing will start shipment of its all-malt beer by July 1.

U. S. Chamber Badly Needs Reorganizing

By B. C. FORBES

THE SO-CALLED "United States Chamber of Commerce" is holding another of its all-talkie sessions. Doubtless lots of criticism will be indulged in—that is the favorite hobby of this ineffective body.

Mr. Forbes

When this writer, foreseeing grave economic and social dangers, strove hard to prod our best brains into organizing an institute of industrial coordination, or some similar body, to evolve plans and pave the way for actual action calculated to modify the effects of the terrific disaster which, anyone could see, would followw the collapse of the terrific speculative boom, the excuse offered by more than one leader for doing nothing was that the country already had a national Chamber of Commerce and that there should be no need for organizing any other body.

Arguments that the United States Chamber was doing nothing worthwhile to prepare for the coming storm fell on totally deaf ears.

Presumably the country would have been better off had there been no such abortive organization.

Industry and business and finance having failed miserably to prepare for and meet the adumbrated collapse and crisis, the government perforce had eventually to take hold. The verdict of the public is that finance, business, industry fell down on the job.

Hence the acclaim accorded President Roosevelt for instituting vigorous action the moment he entered the White House.

Hence, also, the rush toward political dictatorship, the looming prospect that industry and everything else will be subjected to arbitrary political control savoring of that prevalent in other countries ruled by dictators.

Recently the far-flung utility industry decided that the time had come to abolish its trade body, the National Electric Light Association, and to form a more compact, less lax, more businesslike organization, the Edison Electric Institute.

The so-called "United States Chamber of Commerce" having failed to function successfully, its more enlightened members—and it has a number of highly enlightened members — should consider taking like action.

The millions suffering acutely from the virtual breakdown of our economic machinery derive no comfort, no succor, no encouragement from loud criticisms of and protests against the conduct of politictl officials who at least are doing something besides talking, talking, talking. The all-talkie chamber recalls the classic observation:

"He who can, does; he who can't, criticises."

The chamber has been long-winded—on criticism; pitifully short on effective doing.

FRED I. KENT, ex-banker who turned his time and talents to public service several years ago, and who has fought valiantly for adoption of governmental action calculated to restore employment, would make a sound governor of the Federal Reserve Board in sucession to Eugene Meyer, Jr., resigned.

Conditions call for men at the helm who are not hide-bound, who are not hopelessly chained to tradition, who realize that human beings rank above dollars and cents.

NOT IN four years has this column been so inundated with telegrams, letters, reports, statistics from all sorts of business concerns regarding extraordinary expansion in orders.

It is being convincingly revealed that almost every kind and class of merchandise and raw material supplies had been permitted to dwindle abnormally. Buyers felt perfectly safe in restricting their purchases to absolutely immediate requirements. Indeed, it is evident that many manufacturers elected not to contract even for materials necessary to fill orders actually on their books.

Now there is a stampede to avoid losses threatened by rising prices. Whereas sellers heretofore have suffered and suffered, the buyer in many instances is now being bitten.

Events promise to justify those of us who have been subjected to ridicule for having refused to give way to despair.

The Flapper's Daughter

By BEATRICE BURTON

THRILLING NOVEL OF THE CHILDREN OF DANCING MOTHERS

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Mr. Collins came out of his office, stopped a moment to light a cigaret and then turned toward the outer door of the main office.

Sharlie let him get almost to the door before she spoke. "Aren't you going to say 'good-night' to me, Mr. Collins?" she called and he swung around.

"I didn't see you, Sharlie. I'm sorry," he said, and then added, "Good-night."

"I'll drive you home, if you'll let me," he said, and she gave him a quick smile from under the brim of the little hat and picked up her gloves and handbag.

"Let you? Why, I think you're lovely to offer to take me home! I thought you'd be off me for life after the way I talked to you last time I was in your car, Mr. Collins . . . I've thought over what you said since then, and I realize that you were perfectly right."

"Perfectly right about what, Sharlie?" He looked puzzled, as if he were trying to remember all the things that they had said to each other that night.

"Oh, don't you remember?—You made it very clear to me that you don't want to have any office friendships, and that if you do have any nobody must know about them," she said gravely. "You let me know that you believed firmly in the caste system. Employers and people with money on one plane, and working girls like me on a lower plane ——"

DISAPPROVES OF SECRECY

"Sharlie, cut it out! You know I never said that to you," he interrupted her, and a dull flush came into his face. "I did say that I didn't want you and me to be the center of a lot of office gossip—Look here, stop quarreling, will you? I've had a rotten day. What do you say to some dinner somewhere, and couldn't we push over a movie afterward?" He took her arm.

"No," said Sharlie with decision. "But I'd love you to drive me home."

"Why can't you have dinner? Date with somebody?"

She shook her head. "No, but somehow or other, I seem to have too much pride to go out with a man who doesn't want anyone to know that I have dinner with him. I just don't hanker to be the Deep Dark Secret in anybody's life—not even yours. You see, nobody's ever been ashamed of me before, Mr. Collins."

"Sharlie, that's not it." He moved his head impatiently. "But you know, yourself, that a man doesn't have affairs with the women who work in his office. It just isn't done—He may be in love with somebody who works in some other office, but never the girls in his own. That seems to have become one of the unwritten laws in the business world."

"And it's one that I'm going to obey from now on," said Sharlie as they dropped down to the first floor in the elevator and walked out into the street.

REASON FOR DECLINING

A drizzling rain was coming down and the streets looked as if they were running with wet, black tar. But Mr. Collins' car was warm and comfortable with its deeply cushioned seats and its thick robe.

"I think I must be like a cat—I always want to purr when I'm comfortable like a cat on a cushion by the fire," Sharlie said when they had left the darkness of the parking space behind the building and were running smoothly along the streets with their lights and shimmering reflections and hurrying home-going crowds of people.

"I wish you'd purr then, and not scratch with your sharp little claws," Mr. Collins answered.

"That's the trouble with you—Edna purrs at you all day in the office, and so do all the rest of the girls who work there. They are crazy about you, and besides that, their jobs depend on you. And Mrs. Wilmot purrs; I heard her," said Sharlie. "I've made up my mind to tell you what's what, even if you fire me for it. Do you want to hear my real reason for not going out with you tonight?"

"Of course I do."

"Well, I'll tell you—my mother was furious because I had dinner with you the other night. She doesn't know you. She doesn't know anything about you and she says she simply will not let me go 'round with men until she knows whether they're the right sort of men for me, or not."

She thought, watching him in the half-light of the street, that he flushed again and frowned. At any rate, his voice sounded as if he were annoyed when he spoke again. "I'm not such a bad sort, Sharlie."

DRIVEN TO DOOR

"Of course, you're not. I know that and so does Edna. But all mother knows is that I came home the other night after I'd had something to drink, and that you let me out at the corner of my street instead of bringing me home . . . But I wouldn't worry about all that, Mr. Collins. It's all over, and you can probably find a different girl to have dinner with you every night in the week."

"Suppose I don't want to have dinner with anyone but you?" he asked suddenly, like a boy who has been punished and scolded.

All the way to the apartment house he was sulky and bad-tempered, and he answered only "Yes" and "No" to her when she asked him questions. But he drove her up to her very door this time and got out into the rain to help her from the car.

The thing to do now was to be sweet to him for just an instant before she left him, so that he'd forgive her for all the things she had said to him even though he didn't forget them.

"You know how much I'd love to have dinner with you tonight, don't you?" she asked softly. "You know how much it means to me just to be with you—I stayed in the office tonight just because I had to see you. I had to see you! Her face was close to his. She leaned forward and kissed him squarely on the mouth.

SHARLIE PLEASED

Her voice came back to him as she ran across the wet sidewalk to the steps of the building. "I hate to go away from you—"

Well, she did in a way, she said to herself, as she put her key into the front door and ran up the stairs. She enjoyed being with him. It was exciting to be with anyone as important and powerful as he was, and it was pleasant to know that he was strongly attracted by her and that she could make him sullen and angry—that she had made him drive her to her own door when he hadn't wanted to do it.

It would have been pleasant to have dinner with him, too, in some luxurious restaurant tonight with music playing and waiters whisking the silver tops from steaming dishes. The hall of the building smelled of damp plaster and paint, and when Sharlie opened the Dunn's front door an odor of frying meat swept up to her nostrils . . . No one should have to smell food until it was on the table.

"Where's Edna?" her mother asked, glancing up from the cloth that she was spreading on the dining room table. "Didn't she come home with you?"

"I saw her leave the office with Jim Barnum," said Sharlie. "But I drove home with her Secret Sorrow, so that evens things up."

"With Mr. Collins?" Dodie's voice was sharp with interest.

Sharlie laughed. "With Mr. Collins. He asked me to have dinner with him, but I told him we were poor but proud, and that you wouldn't let me have engagements with men unless you'd met them and knew something about them . . . It worked, too. He drove me right up to the door."

"Well, we'll wait and see what happens next. Just don't cheapen yourself and everything will come out the way you want it to, Sharlie."

EDNA MAKES DINNER

On Thanksgiving Day the Dunns had dinner at 1:30. Edna, cooked it because she said it was a treat to her to cook and bake when she had to spend most of her life hitting the steel keys of a typewriter or taking dictation with a pencil. She spent the whole morning in the kitchen, peeling onions and chopping them up for the turkey dressing, making tiny Parker House rolls, mashing potatoes and squash, turning out on a plate the mold of cranberry sauce that she had made the night before, making hard sauce for her two mince pies, curling celery and putting it into a bowl of ice water to make it crisp.

At four o'clock when Sharlie's mother and father had left to go to the movies with the Hanaberrys and Sharlie was reading on the couch in the living room, Jim Barnum came knocking on the door of the flat to ask Edna if she wouldn't like to go for a drive with him.

Sharlie felt a sharp little pang of jealousy go through her as she looked at him. He was a fascinating looking thing, she admitted to herself, with his smile that made his eyes crinkle at the corners, his blunt straight nose and his firm mouth and chin. She wondered if he really were in love with Edna, or whether he went places with her just because she lived next door and never went anywhere with anybody else . . . She began to wonder if she could take him away from Edna.

TURKS CAPTURE CONSTANTINOPLE—LAST BYZANTINE EMPEROR MEETS DEATH

Turks (Ottomans after their first chieftain Othoman) a small horde, forced by the Mongols in 1227 from Central Asia, settled in Asia Minor. Within a century they spread all over the Byzantine empire; Constantinople and a small vicinity stayed unconquered until 1453. With the latter's fall the road into Europe had been opened and the Turks crowded westward, murdering, plundering, threatening all Christiandom. Not until the seventeenth century could their conquests be checked. (World's History.)

COMPOSITION OF NUTS

They are a valuable meat-substitute, some having a good protein and high fat content. Raw or cooked, they should be thoroughly masticated. Some of the better known nuts are: Almonds, chestnuts, hickory nuts, English walnuts, Brazil nuts, pecan nuts, peanuts. (Kinne & Conley: Foods.) (Science.)

PRINCIPLE OF THE REFRACTING TELESCOPE

DIAGRAM OF A REFRACTING TELESCOPE

Courtesy of McGraw-Hill Book Co.

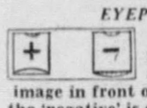
THE OBJECTIVE LENS

It is composed of a double-convex lens of crown glass and a plano-concave lens of flint glass, this combination called "achromatic." The simple convex lens gives images in different colors (chromatic aberration) as the focal length varies according to color (wavelength). By adding a divergent lens of flint glass the dispersion is neutralized and one image is obtained almost free from color.

Courtesy of McGraw-Hill Book Co.

EQUATORIAL MOUNTING

The main axis of the telescope is set parallel to earth's axis (polar axis); the other at right angle to it (declination axis). Thus the telescope has to be turned around the polar axis only to keep a star in its field (on account of earth's rotation).



EYEPIECES

The 'positive' is not achromatic and gives the image in front of the larger lens, the 'negative' is essentially achromatic and the image is formed between the lenses. The magnifying power of a telescope = focal length of objective/focal length of eye piece.

FLAMES

Combustion is the same, whether a gas burns in oxygen or oxygen in the gas. This is called reversibility of flame. G, gas flame in air; A, oxygen of the air burning in gas. Chemistry.

CANDLE

The hydrocarbons are drawn up by the wick and vaporized. The non-luminous mantle is completely burning gas, the luminous is partly combusted (glowing carbon particles issue light), the inner zone is unburned and the blue zone is totally burned gas. (Foster: Elements of Chemistry.)

OUTSIDE VIEW OF A MODERN STEAM LOCOMOTIVE

(For sectional view of similar engine see issue of May 2, 1933). The wheel arrangement is 4-4-2. Note especially the vertical steam-driven air compressor on the side, furnishing compressed air for operation of the valve gear mechanism and for the brake-system invented by George Westinghouse. The tractive force in lbs. T of a locomotive having simple cylinders (not compound) of diameter D (inch), length of stroke L (inch), working pressure of boiler P (lbs.) and driving wheel diameter d (inches) $T = 0.85xDxDxLxP/d$. If the locomotive can haul its heaviest load at a speed of S (miles per hour on the level), the developed horsepower $H\,P = T \times S/375$. (McShane: The Locomotive Up to Date.) Science.)

Let the Reader Do the Work

We write straight through the year, two articles a day, every day in the calendar. That's 700 a year. Except leap year, which makes it even worse.

We've done that now for almost 20 years, man and friend. Before that, we used to be a cartoonist. Until we were stopped by the government.

Our personal opinion of contributors is that they are dangerous. They are too intelligent. We get many thousands of letters we are afraid to print. One was congratulatory.

When we get epistles from cranks we tear them up. When we receive communications from sensible people we run them through a muncing machine.

In today's mail we quote:

You are the kind of man who is giving civilization a bad name. You must be working for the beer barons. Don't you know that we had no crime during prohibition? Please send me your photograph so I can slap its face."

That letter was from Nome, Alaska, and cannot be blamed on a heat wave, either local or nation-wide.

Not being content with panning the recipient to a rich, pastry brown, the sender also incloses a three-cent stamp for an answer.

There is no answer. The defense rests. But not on its laurels. Why start and continue a fight that might end in a challenge to meet somebody half-way to Nome, Alaska?

We can pick neater and less durable quarrels closer to the home diggings. Even in defeat you must consider the carfare.

That letter is already torn up. But we were honest about it. We saved the stamp. Never destroy U. S. property.

And that's how it feels to have your column filled by contributors.

Election Probe Delayed

Postponement Is Disappointing, But There Seems No Reason to Doubt the Inquiry Will Be Made.

The United States grand jury, which was expected this week to conduct an investigation of election frauds committed in Allegheny County last November, has been dismissed after acting only on routine cases such as come up at every term of court. No explanation is offered.

This is disappointing, but there seems no reason to suppose that anything more than a postponement is involved. The inquiry, we may assume, will be pushed later. Otherwise why would the Department of Justice at Washington have gone to the unusual length of appointing Earl F. Reed as special prosecutor for the election fraud cases?

The Attorney General undoubtedly means business in cleaning up the local mess. Mr. Reed was in Washington yesterday conferring with Department of Justice officials about the matter.

In the meanwhile the need for a clean-up becomes more and more apparent. More evidence of fraud has been adduced in the contest filed by Mrs. Anne E. Felix, Democratic nominee, against Michael J. Muldowney, Republican, for the Congressional seat in the Thirty-second District. And Leo Riordan, a county investigator, announces he has found evidence that thousands of fictitious names were placed on the election rolls of McKees Rocks and Homestead just before the primary of 1931.

We are to have a primary election in Pittsburgh in September—a hotly contested one in which the Republican machine will be under strong incentive to resort to its customary trickery.

Those who believe in honest elections and democratic government will hope that before the citizens of this community again go to the polls the United States District Court, with the aid of Mr. Reed will have put the fear of imprisonment into the hearts of ballot box crooks.

The Constitution Ignored

Congress Has No Authority to Delegate the Law-Making Power to the President.

It would be painful to think that our Federal Constitution, after all the ordeals it has passed through in its long history and its triumphant emergence from the formidable attacks of the past, is to be put out of business.

The powers of Congress are being transferred steadily and uninterruptedly from the Capitol to the White House, as if carried by a continuous belt conveyor.

The surrender of its constitutional functions by Congress is complete. Congress does not seem to have the slightest realization that it has fundamentally altered the form of our government.

In a quieter hour, which cannot long be delayed, this fact will be apparent to the people. Then there will come a reckoning and the toilsome task of undoing, correcting and replacing the patch-work of haste and excitement.

Voices of warning have been lifted, but at the moment they are unheeded. However, the time is fast approaching when they will be heard.

Despite the jaunty unconcern for the Constitution which now seems the fashion in Washington, the fact remains that it is impossible for Congress to delegate the legislative power which the Constitution has confided to it alone. Congress may try to do it. The House and Senate may pass statutes purporting to do so, but neither the manifest purpose of Congress to divest itself of the power of legislation and transfer it to the Executive, nor the statutes with which it seeks to effectuate the purpose, will be of the slightest avail.

The simple question, from which there is no escape, is whether the attempted delegation of power by Congress is a delegation of power to make the law. Does it necessarily involve a discretion as to what the law shall be?

The distinction is easily grasped. The Legislature cannot delegate its power to make the law, although it can delegate the power to determine some fact or state of things upon which the law makes its own action depend.

For illustration, can it be seriously contended that the delegation to the President in "his discretion to fix the number of grains in the gold dollar, but at not less than fifty per cent of the present standard" is not an attempt to delegate the power of legislation which under the Constitution lies exclusively with Congress?

This is but one of many attempted delegations of power which are destined to be reviewed in the cold gray light of sobriety and reason, when these indispensable guides to sound action resume their sway.

A well known political commentator describes this unparalleled situation as "transforming our whole governmental scheme."

"If there is any power," says he, "which Congress has retained, it cannot be named. If there is any power the President has not obtained, it has been overlooked."

River Change Opposed

The Propeller Club Wisely Protests Against the Removal of the Army Engineers

The Propeller Club of Pittsburgh has proceeded wisely in protesting against the proposal that rivers and harbors work be taken out of the hands of the Corps of Engineers, United States Army, and placed in the control of the Department of the Interior.

The protest is in the form of a resolution, and has been sent to President Roosevelt.

Other Pittsburgh organizations such as the Chamber of Commerce and the Allied Boards of Trade would do well to take similar action. The protests should be sent promptly, for the Administration at Washington is moving swiftly.

The Propeller Club rightly holds that the change in personnel that would be involved by the transfer of the rivers from one department to another would be injurious and wasteful. It also sees the possibility of the introduction of the spoils system and the awarding of river contracts for political reasons.

It is best to leave the present system unchanged. The Corps of Engineers of the Army is composed of honor graduates of the United States Military Academy at West Point. They are free from political taint, and have done good work—work that the Department of the Interior could scarcely improve.

And there are breakers to be passed

Some English Judges

The British Do Not Neglect "Frills."

THE LORD CHIEF JUSTICE OF ENGLAND, THE RIGHT HONORABLE LORD HEWART, AND HIS TRAIN BEARER.

There is much in outward formality and appearance that impresses the average mind. The smaller that average mind, the more it is impressed, and the gigantic majority of "average minds" are rather small.

The British show wisdom and appreciation of facts in the way they "doll up" those that represent the law's majesty.

Pictures in this column illustrate it. It is all very well to say "Nature unadorned is best adorned," but that doesn't apply to judges.

These pictures of English judges, including "The Lord Chief Justice of England," who looks as solemn as his title, were taken in a most solemn judicial procession on a very important occasion.

Nothing is left to the feeble imagination of the spectator. He is to know that these men that can convict him, acquit him, hang him or set him free, are IMPORTANT and they are made to LOOK important.

HERE COMES THE LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR, IN THE WIG, MACE BEARER AND PURSE BEARER, MARCHING AHEAD.

In the British courts, even lawyers wear wigs and gowns. In this country, judges of the United States Supreme Court have always worn silken gowns, but they have their own natural hair, often not a great deal of it, no wigs, nobody to hold up their trains, when they walk into court, no "mace bearer" or "purse bearer" walking ahead of them.

It seems, in the picture, to be a fairly good sized purse that the Lord Chancellor has carried ahead of him, with the lion and the unicorn showing on it. Sometimes the Lord High Chancellor of ancient days made mistakes about what went into that purse. In consequence of that judicial carelessness Francis Bacon, greatest of all English philosophers, and high in judicial power in the days of Queen Elizabeth, was put to shame and disgrace.

TWO BRITISH TYPES, GLUM AND GAY.

We like to feel in this country that democracy is a perfect thing, and we are justified in our belief that a man with brains sitting on the Supreme Court of the United States doesn't need any wig made of lamb's wool, on his head, and hanging down over his shoulders, to lend him dignity.

The third picture of the glum and gay judges shows that human nature is what really rules, even among judges.

If you had to appear before one of these judges, in a case involving life or death, it wouldn't take long to make your choice.

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

You were filled with remorse, but think your infractions are not known.

You have eased your conscience and made resolves not to transgress.

But as time goes on you are tempted again and the lesson you should have learned has lost its effect upon you.

Because you have been fortunate in the past in clearing your skirts in these shady deals you think your good luck will continue.

But it may not continue, and what about it if you are found out?

You ought to think back to the time when Old Man Demorse caused you so much uneasiness.

Remember the mental pain you experienced and how it tormented you for fear your irregular dealings should become known.

If you take a little time to think this over, don't you see that you will be better off to keep to the straight and narrow road?

Isn't good will and reputation worth anything to you?

You did not really gain before with the chances you took and next time you may not be successful in covering up, but even if you are, your conscience will sear you and the marks show in your face.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 4.—George Jean Nathan is not so assured, as seems the rest of humanity, that Noel Coward is Destiny's Tot. There are those who believe, however, his views are not entirely impersonal. They recall his ancient enemy, Alexander Woollcott, and Coward are like this.

The Nathan-Woollcott feud goes back to nigrescent days when Nathan sprayed the pages of the old Smart Set with his effervescent panegyric "The Seidletz Powder of Times Square." To mix a metaphor, it was a javelin lancing what he regarded as the bumptious swelling of the then critic of the Times.

But this thrust was largely inspired by Woollcott in a review of an operetta. Swinging along in that rhetorical lilt which stirs the Algonquin to hosannas, he abruptly and extraneously concluded with: "It just occurs to me that George Jean Nathan looks like a ticket speculator."

Anyway, Nathan's scoff at Coward's "wit" in a recent magazine is bulwarked by significant research. In a keen analysis he proves that much of Coward's persiflage lies in merely refurbishing moth-eaten gags of vaudeville and pluming them with the feathers of the drawing room.

But when hair grows thin enough to be noticeable, Hollywood has found a non-detectable camouflage. Such luminaries as H. B. Warner, Conrad Nagle, Paul Muni, Reginald Denny and others wear slight hair-pieces that stick on the hair line and comb back through what is left of a star's hair.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

This is the second article this week on capital punishment. Horrid subject! Revolting details! But you voted for it, partner. So you might as well get used to its discussion. Bad as that is, it's a lot easier than what you wished on the other guy.

And this time I suspect I'm going to get in wrong with both camps. But it will be worth it, if for once I can give my comeback to that question: "SHOULD WE HANG A WOMAN?"

I'll admit right off that's a lovely plea, and a smart one. It may possibly touch the heart of the most fanatical Capital Punisher when every other argument will fail. For, of course, there is something particularly ghastly and pitiful about the thought of hanging a potential mother.

Something more than a woman's body will dangle from that noose or writhe and roast in that chair. The love we bore our own mothers, the tenderness we feel toward our own babies, the sacred memories of our own homes will be wrecked on that terrible bier. And so the finest and most intelligent citizens of our land cry with horror against the hanging of a woman.

YET AS A WOMAN, I RESENT THAT CRY!

AND I HONESTLY BELIEVE THAT, BEAUTIFUL AS IT MAY SEEM, SUCH SENTIMENTALITY IS ALL-OF-A-PIECE WITH THAT OTHER BLOOD LUST EMOTIONALISM WHICH IS RESPONSIBLE FOR ALL CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

For if we are to have hangings at all, why spare women?

Why were women ever spared? They were spared, in ancient massacres, not because they were more sacred than men but because they were cattle, valuable as breeders. But women have a new value now, and a new duty. They are citizens, possessing equal opportunity and equal responsibility with men, and, sacred and necessary as their motherhood is, it is no more sacred than their function as voters.

AND THE MAUDLIN ATTITUDE WHICH WOULD DEPRIVE A WOMAN OF HER RIGHT TO EQUALITY IN DEATH AS WELL AS IN LIFE, DOES NOT PROTECT WOMAN OR REVERENCE HER. RATHER, IT SHOVES HER BACK INTO THE CATEGORY OF THE JUNGLE CHATTEL.

Would I hang a woman?

YES; IF I WOULD HANG A MAN, I WOULD HANG A WOMAN.

So, if we've got to have this grizzly business of capital punishment at all, let's at least think straight about it— see it in its full horror, without any mawkish reservations.

Murder is murder whether it be inflicted on one sex or the other. If a bad man forfeits his right to be a father, then a bad woman forfeits her right to be a mother. And if we, who are outside the bars, have the right to murder that potential father, it is then our duty to murder the potential mother.

SO HANG WOMEN, BY ALL MEANS, IF YOU'RE GOING TO HANG MEN!

And, while you're doing it, let the woman outside the death house enjoy equal opportunity. She voted for that noose, that chair. Then let her see the result of her ballot. Why limit execution swoonings and retchings to men only?

Throw open the prison doors! Let us all see the result of our ballot. Let us see the actual showdown of how we really feel about this "sacred" business of life!

Cut out this pretty palavar about our killings—this salving of our consciences by being so choosey with our stranglings and our roastings.

IF WE'VE GOT TO STILL BE BLOODY JUNGLE BEASTS, LET'S AT LEAST BE CONSISTENT JUNGLE BEASTS—NOT SMIRKING HYPOCRITES!

HANG A WOMAN?

I SAY, YES!
